Sacco-Vanzetti Case In Paris Unfortunate Indiscretion. Ask Our Geese. Her Best Job.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

PARIS, Aug. 9.—In Paris, where this is written, Sacco and Vanzetti represent important news. Rows of soldiers with steel helmets surround the American embassy examining suspicious persons. Look poor, not a workman; or queer, and not an American, and you are suspicious.

MANY police protect the American consul's office. Americans drawing money from the Guaranty Trust in the same building, wonder. Madame Nungesser and Loubet, former president of the France, cable America asking clemency; others cable Col. Lindbergh asking him to intervene. The average Frenchman knows America as little as the average American knows France.

RADICAL newspapers talk violently. Le Soire with a front page picture carries the caption "The Best Plan Would Be to Electrocute America." It suggests no plan for carrying out so large a program.

L'Humanite, commenting on the alleged news that the Massachusetts American Legion approves the Sacco-Vanzetti executions, threatens a boycott that would be ruinous to the United States and says over the signature of P. Villant-Courutior that if the execution takes place the gathering of the American Legion in Paris next month will appear as regards its managers, comme un congress d'assassins "like a congress of assassins."

THE Fuller committee report that the judge in the case had been "guilty in indiscretion" makes as bad an impression on Americans as on Frenchmen. Any juryman talking indiscreetly about the men accused thus revealing advance prejudice against them, should be withdrawn. Talk that would make a citizen unfit for the jury should surely make a judge unfit to preside.

HOSTILE comment indicating prejudice in the judge would mean that justice was tainted at the source. The committee report on that point should have been so explicit as to make impossible the suspicion that the judge was influenced by the accused men's revolutionary opinions or by anything outside the evidence in the murder case.

THE Earl of Oxford and Asquith, 74, has devoted his life to the service of his country, never using time or talent in building up a fortune for himself. Friends have arranged privately to give him an annuity of $12,500 a year. Because he was formerly prime minister he is entitled to a pension of $10,000 year from the British government, if he cares to take it.

THIRD MAN IN MAYOR FIGHT

J. C. B. Beatty Will Run Against Benedum and Brown On Nov. 8

Pottery Salesman Announces He Will File Petition as Independent For Place on City Ballot.

TWICE DEFEATED FOR GOVERNOR

"Contaminated Moral Conditions of Our City Demand Someone Fully Qualified," He Charges In Statement.

A three-cornered fight for the mayoralty at the November 8 election in East Liverpool was promised today, as a result of the announcement of James C. B. Beatty, pottery salesman, and twice an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, that he will enter the race as an independent against former Mayor Charles Brown, Republican nominee, and Ralph C. Benedum, renominated by the Democrats.

Applies for Petition

Beatty, last night, applied at the election board office for blank petitions. He said he would file within the next week or ten days. The law provides that petitions, containing not less than 25 signatures, must be in the hands of election board officials 60 days prior to the fall balloting, or not later than Friday, September 9.

Four years ago, Beatty was defeated in a three-man mayoralty fight by Brown. He ran then as an independent, as he plans to do this fall. The Democratic nominee in 1923 was Dr. J. W. Williamson.

Beatty's Announcement

Beatty, in announcing his candidacy, issued the following signed statement:

"This to advise you and the people of East Liverpool that I have decided to run for mayor independently of all parties and factions.

"Our government and this nation can endure only by close adherence to the fundamental teachings contained in the Bible, the precepts established by Washington, principles advocated by Jefferson, human rights adopted by Lincoln, and ideals forecast by Woodrow Wilson.

"In accordance with a man's general experience he knows humanity, and in accordance with his knowledge of God he is qualified to lead or direct any part or all of the human race.

"The contaminated moral, commercial and general conditions of our city demand someone fully qualified, and I am offering my experience and knowledge for that purpose, and for nothing else.

"QUEEN" MARY DENIES CHARGES

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Aug. 11.—Fighting mad, "Queen" Mary Purnell today took the witness stand in the state's suit to dissolve the House of David and vehemently denied the charges of sundry accusers sitting in the court room.

"Lies, lies, lies," she shrilled.

"Augusta Fortney has testified here that early one morning she rapped on your bedroom door and found there Francis Thorpe, business manager partially clothed and you, dressed in a red kimona. Is that true?" asked chief defense counsel W. J. Barnard.

"Queen" Mary raised half way out of her seat looking angrily at Augusta and answered:

"That's a contemptible lie and she knows it."

Three Firemen Hurt While Fighting Fire Which Follows.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 11.— A series of explosions believed to have been caused by bombs, wrecked the State theatre here today, causing an estimated loss of $400,000. Police declared they believed the bombs had been laid by Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers.

Police explained that they had no definite clue connecting the explosion with radical agitators other than the fact that the theatre had no known enemies and that the explosion could not have been caused by an accidental accumulation of gas or some other means.

Had the blasts and fire come two hours earlier the lives of approximately 1500 patrons of the motion picture theatre would have been jeopardized. The last show let out shortly before midnight; the first explosion came at 2 a. m.

Fire Chief Trapped.

Fire shot seventy-five feet into the air after the first explosion, firemen reported, and four or five smaller blasts let go in its wake.

Three firemen were hurt fighting the fire and keeping it confined to the theatre building proper. Assistant Fire Chief Terrence Mulligan was trapped when a section of the building caved in. He was rescued by his comrades a half hour later and was unconscious from breathing smoke fumes. Theodore Measure, engineman, was badly cut when a balcony of the building collapsed. Gasoline Rate War Looms In Cleveland

Standard Oil and Royal Dutch-Shell Combination Prepare for Finish Fight for Market Control.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 11.——A gasoline war between Standard Oil company and the Royal Dutch-Shell combination, Standard Oil's most powerful competitor, will be fought out, with Cleveland as the chief battleground, within the next few months, it was predicted here today.

Royal Dutch-Shell is planning to spend several million dollars for the construction of warehouses and other projects in this city, according to well founded reports, and will launch at once into an extensive underselling campaign.

Fred Caley, secretary of the Cleveland Automobile club, predicted that the situation would result in a drastic slashing of gasoline prices.

"Let 'em fight," Caley remarked. "The Standard-Shell war in Chicago was a real thing for the motorists. Cheaper and better gas all the way around is the result."

STOCKHOLDERS SEEK STATEMENT

CLEVELAD, O., Aug. 11.—A suit by Wilfred F. Marr, of Canton, Ohio, and William A. Walker, of Pittsburgh, requesting that the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers bank be compelled to make a statement of its dealings with the Brotherhood Investment company, was on file in common pleas court here today.

The plaintiffs, who are stockholders in the Investment company, charge that assets with a rated value of nearly a half-million dollars, which in reality are worth much less, have been turned over by the bank to its allied concern. It is also alleged that on May 27, 1925, the Brotherhood admitted responsibility for losses of the investment company and agreed to repay these deficits.

SACCO-VANZETTI MOB ATTEMPTS TO MARCH UPON U. S. EMBASSY

Mounted Police Restore Order After Violent Outbreak.

10,000 AT MEET

Inflammatory Speech Made by "Emperor" Cook.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Order was restored by the police early today after a violent outbreak of rioting when thousands of Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers, led by men and women Communists, tried to march upon the United States embassy in Grosvenor gardens.

Thirty-five persons were injured when mounted police drove into the wildly shouting mob in an effort to disperse it.

Worst Disorder Since Strike.

It was the worst disorder that England has been since the general strike.

The riot followed a mass meeting of 10,000 persons in Hyde Park at which inflammatory speeches were made.

A. J. ("Emperor") Cook, leader of last year's coal strike, declared:

"I warn you. I warn America that if they murder these two men (Sacco and Vanzetti) we will get even with them."

Wave Red Flags

At the conclusion of the Hyde Park meeting Cook urged the demonstrators to march upon the American embassy and make a show of force in hope that the ambassador, A. B. Houghton, (who is at present on vacation in Scotland,) would be frightened into cabling the state department to urge that the Sacco-Vanzetti death sentences be remitted.

IRA MELLINGER KIWANIS GUEST

Leetonia Lumber Dealer Talks on Subject, "Service."

Stressing the value of personal and community service and the ideals of Kiwanis which constantly look forward to the consummation of the worth while things in life, Ira F. Mellinger, Leetonia lumber dealer, today addressed members of the Kiwanis club at their noon luncheon in Larkins annex.

Dr. W. A. Hobbs presided. Group singing was led by Prof. Hugh F. Laughlin. Approximately 50 members of the club were present.

Plans were announced for the selection of delegates to the Ohio district convention which will be held in Cincinnati during October. The local delegates will be named at next week's meeting.

The speaker advocated the eternal friendship of man to man, and an unceasing effort to do something that will be of some service to the community or to the world, rather than the assumption of a self-contained self-satisfied attitude that tends toward no man's good.

"ELEVENTH HOUR" RESPITE, GRANTED 30 MINUTES BEFORE MARCH, GIVES CONDEMNED MEN 12-DAY LEASE ON LIFE

By George R. Holmes

BOSTON, Aug 11—Sacco and Vanzetti still live. Through the high slitted windows of Charlestown prison they glimpsed today the pallid light of another day. It was a day they had not expected to see, and one which they did not know they were going to see until a scant half hour before they were to have taken the short march to the electric chair.

Third Man Also Saved.

Fiction writers often feature "An Eleventh Hour Reprieve." The 12-day respite given the condemned murderers of South Braintree last night by Governor Alvan T. Fuller was literally that. It was 11:27 P. M. when Warden William Hendry stalked down the corridor in front of their cells and informed them that the governor and his executive council had granted an opportunity to their counsel to make one last fight before the State Courts to save them from the yawning chair in the room beyond. They were doomed to die a few minutes past 12 o'clock.

Outside the prison were more than 800 police and state troopers, armed and vigilant. Behind a "deadline" were bristling machine guns and flaring floodlights. Their presence attested to the fears that the precautions against trouble that the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti entailed. In Boston itself and far beyond, in New York, Chicago, London, Paris, Berlin, Moscow, all over the world, were innumerable thousands waiting word of their death. Probably no other condemned murderers in the history of the world left such a waiting audience, or had so many thousands wrought up over their impending passing.

The respite from death, agreed upon by the governor and his council after hours of debate that continued to within the very shadow of their cells, also brought 12 more days of life to Celestino Madeiros, the Portuguese murderer, who has confessed to the crime for which Sacco and Vanzetti stand convicted. The law thus far, however, has not elected to believe Madeiros. Nevertheless, it was decided he should have 12 more days of life, too. It is a pure gift for the Portuguese, for nobody is making any fight for him.

Garbed for Death Chair.

The men had been garbed for the death chair when the news came. They wore the gray prison trousers and blue and white shirts, with short sleeves. All were resigned to their going. Sacco, weak from his 25 days of hunger striking, lay on his cot, his eyes closed. Vanzetti, stronger and more philosophical, rested quietly. Madeiros, the Portuguese, mumbled in his cell. Occasionally Vanzetti would break into a low song in which his companions in the adjacent cells joined. The song was "Memories."

"Boys," said Warden Hendry, "the governor has given you a respite until August 22. Now I want you to be men, and I want you to eat."

This last was directed at Sacco, who for 25 days has refused food, although it was meant for Vanzetti, too. The fish peddler has eaten only intermittently for a month. Madeiros, for whom no fight was made whose

SACCO-VANZETTI MOB ATTEMPTS TO MARCH UPON U. S. EMBASSY

Mounted Police Restore Order After Violent Outbreak.

Inflammatory Speech Made by "Emperor" Cook.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Order was restored by the police early today after a violent outbreak of rioting when thousands of Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers, led by men and women Communists, tried to march upon the United States embassy in Grosvenor gardens.

Thirty-five persons were injured when mounted police drove into the wildly shouting mob in an effort to disperse it.

Worst Disorder Since Strike.

It was the worst disorder that England has been since the general strike.

The riot followed a mass meeting of 10,000 persons in Hyde Park at which inflammatory speeches were made.

A. J. ("Emperor") Cook, leader of last year's coal strike, declared:

"I warn you. I warn America that if they murder these two men (Sacco and Vanzetti) we will get even with them."

Wave Red Flags

At the conclusion of the Hyde Park meeting Cook urged the demonstrators to march upon the American embassy and make a show of force in hope that the ambassador, A. B. Houghton, (who is at present on vacation in Scotland,) would be frightened into cabling the state department to urge that the Sacco-Vanzetti death sentences be remitted.

IRA MELLINGER KIWANIS GUEST

Leetonia Lumber Dealer Talks on Subject, "Service."

Stressing the value of personal and community service and the ideals of Kiwanis which constantly look forward to the consummation of the worth while things in life, Ira F. Mellinger, Leetonia lumber dealer, today addressed members of the Kiwanis club at their noon luncheon in Larkins annex.

Dr. W. A. Hobbs presided. Group singing was led by Prof. Hugh F. Laughlin. Approximately 50 members of the club were present.

Plans were announced for the selection of delegates to the Ohio district convention which will be held in Cincinnati during October. The local delegates will be named at next week's meeting.

The speaker advocated the eternal friendship of man to man, and an unceasing effort to do something that will be of some service to the community or to the world, rather than the assumption of a self-contained self-satisfied attitude that tends toward no man's good.

"ELEVENTH HOUR" RESPITE, GRANTED 30 MINUTES BEFORE MARCH, GIVES CONDEMNED MEN 12-DAY LEASE ON LIFE

By George R. Holmes

BOSTON, Aug 11—Sacco and Vanzetti still live. Through the high slitted windows of Charlestown prison they glimpsed today the pallid light of another day. It was a day they had not expected to see, and one which they did not know they were going to see until a scant half hour before they were to have taken the short march to the electric chair.

Third Man Also Saved.

Fiction writers often feature "An Eleventh Hour Reprieve." The 12-day respite given the condemned murderers of South Braintree last night by Governor Alvan T. Fuller was literally that. It was 11:27 P. M. when Warden William Hendry stalked down the corridor in front of their cells and informed them that the governor and his executive council had granted an opportunity to their counsel to make one last fight before the State Courts to save them from the yawning chair in the room beyond. They were doomed to die a few minutes past 12 o'clock.

Outside the prison were more than 800 police and state troopers, armed and vigilant. Behind a "deadline" were bristling machine guns and flaring floodlights. Their presence attested to the fears that the precautions against trouble that the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti entailed. In Boston itself and far beyond, in New York, Chicago, London, Paris, Berlin, Moscow, all over the world, were innumerable thousands waiting word of their death. Probably no other condemned murderers in the history of the world left such a waiting audience, or had so many thousands wrought up over their impending passing.

The respite from death, agreed upon by the governor and his council after hours of debate that continued to within the very shadow of their cells, also brought 12 more days of life to Celestino Madeiros, the Portuguese murderer, who has confessed to the crime for which Sacco and Vanzetti stand convicted. The law thus far, however, has not elected to believe Madeiros. Nevertheless, it was decided he should have 12 more days of life, too. It is a pure gift for the Portuguese, for nobody is making any fight for him.

Garbed for Death Chair.

The men had been garbed for the death chair when the news came. They wore the gray prison trousers and blue and white shirts, with short sleeves. All were resigned to their going. Sacco, weak from his 25 days of hunger striking, lay on his cot, his eyes closed. Vanzetti, stronger and more philosophical, rested quietly. Madeiros, the Portuguese, mumbled in his cell. Occasionally Vanzetti would break into a low song in which his companions in the adjacent cells joined. The song was "Memories."

"Boys," said Warden Hendry, "the governor has given you a respite until August 22. Now I want you to be men, and I want you to eat."

This last was directed at Sacco, who for 25 days has refused food, although it was meant for Vanzetti, too. The fish peddler has eaten only intermittently for a month. Madeiros, for whom no fight was made whose the Charles R. Rogers production for First National, now showing at the American theatre. Both Ken Maynard, the star, and Kathleen Collins, his leading lady, are from Texas.

Maynard was born and raised in Mission, Texas, except for a number of years spent in Ohio at a military school, where he received the degree of civil engineer. His riding originated, curiously enough, not in his home state of Texas where one would imagine it did, but in a cavalry regiment at school. It was on Texas ranches that he developed his amazing ability to do sensational riding tricks, most of his ranch-experience being during holidays when he was home from school.

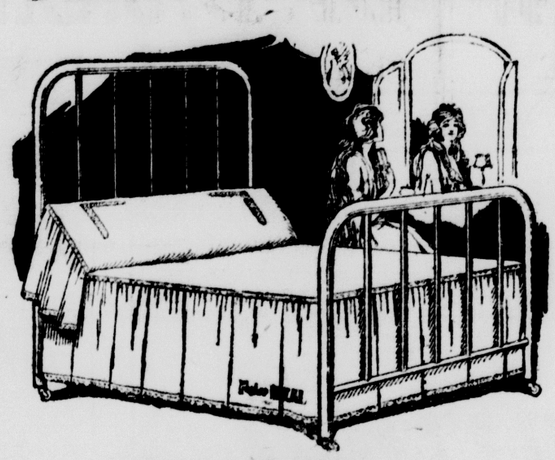

Kathleen Collins is a native of San Antonio, Texas. Kathleen, however, received her schooling in Texas and was still attending a finishing school for young ladies when she entered motion pictures. This was after friends entered her picture in a nation-wide beauty contest conducted by the late Thomas H. Ince.

Kathleen won the contest before she had time to realize that she had been entered. She was Ken's leading lady in "The Unknown Cavalier" and "The Overland Stage," and now appears with him again in "Somewhere in Sonora."

HAIR TRIGGER REPORTS.

It is the age of investigations. The trouble is that many so-called investigations are little more than a basis for an inaccurate, half-baked report Out at the University of Iowa, an investigation, started by a member of the faculty, reveals the "information" that liquor flows among the students as freely as pop, that co-eds drink beer in booths, and do all sorts of things they shouldn't. "Call your bootlegger and have your liquor left on your doorstep in a milk bottle," one student is reported as having said.

Anybody who knows much about colleges and college students knows that the boys and girls who get into the "investigation reports" are the exceptions. It's mostly all talk and it is unfair and unjust that hair-trigger reports are taken seriously.

THE HUMAN TOUCH.

The Queen of Holland will send her daughter to college in the fall. Instead of living by herself, after the usual fashion of royalty, this girl will share her quarters with other girl students. Queen Wilhelmina is a wise woman. She knows that people are people, and that human touch makes majesty more majestic.

THE WILL TO GET THERE.

Dudley Woodbridge is appointed as a teacher in a famous southern university. The name means little to you. But Dudley Woodbridge, with a wife and two children, won a high degree at an Illinois law college. He made his way by peddling newspapers. He has delivered papers for the last 10 years. It is said he walked 20 miles a day.

There is no stopping the man who has within him that "something" which is a mixture of ambition and persistence.

HUMOR HELPS.

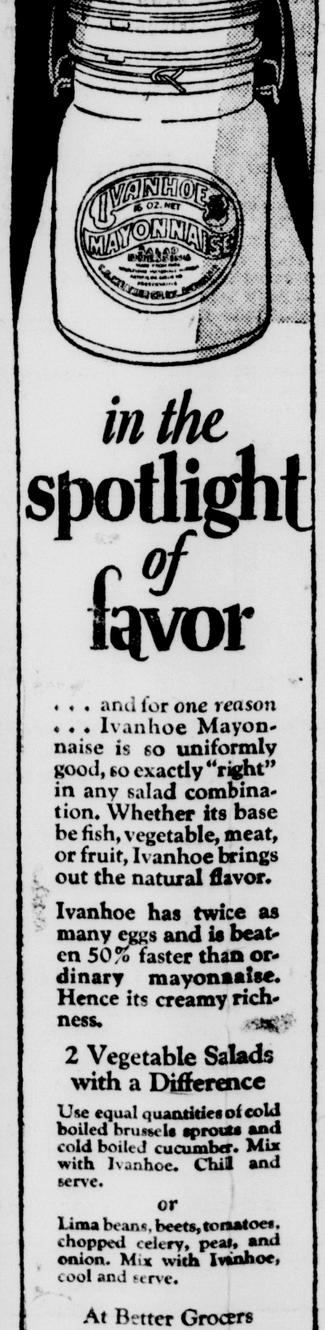

A lawyer, unused to the practices of the supreme court of the United States, addressed the dignified judges as "gentlemen" instead of saying "your honors." He apologized.

"Don't apologize for calling us gentlemen," chuckled Chief Justice Taft. "That's what we try to be."

Humor in high places helps. And Mr. Taft, by making an uncomfortable lawyer comfortable, proved himself a gentleman.

NEEDLESS WORRY.

Worry is the great American disease. No use pretending you can avoid all worry. But a lot of it is unnecessary. For example, why worry about any situation in which you have made up your mind to do what you think you ought to do? In the long run, no harm can come from doing as near right as you know how.

OLDSMOBILE PLANT EXPANDS

Contracts Let at Lansing For $3,000,000 Program.

LANSING, Mich., Aug. 11.—Contracts have been let for buildings in a $3,000,000 Oldsmobile expansion program. Work will be rushed, according to I. J. Reuter, president and general manager of Olds Motor Works, so that Oldsmobile production can be increased by the first of the year.

An increase in net sales of $11,500,000 last year, followed by still greater sales records, and with business mounting to new high levels have made this large expansion advisable, officials report. Retail domestic and export sales for the fiscal year ending August 1, show, up to July 20, a record above any previous fiscal year in the history of the company, say officials.

This large expenditure by Oldsmobile for new buildings and equipment to keep pace with its rapidly expanding business is another evidence of the continued growth of the General Motors Corporation, of which Oldsmobile is a division. General Motors recently announced a record-breaking sales period during the first half of this year.

The new buildings will be erected on the 76-acre Oldsmobile plot in Lansing. They will increase the total floor space by 292,000 square feet, or practically one-third of the floor area now used in making Oldsmobile motors, chassis units and for assembly. The total floor space, including the body plant, will be 1,688,092 square feet.

The contracts already awarded are for buildings which will double the motor plant and enlarge other manufacturing facilities to permit increased production, and will, as well, provide new and additional shipping accommodations.

Silks For Every Occasion—Every Day in the Week.

That we today are a silk loving nation is demonstrated everywhere in every direction. Why? Because it is the natural aim of every woman to always appear at her best and no influence can give the support, mentally or morally, to a woman that the right clothes supply.

We might complete these psychological influences with the physical satisfaction created by the soothing luxurious feel of silk next to the skin. To these "pros" for silken attire must be added the irrefutable evidence that silk is a fabric of service and economy. It may cost a little more over the counter but its wearing qualities and style possibilities—just the fact that today the fabric makes the gown without any expense for trimmings—more than compensates for the difference in price, for there is no greater truth than that quality is remembered long after price is forgotten.

We are showing silks for early Fall wear among which are the following:

Wash Crepe—39 inch width, in 20 popular shades including white which at present is the favorite—$2.00 the yard.

Skinner's Wash Crepe—39 inch width, in various colors including white.—$3.00.

LADY CALLED FATE

BY JOSEPHINE K. LITTLEJOHN

©1927 CENTRAL PRESS ASS'N

JOHN MOORE, New York business man, goes to Tucson, Ariz., on business, expecting to return to New York the next day. He meets a college associate, Philip Morton, who has business in Mexico. Both drink heavily of tequila and in the subsequent mixup in identity Moore finds himself in Mexico.

He has in his possession a portrait of a girl which had been Morton's. The girl, Ruth Henshaw, sends her ambassador, Ramon, to tell the supposed Morton that she will meet him at the church at Tubutama. She needs his help. He meets her, also Clench, an associate of her uncle's, and all go to the ranch.

John meets Manuel Lopez, Rodriguez and Barton Henshaw, the uncle.

CHAPTER TWENTY.

"Poor devil" mused John as he took his seat. "Henshaw is surely cowed." He tried to understand what Rodergulez was saying but the Spanish was much too rapid. He leaned back in his seat and puffed slowly at the ceiling. His game, as he saw it, was to sit tight and let them do all the talking they wished to do—pleasant or otherwise. If, provoked by his taciturnity, they told him more than they intended to, that was their affair. He grinned to himself at that and blew a series of delicate little smoke rings at the point where the candle light faded into the shadows above the table. He was remembering other garrulous souls who had insisted on hurling all they knew—and sometimes more— at the impassive front of Poker-Face Moore.

The torrent of angry Spanish ceased abruptly. Clench, opposite, stared at John uneasily and twisted about in his chair. John was conscious of it but he gave no sign of being so. He knew, too, the exact instant when Manuel Lopez caught the sudden hush in the air and turned, expectant, to John. Then there stole upon him again that sense of loath to fight it off but still it persisted. What was it? He knew that Rodriguez was glowering at him with the whites of his ugly eyes showing. And still he wondered—

It was Barton Henshaw's peevish voice which broke the silence. "Mr. Morton—"

"My name," interrupted John leisurely and very pleasantly, his eyes still following his smoke rings, "is Moore."

"We understand that, but between friends—"

"What you understand is your own concern. What you call me is mine. My name is Moore."

"Sure it is," broke in Clench with great affability. "What the devil difference does it make anyway? Moore we can remember that."

Behind his mask Poker-Face Moore smiled to himself. "Tell the truth to fool a liar!"

"Very well," drawled Barton Henshaw peevishly. "But there are some of us here who aren't so particular—among friends—Mr. Moore. But letting that pass—the time has come the Senor Roderiguez here thinks for the cards to go down on the table."

"Is the Senor Roderiguez dumb? Or did I only dream that I heard him using quite as good English as yours?" asked John, presumably of the ceiling.

"Bah!" the heavy voice of Roderiguez boomed. "Make him understand—"

"See here," whined Henshaw irritably, "I am trying to help you all if you will let me manage it."

The big Mexican subsided again into sullenness.

"Mr. Moore," went on Henshaw, "you have, of course, brought the proper credentials. If we could see them—"

John Moore let his gaze wander slowly down from the ceiling to drop like a plummet into the pale blue eyes of the speaker. Then he spoke with cold deliberation. "I carry no credentials," he said and his lips seemed to curl with derision at this group of amateurs who expected such a thing.

Clench remembered suddenly the story Pedro had told him of the guns. What was the use of riling this man up unnecessarily? They knew all about him that they had to know. "Surely there is no need of credentials from Mr. Moore," he protested.

Roderiguez grunted. "It's the money he must have." But Henshaw clung to his point. "It was agreed about the credentials before Mr. Moore left New York. I don't see—"

John rose to his feet. He knocked the ashes from his pipe and put it in his pocket. "We will end this farce—now" he stated. "I understood you had something to tell me. It seems you wish to quarrel among yourselves. Go to it. But I have other ways of spending my evening." He turned on his heel. His bored indifference to what they did was a thing of art.

Roderiguez was on his feet with a snarl for Henshaw. "If you let him go out there!" he threatened.

"Wait a minute, Mr. Moore," begged Henshaw. "We will waive the credentials. Please sit down. The Senor here is excited over a purely personal matter. It has nothing to do with you. You sit down too," he directed Roderiguez. "I promised you; don't act like a fool."

What had he promised this great brute of a Mexican? Surely nothing in connection with his own niece? He couldn't be— John sat down. He was here to find out.

"Then get down to cases," he ordered peremptorily.

"Exactly," agreed Henshaw. "Clench, bring the papers."

Clench rose with alacrity and fetched from the buffet brown leather portfolio. He extracted from this a map which he spread out before John More. "Here we are," he said "Here's the border; here's El Paso, and here's Nogales." He placed two fingers across the large scale map. "And here are the mines—some mines!" They both grinned and winked as he shifted his fingers slightly. "Practically on the railroads—easy come, easy go!"

"Mr. Moore knows all that," said Henshaw impatiently.

"Not all all," said John coolly. "This is what I am here to find out. He bent over the map. "El Paso and Nogales. And you say the mines are here?"

Clench grinned still more broadly. "Sure! They're there. Real holes in the ground and silver in the holes they do say."

"You have never examined them yourself?" suggested John politely. He had located Tubutama—and here was the ranch marked.

"No," said Clench. "I don't fancy diving into a thousand feet of water."

"Just so," said John.

"Why we talk of the mines?" broke in Roderiguez.

"You yourself suggested getting down to cases—Mr. Moore," said Henshaw.

John Moore looked up at them. "We talk of mines because I am a mining engineer and interested—in these mines," he said.

"Sure he is," said Clench. "Mr. Moore is down here to sell us mining machinery and nothing else but!"

"Clearly put," said John.

"Bah!" said Roderiguez, "are you going to deliver to us ten thousand rifles and ammunition or—not!"

"Not!" said John Moore promptly, pleasantly firmly. "Nothing of the

The LADY CALLED FATE

BY JOSEPHINE K. LITTLEJOHN

©1927 CENTRAL PRESS ASS'N

JOHN MOORE, New York business man, goes to Tucson, Ariz., on business, expecting to return to New York the next day. He meets a college associate, Philip Morton, who has business in Mexico. Both drink heavily of tequila and in the subsequent mixup in identity Moore finds himself in Mexico.

He has in his possession a portrait of a girl which had been Morton's. The girl, Ruth Henshaw, sends her ambassador, Ramon, to tell the supposed Morton that she will meet him at the church at Tubutama. She needs his help. He meets her, also Clench, an associate of her uncle's, and all go to the ranch.

John meets Manuel Lopez, Roderigues and Barton Henshaw, the uncle.

CHAPTER TWENTY.

"Poor devil" mused John as he took his seat. "Henshaw is surely cowed." He tried to understand what Rodergulez was saying but the Spanish was much too rapid. He leaned back in his seat and puffed slowly at the ceiling. His game, as he saw it, was to sit tight and let them do all the talking they wished to do—pleasant or otherwise. If, provoked by his taciturnity, they told him more than they intended to, that was their affair. He grinned to himself at that and blew a series of delicate little smoke rings at the point where the candle light faded into the shadows above the table. He was remembering other garrulous souls who had insisted on hurling all they knew—and sometimes more— at the impassive front of Poker-Face Moore.

The torrent of angry Spanish ceased abruptly. Clench, opposite, stared at John uneasily and twisted about in his chair. John was conscious of it but he gave no sign of being so. He knew, too, the exact instant when Manuel Lopez caught the sudden hush in the air and turned, expectant, to John. Then there stole upon him again that sense of loath to fight it off but still it persisted. What was it? He knew that Roderiguez was glowering at him with the whites of his ugly eyes showing. And still he wondered—

It was Barton Henshaw's peevish voice which broke the silence. "Mr. Morton—"

"My name," interrupted John leisurely and very pleasantly, his eyes still following his smoke rings, "is Moore."

"We understand that, but between friends—"

"What you understand is your own concern. What you call me is rides. My name is Moore."

"Sure it is," broke in Clench with great affability. "What the devil difference does it make anyway? Moore we can remember that."

Behind his mask Poker-Face Moore smiled to himself. "Tell the truth to fool a liar!"

"Very well," drawled Barton Henshaw peevishly. "But there are some of us here who aren't so particular—among friends—Mr. Moore. But letting that pass—the time has come the Senor Roderiguez here thinks for the cards to go down on the table."

"Is the Senor Roderiguez dumb? Or did I only dream that I heard him using quite as good English as yours?" asked John, presumably of the ceiling.

"Bah!" the heavy voice of Roderiguez boomed. "Make him understand—"

"See here," whined Henshaw irritably, "I am trying to help you all if you will let me manage it."

The big Mexican subsided again into sullenness.

"Mr. Moore," went on Henshaw, "you have, of coarse, brought the proper credentials. If we could see them—"

John Moore let his gaze wander slowly down from the ceiling to drop like a plummet into the pale blue eyes of the speaker. Then he spoke with cold deliberation. "I carry no credentials," he said and his lips seemed to curl with derision at this group of amateurs who expected such a thing.

How Much, Mr. Candidate?

The Columbiana county board of deputy state supervisors of elections today called the attention of candidates who sought preferment in the Republican and Democratic primaries on Tuesday, to the provisions of the corrupt practices act which require a sworn statement of campaign receipts and expenditures.

Within ten days from the late of the balloting, or not later than Friday, August 19, unsuccessful candidates as well as party nominees must file a detailed statement of contributions and disbursement in their race for municipal offices. This applies to all persons whose names appeared on the ballots in the four cities and four villages which participated in the primaries.

Failure to comply with the law means a fine or imprisonment, or both, for the delinquents and the added penalty of withholding of certificate of nomination in the case of a successful candidate. Under the law, election officials must report the names of delinquents to the prosecuting attorney who is empowered to press the cases in court.

A hint to the wise should be sufficient.

More Tuberculosis

According to the chief of staff of the Wisconsin Tuberculosis association, there is an increasing number of girls and young women between the ages of 15 and 25 breaking down and entering the state's sanatoria to be treated for tuberculosis. He suggests several reasons for this, such as dieting in an effort to be stylishly thin, wearing insufficient warm clothing in cold weather, smoking and the strenuous social life that permits late hours and too little rest for growing girls.

Some of these reasons are undoubtedly valid. Fortunately the slat figure, even for the flapper, is no longer stylish and the unwise diet fads will go out with it. Whether or not smoking is causing tuberculosis among women is something that needs further investigation by the doctors. The matter of clothing, too, is one that must vary with the locality and the daily routine of the individual. The girl who rides about in a closed car and spends her indoor time in well-heated rooms and her outdoor time in sports costume is not so greatly in need of warm clothing as the girl who rides on street cars and stands on windy corners waiting for them.

Probably the most serious and valid of the reasons given is the one about insufficient rest. Rest is a word not found in the flapper's or debutante's dictionary.. They believe they can keep going day and night, and their boundless energy and vitality is truly marvelous. Apparently, it is not inexhaustible.

Smoke And Work

The comptroller at the New Jersey statehouse in Trenton rules that girl stenographers and clerks may not smoke during office hours, and some of the girls are "het up" about it.

They needn't be. The comptroller justly observes that the men in his department are not permitted, either, to smoke at their desks, and he doesn't see why an exception should be made of the women.

For that matter, the work of the world would probably be performed better if there were rules everywhere against people smoking at desks. Smokers accustomed to self-observation usually find that smoking is a hindrance to good work, and so postpone their indulgence until the work is done.

Nicotine may rouse the fancy and promote noble thoughts and emotions, but not practical effort. The smoker feels himself more effective while under the influence of the drug, but as a matter of fact is usually less effective. Dulling one's senses and inducing complacent dream states is better reserved for hours of idleness and recreation.

Old Age

Mme. Schumann-Heinck, returned to America and frankly admitting her 66 years, shows herself as wise as she is musical. She will soon start on another concert tour lasting seven or eight months and calling for more than 70 arduous engagements.

"I am still the old war horse champing at the bit," she says. "I'll be the war horse to the end. Somehow I cannot be old—I do not believe that I shall ever be old. Age is something of the mind, and my mind is young. I feel as young as Lindbergh."

Yes, when people grow old it is in their minds more than their bodies. The slant of mind is the thing that tells. You know an old person when, whatever his age, he looks backward rather than forward, and you recognize a young person when he looks forward regardless of years. The middle-aged man or woman whose thoughts are all of the past is dead already. The octogenarian busily planning for the future, or happily contemplating other people's plans for the future, had no death in him.

Anyone who "says it with flowers "in England has to learn a very extensive language now. There are 3,000 more kinds of roses, 10,000 more kinds of gladioli and 6,500 more kinds of dahlias than there were 20 years ago. The florist industry needs a Hoover to simplify and standardize it.

The fashionable week-end generally has a weak ending.

As far as we're concerned, Commander Byrd may have all the glory there is in the Antarctic. We can't imagine any piece of real estate that appeals to us less than the Antarctic Continent.

The Summer Widower—— By Fontaine Fox

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—It is frequently stated that Broadway is the most agreeable of all places in which to be broke. It may be no disgrace to be poor here but paraphrasing Kin Hubbard it might as well be. Indeed there are few spots where a money valuation is so high.

Broadway's sympathy for the broke is expressed with a pitying "He was a good kid when he had it!" Almost any person who loiters along Broadway can point out a half dozen to the block who were rolling in kudos a year or so ago but are stony now.

They may have backed a show, played ponies that suddenly decided not to be in a hurry or became a sugar daddy. Broadway has a hundred and one shrewd tricks to make a fat wallet lean. And the wiser they are the harder they seem to plop.

The unfortunate who go broke rarely stage a financial comeback along the street that whips the universe. They must go elsewhere and begin over again. A score of so called "millionaire kids" have had their fling only to wonder how it all vanished so quickly.

They discover that even the headwaters who uncorked their lowest bows in flushed days greet them in adversity with a refrigerated reserve. It requires money to make Broadway click. It has no time for "has beens." It is interested in the eternal now.

Men who have successfully bucked the so-called Broadway game are those with plenty of money and sense of restraint. They dipped into the gaiety as a young clerk goes to Coney Island—a mere lark. And returned to their desks to forget all about it until the next fling.

Broadway claims those who are perpetually thrilled by its false camaraderie. A well filled purse draws fair weather friends as sugar attracts flies. To those seeking only pleasure there is no denying its opulence and charm. But as for the broke, ask some members of the Tin Cup Brigade on almost any corner, Second or Third Avenue has much more sympathy for the broke than Broadway.

The last stand of old New York horses unfit for further work is a packing company in Brooklyn. They are bought slaughtered and shipped as horse meat to the trade in France and Belgium which buys its meat from the Boucherie Chevaline.

Horses for work purposes have not gone out. Thousands are used daily for trucking. On East 24th street a horse auction sale is in daily progress and the old time horse trader is as conspicious as he was in other days.

It has been discovered that the men who invented ice cream sodas are alive and residing in New York. One is named John Robertson and the other is Francis Tietz. They did not make a penny out of their invention although others made millions. The yearly profit of one soda fountain in the Times Square section was said to be $200,000. A 50 cents a glass ice cream saloon is in readiness for Park Avenue.

A new taxicab company announces it is grounding drivers in courtesy before giving them positions. The instructor is an experienced driver who says he has doubled his income by being polite. He received his training in Chicago which has the best taxi service in America.

I do not believe taxicab companies lose much through the discourtesy of drivers toward fares. They are polite enough with a tip in prospect. It is the attitude toward pedestrians crossing the streets which makes many vow they will never use taxis if they can help it. A driver should realize every wayfarer along the street is a potential patron.

Every time the sophisticated magazines are bankrupt for an idea they have an article prepared on the passing of the stage door Johnny. Yet at every stage door nightly they are waiting. They are often there in full dress just as pictured in the comic journals. And looking just as sappy

THE GROWTH OF AN ERROR

Since Charles M. Schwab fell from grace and became a semi-professional after-dinner speaker, he has been retailing across banquet tables an incident which he claims figured in a personal experience. Still, it is well to view with suspicion the alleged reminiscences of any after-dinner speaker. It may be that the thing didn't happen to him at all. Perhaps he only heard it somewhere. Be that as it may, Mr. Schwab states that during one of his trips to Europe he met a gentleman whose breast was almost entirely covered with decorations bestowed by various continental governments.

"Tell me, sir," said Mr. Schwab, "the story of the heroisms or the achievements, as the case may be, for which you were awarded this extraordinary number of honors?"

"I shall be perfectly frank with you," stated the man. "This large medal here—the one containing the pigeon-blood ruby in the fringe of amethysts—was the first to be bestowed upon me. I received all the others as a result of having received that one."

"And for what were you given the first one?" inquired Schwab.

"Oh," said the European, "that one was given to me by mistake."

HASKINS' LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

The Candy Business.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 11—All is not sweet with the candy business. On the contrary, it is reported that there are things about it that are decidedly sour. Trade papers are expressing alarm over the existing conditions in the business, manufacturers and distributors are worried, and the men who direct the trade organizations are asserting that something has to be done about it.

That this is not mere "trade talk" is indicated by the statement attributed to an official of the Department of Commerce who was asked where, in his business, the candy business was going.

"It's going to hell; that's where it's going," he is said to have replied.

To the general public that has witnessed the recent remarkable expansion in the candy business this may come as a matter of considerable surprise. It is true that the industry has grown rapidly within the last few years and more particularly since the World war. It has had, in fact, a greater growth in the last quarter of a century than it had in the hundred years preceding. It is now approximately a billion-dollar industry. It sells on an average $8 worth of its products every year to every man woman and child in the United States. Prohibition gave it a great boost, for persons accustomed to alcoholic drinks who are deprived of them, crave sweets. On the whole, consumers are paying more for their candy while at the same time their rate of consumption has increased.

What, then, can be the matter with the business? No one, it seems, is prepared to make a conclusive answer to that question, but from the complaints that are being heard an idea may be obtained as to some of the disturbing factors in the situation. It may be noted, also, that the National Confectioners' Association is making a study of the problem and has raised a fund of more than $1,000,000 that will be expended in an advertising campaign that it is hoped will prove at least a partial solution.

Over-Production is Seen.

A fundamental trouble with the industry, it is said, is overproduction. More candy is being made than the country can consume. Also it is charged that there are too many manufacturers — particularly too many small manufacturers who can operate on small capital—and that the result is unintelligent if not unfair competition and a lamentable lack of standardized trade practices. There is too much striving for novelties and manufacturers make so many different kinds or pieces that their costs run unduly high. This diversity of product, with 3,000 or more manufacturers trying to outdo each other with distinctive brands, may appeal to the public, but it raises hob with the industry.

The distribution or retail end of the business likewise is in a state that works hardship on the manufacturers. There is too much price cutting on the part of retailers with whom candy is but a side line and who can always find manufacturers who will quote them prices so low as to spell disaster for their competitors and grief for other manufacturers.

Candy is retailed by almost every kind of establishment from auto accessory shops and filling stations to stationery and book stores. This was revealed strikingly in the retail census of the city of Baltimore recently made under the auspices of the United States Chamber of Commerce. This census showed 976 regular candy and confectionery establishments in the city and 1,914 other stores and shops where candy was sold.

Of these other candy retailers, 1,185 were groceries and delicatessens, 132 were soft drink and ice cream emporiums, 194 were drug stores, 147 were cigar and tobacco shops, 35 were bakeries, 53 were restaurants, 21 were fruit and vegetable stores, 24 were five and ten cent stores, 48 were dry goods and notions stores, 9 were department stores, and 6 were general stores.

Places where it may occasion surprise to know that candy was sold as a side line included 1 auto accessory, 2 clothing and furnishings stores, 1 coal, wood, and ice dealer, 11 dairy and poultry products establishments, 1 filling station, 40 meat, poultry, and fish dealers, 1 music store, 4 stationery and book stores, 3 toys and game shops, and 1 retailer of motorcycles and bicycles.

Also it was shown that candy was sold frequently in theatre lobbies, school canteens, baseball parks, church festivals, and amusement parks.

How Much, Mr. Candidate?

The Columbiana county board of deputy state supervisors of elections today called the attention of candidates who sought preferment in the Republican and Democratic primaries on Tuesday, to the provisions of the corrupt practices act which require a sworn statement of campaign receipts and expenditures.

Within ten days from the late of the balloting, or not later than Friday, August 19, unsuccessful candidates as well as party nominees must file a detailed statement of contributions and disbursement in their race for municipal offices. This applies to all persons whose names appeared on the ballots in the four cities and four villages which participated in the primaries.

Failure to comply with the law means a fine or imprisonment, or both, for the delinquents and the added penalty of withholding of certificate of nomination in the case of a successful candidate. Under the law, election officials must report the names of delinquents to the prosecuting attorney who is empowered to press the cases in court.

A hint to the wise should be sufficient.

More Tuberculosis

According to the chief of staff of the Wisconsin Tuberculosis association, there is an increasing number of girls and young women between the ages of 15 and 25 breaking down and entering the state's sanatoria to be treated for tuberculosis. He suggests several reasons for this, such as dieting in an effort to be stylishly thin, wearing insufficient warm clothing in cold weather, smoking and the strenuous social life that permits late hours and too little rest for growing girls.

Some of these reasons are undoubtedly valid. Fortunately the slat figure, even for the flapper, is no longer stylish and the unwise diet fads will go out with it. Whether or not smoking is causing tuberculosis among women is something that needs further investigation by the doctors. The matter of clothing, too, is one that must vary with the locality and the daily routine of the individual. The girl who rides about in a closed car and spends her indoor time in well-heated rooms and her outdoor time in sports costume is not so greatly in need of warm clothing as the girl who rides on street cars and stands on windy corners waiting for them.

Probably the most serious and valid of the reasons given is the one about insufficient rest. Rest is a word not found in the flapper's or debutante's dictionary.. They believe they can keep going day and night, and their boundless energy and vitality is truly marvelous. Apparently, it is not inexhaustible.

Smoke And Work

The comptroller at the New Jersey statehouse in Trenton rules that girl stenographers and clerks may not smoke during office hours, and some of the girls are "het up" about it.

They needn't be. The comptroller justly observes that the men in his department are not permitted, either, to smoke at their desks, and he doesn't see why an exception should be made of the women.

For that matter, the work of the world would probably be performed better if there were rules everywhere against people smoking at desks. Smokers accustomed to self-observation usually find that smoking is a hindrance to good work, and so postpone their indulgence until the work is done.

Nicotine may rouse the fancy and promote noble thoughts and emotions, but not practical effort. The smoker feels himself more effective while under the influence of the drug, but as a matter of fact is usually less effective. Dulling one's senses and inducing complacent dream states is better reserved for hours of idleness and recreation.

Old Age

Mme. Schumann-Heinck, returned to America and frankly admitting her 66 years, shows herself as wise as she is musical. She will soon start on another concert tour lasting seven or eight months and calling for more than 70 arduous engagements.

"I am still the old war horse champing at the bit," she says. 'I'll be the war horse to the end. Somehow I cannot be old—I do not believe that I shall ever be old. Age is something of the mind, and my mind is young. I feel as young as Lindbergh."

Yes, when people grow old it is in their minds more than their bodies. The slant of mind is the thing that tells. You know an old person when, whatever his age, he looks backward rather than forward, and you recognize a young person when he looks forward regardless of years. The middle-aged man or woman whose thoughts are all of the past is dead already. The octogenarian busily planning for the future, or happily contemplating other people's plans for the future, had no death in him.

Anyone who "says it with flowers "in England has to learn a very extensive language now. There are 3,000 more kinds of roses, 10,000 more kinds of gladioli and 6,500 more kinds of dahlias than there were 20 years ago. The florist industry needs a Hoover to simplify and standardize it.

The Summer Widower—— By Fontaine Fox

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—It is frequently stated that Broadway is the most agreeable of all places in which to be broke. It may be no disgrace to be poor here but paraphrasing Kin Hubbard it might as well be. Indeed there are few spots where a money valuation is so high.

Broadway's sympathy for the broke is expressed with a pitying "He was a good kid when he had it!" Almost any person who loiters along Broadway can point out a half dozen to the block who were rolling in kudos a year or so ago but are stony now.

They may have backed a show, played ponies that suddenly decided not to be in a hurry or became a sugar daddy. Broadway has a hundred and one shrewd tricks to make a fat wallet lean. And the wiser they are the harder they seem to plop.

The unfortunate who go broke rarely stage a financial comeback along the street that whips the universe. They must go elsewhere and begin over again. A score of so called "millionaire kids" have had their fling only to wonder how it all vanished so quickly.

They discover that even the headwaters who uncorked their lowest bows in flushed days greet them in adversity with a refrigerated reserve. It requires money to make Broadway click. It has no time for "has beens." It is interested in the eternal now.

Men who have successfully bucked the so-called Broadway game are those with plenty of money and sense of restraint. They dipped into the gaiety as a young clerk goes to Coney Island—a mere lark. And returned to their desks to forget all about it until the next fling.

Broadway claims those who are perpetually thrilled by its false camaraderie. A well filled purse draws fair weather friends as sugar attracts flies. To those seeking only pleasure there is no denying its opulence and charm. But as for the broke, ask some members of the Tin Cup Brigade on almost any corner, Second or Third Avenue has much more sympathy for the broke than Broadway.

The last stand of old New York horses unfit for further work is a packing company in Brooklyn. They are bought slaughtered and shipped as horse meat to the trade in France and Belgium which buys its meat from the Boucherie Chevaline.

Horses for work purposes have not gone out. Thousands are used daily for trucking. On East 24th street a horse auction sale is in daily progress and the old time horse trader is as conspicious as he was in other days.

It has been discovered that the men who invented ice cream sodas are alive and residing in New York. One is named John Robertson and the other is Francis Tietz. THE GROWTH OF AN ERROR

Since Charles M. Schwab fell from grace and became a semi-professional after-dinner speaker, he has been retailing across banquet tables an incident which he claims figured in a personal experience. Still, it is well to view with suspicion the alleged reminiscences of any after-dinner speaker. It may be that the thing didn't happen to him at all. Perhaps he only heard it somewhere. Be that as it may, Mr. Schwab states that during one of his trips to Europe he met a gentleman whose breast was almost entirely covered with decorations bestowed by various continental governments.

"Tell me, sir," said Mr. Schwab, "the story of the heroisms or the achievements, as the case may be, for which you were awarded this extraordinary number of honors?"

"I shall be perfectly frank with you," stated the man. "This large medal here—the one containing the pigeon-blood ruby in the fringe of amethysts—was the first to be bestowed upon me. I received all the others as a result of having received that one."

"And for what were you given the first one?" inquired Schwab.

"Oh," said the European, "that one was given to me by mistake."

HASKINS' LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

The Candy Business.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 11.—All is not sweet with the candy business. On the contrary, it is reported that there are things about it that are decidedly sour. Trade papers are expressing alarm over the existing conditions in the business, manufacturers and distributors are worried, and the men who direct the trade organizations are asserting that something has to be done about it.

That this is not mere "trade talk" is indicated by the statement attributed to an official of the Department of Commerce who was asked where, in his business, the candy business was going.

"It's going to hell; that's where it's going," he is said to have replied.

To the general public that has witnessed the recent remarkable expansion in the candy business this may come as a matter of considerable surprise. It is true that the industry has grown rapidly within the last few years and more particularly since the World war. It has had, in fact, a greater growth in the last quarter of a century than it had in the hundred years preceding. It is now approximately a billion-dollar industry. It sells on an average $8 worth of its products every year to every man, woman and child in the United States. Prohibition gave it a great boost, for persons accustomed to alcoholic drinks who are deprived of them, crave sweets. On the whole, consumers are paying more for their candy while at the same time their rate of consumption has increased.

What, then, can be the matter with the business? No one, it seems, is prepared to make a conclusive answer to that question, but from the complaints that are being heard an idea may be obtained as to some of the disturbing factors in the situation. It may be noted, also, that the National Confectioners' Association is making a study of the problem and has raised a fund of more than $1,000,000 that will be expended in an advertising campaign that it is hoped will prove at least a partial solution.

Over-Production is Seen.

A fundamental trouble with the industry, it is said, is overproduction. More candy is being made than the country can consume. Also it is charged that there are too many manufacturers — particularly too many small manufacturers who can operate on small capital—and that the result is unintelligent if not unfair competition and a lamentable lack of standardized trade practices. There is too much striving for novelties and manufacturers make so many different kinds or pieces that their costs run unduly high. This diversity of product, with 3,000 or more manufacturers trying to outdo each other with distinctive brands, may appeal to the public, but it raises hob with the industry.

The distribution or retail end of the business likewise is in a state that works hardship on the manufacturers. There is too much price cutting on the part of retailers with whom candy is but a side line and who can always find manufacturers who will quote them prices so low as to spell disaster for their competitors and grief for other manufacturers.

Candy is retailed by almost every kind of establishment from auto accessory shops and filling stations to stationery and book stores. This was revealed strikingly in the retail census of the city of Baltimore recently made under the auspices of the United States Chamber of Commerce. This census showed 976 regular candy and confectionery establishments in the city and 1,914 other stores and shops where candy was sold.

Of these other candy retailers, 1,185 were groceries and delicatessens, 132 were soft drink and ice cream emporiums, 194 were drug stores, 147 were cigar and tobacco shops, 35 were bakeries, 53 were restaurants, 21 were fruit and vegetable stores, 24 were five and ten cent stores, 48 were dry goods and notions stores, 9 were department stores, and 6 were general stores.

Places where it may occasion surprise to know that candy was sold as a side line included 1 auto accessory, 2 clothing and furnishings stores, 1 coal, wood, and ice dealer, 11 dairy and poultry products establishments, 1 filling station, 40 meat, poultry, and fish dealers, 1 music store, 4 stationery and book stores, 3 toys and game shops, and 1 retailer of motorcycles and bicycles.

Also it was shown that candy was sold frequently in theatre lobbies, school canteens, baseball parks, church festivals, and amusement parks.

I do not believe taxicab companies lose much through the discourtesy of drivers toward fares. They are polite enough with a tip in prospect. It is the attitude toward pedestrians crossing the streets which makes many vow they will never use taxis if they can help it. A driver should realize every wayfarer along the street is a potential patron.

WELLSVILLE SEWER SURVEY COMMITTEE IS NAMED

CITY COUNCIL SELECTS SEVEN FOR BIG JOB

Traction Company and City Engineer Will Assist.

ACTION URGED

D. S. Brookman Will Head Citizens' Board.

Committee of seven Wellsville citizens, named by Council President Clyde Baker at last night's adjourned meeting, will begin work immediately on their task of inspecting drainage conditions from Fourteenth street to the west end of the city.

Here is the committee:

First ward, D. S. Brookman (chairman); secand ward—C. C. Ewing; third ward—Frank Kerr; fourth ward—Isaac Cable; at large—Martin Foley, C. J. Berg and J. S. McLane.

The committee will inspect all sections of the city from Fourteenth street west where sewers have been giving trouble and will return recommendations to city council as to the best possible methods of making improvements.

To some extent the committee's duties were outlined by Solicitor S. S. Luccock. He pointed out that the city's bonded indebtness is well up to the limit. The committee, he explained, will be expected to confer with the city auditor to determine financial conditions that enter into the project. The city's borded indebtedness now, he made clear is well above $400,000, and the law sets a limit of $500,000.

The committee, he explained further, can determine the carrying power best accommodating heavy flows of of present sewers and methods of water and will be aided in this task by R. D. McGill, city engineer, and Engineer Frederick of the traction company.

The city, Luccock said, wants to eliminate the danger point in regard to heavy rains and storms, and in the event that it is decided to submit bond issues to the vote of the people, immediate action will be necessary in order that resolutions can be filed with the board of deputy supervisors of elections.

Isaac Cable, of the fourth ward, who, along with Frank Kerr, of the third ward and C. C. Ewing of the second, attended the meeting, told council that "you can't expect us to be governed by financial conditions because we're going to make recommendations for what we think will be the best methods of improvement." At the same time, Cable pointed out, the committee will attempt to placate property owners who are threatening damage suits as a result of alleged damage to their buildings caused by the inadequacy of sewers.

Solicitor Luccock pointed out that it is entirely possible the damaged property owners will hold up court action if it is seen that steps will be taken to improve conditions.

Glee Club Concert.

The Twin City Glee club will give a concert on Friday evening, August 12, in the Hammondsville Christian church.

This group of colored musicians has performed in various communities in the district, offering a well balanced program.

COUPLE WED IN LA GRANGE, ILL.

Miss Bertha Lonie Bride of Lester Forbes, of Wellsville.

Miss Bertha Isabel Lonie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Lonie, of LaGrange, Ill., and Lester Noble Forbes, son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Forbes, of Broadway, Wellsville, were married Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents in South Kensington avenue, LaGrange.

The ceremony was performed by Dr. Robert Pugh, pastor of the Presbyterian church and an old friend of the family. Preceding the service a program of nuptial music was given by Mrs. Paul Frederick of Berwyn, pianist, and Miss Eleanor Mercereau of LaGrange, violinist.

To the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Mrs. Frederick, the bride, with her matron of honor, Mrs. William Nuesse, of Turtle Lake, Wis., descended the stairway and was met by her father who gave her in marriage. The bridegroom and his best man, Donald Forbes, a brother, awaited the bride at the fireplace which was artistically banked with flowers and ferns and lighted by cathedral tapers.

The bride was attractive in a charming gown of white georgette crepe, simply fashioned with basque waist and full skirt. Her lovely wedding veil which has been in the family for some time, was arranged with clusters of orange blossoms at each side of the cap effect. She carried a shower bouquet of roses, lilies of the valley and swansonia. Mrs. Forbes served as Mrs. Nuesse's bridesmaid one year ago.

Following the ceremony the guests were invited to the Green Shutters Tea house where a wedding luncheon was served. Covers were laid for 27 at one table, the appointments carrying out the dainty color scheme of pink and white.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Forbes are graduates of Ohio State university. Mrs. Forbes is affiliated with Phi Pi Epsilon sorority and Mr. Forbes is a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. The bride has been engaged in psychological work in the LaGrange public schools. Mr. Forbes is an electrical engineer with the Northern Indiana Public Service company at Hammond, Ind.

The young couple left for a wedding trip through the west and will spend some time at Yellowstone Park and Colorado Springs, Colo. They will be at home after Sept. 1 at the corner of Vine and Meadow lane, Hammond, Ind.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. James A. Forbes, and son, Donald Forbes, and Miss Bertha Noble of Wellsville, O.; Mrs. Frederick of Berwyn and Mrs. Neusse of Turtle Lake, Wis.

I wish to thank the voters for their splendid support at the nomination, and, if elected, I will still work for the interests of the people.

CLYDE BAKER

Although defeated, I desire to thank my friends for their support at the primaries and will try to serve their best interests the remainder of my term.

APPROVE 20TH STREET SEWER

Ordinance is Passed as Emergency by Solons.

Determining ordinance for the construction of the Twentieth street storm sewer was passed on third reading under suspension of rules by council last night.

The ordinance a week ago had been passed on first reading.

Councilman Connor objected to the emergency passing of the measure, pointing out that if a committee was going to be appointed to consider sewers as a whole, the Twentieth street sewer should also come under its supervision as well.

The vote was 6 to 1, sufficient to carrying the ordinance.

There being no remonstrance from property owners, council enacted an ordinance closing the alley between Buckeye avenue and Vulcan alley.

At the suggestion of Mayor W. L. Fogo the street and light committee will inspect light standards to determine the color for painting; a telephone pole near the Madden gasoline station in Third street which, it has been suggested, should be moved, and will consider the advisability of numbering light poles and standards in order that accurate reports may be made in outage cases.

To Visit in Iowa.

Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Mitchell and son, Clyde, of Aten avenue, will leave today for a trip to Tipton, Iowa, where they will visit Mr. Mitchell's brother. Enroute home, Clyde will spend a few days in Benton Harbor, Mich.

Are you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, commonly called rheumatism, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

WELLSVILLE SEWER SURVEY COMMITTEE IS NAMED

CITY COUNCIL SELECTS SEVEN FOR BIG JOB

Traction Company and City Engineer Will Assist.

ACTION URGED

D. S. Brookman Will Head Citizens' Board.

Committee of seven Wellsville citizens, named by Council President Clyde Baker at last night's adjourned meeting, will begin work immediately on their task of inspecting drainage conditions from Fourteenth street to the west end of the city.

Here is the committee:

First ward, D. S. Brookman (chairman); secand ward—C. C. Ewing; third ward—Frank Kerr; fourth ward—Isaac Cable; at large—Martin Foley, C. J. Berg and J. S. McLane.

The committee will inspect all sections of the city from Fourteenth street west where sewers have been giving trouble and will return recommendations to city council as to the best possible methods of making improvements.

To some extent the committee's duties were outlined by Solicitor S. S. Luccock. He pointed out that the city's bonded indebtness is well up to the limit. The committee, he explained, will be expected to confer with the city auditor to determine financial conditions that enter into the project. The city's borded indebtedness now, he made clear is well above $400,000, and the law sets a limit of $500,000.

The committee, he explained further, can determine the carrying power best accommodating heavy flows of of present sewers and methods of water and will be aided in this task by R. D. McGill, city engineer, and Engineer Frederick of the traction company.

The city, Luccock said, wants to eliminate the danger point in regard to heavy rains and storms, and in the event that it is decided to submit bond issues to the vote of the people, immediate action will be necessary in order that resolutions can be filed with the board of deputy supervisors of elections.

Isaac Cable, of the fourth ward, who, along with Frank Kerr, of the third ward and C. C. Ewing of the second, attended the meeting, told council that "you can't expect us to be governed by financial conditions because we're going to make recommendations for what we think will be the best methods of improvement." At the same time, Cable pointed out, the committee will attempt to placate property owners who are threatening damage suits as a result of alleged damage to their buildings caused by the inadequacy of sewers.

Solicitor Luccock pointed out that it is entirely possible the damaged property owners will hold up court action if it is seen that steps will be taken to improve conditions.

Glee Club Concert.

The Twin City Glee club will give a concert on Friday evening, August 12, in the Hammondsville Christian church.

COUPLE WED IN LA GRANGE, ILL.

Miss Bertha Lonie Bride of Lester Forbes, of Wellsville.

Miss Bertha Isabel Lonie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Lonie, of LaGrange, Ill., and Lester Noble Forbes ,son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Forbes, of Broadway, Wellsville, were married Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents in South Kensington avenue, LaGrange.

The ceremony was performed by Dr. Robert Pugh, pastor of the Presbyterian church and an old friend of the family. Preceding the service a program of nuptial music was given by Mrs. Paul Frederick of Berwyn, pianist, and Miss Eleanor Mercereau of LaGrange, violinist.

To the strains of Mendelssoun's wedding march played by Mrs. Frederick, the bride, with her matron of honor, Mrs. William Nuesse, of Turtle Lake, Wis., descended the stairway and was met by her father who gave her in marriage. The bridegroom and his best man, Donald Forbes, a brother, awaited the bride at the fireplace which was artistically banked with flowers and ferns and lighted by cathedral tapers.

The bride was attractive in a charming gown of white georgette crepe, simply fashioned with basque waist and full skirt. Her lovely wedding veil which has been in the family for some time, was arranged with clusters of orange blossoms at each side of the cap effect. She carried a shower bouquet of roses, lilies of the valley and swansonia. Mrs. Forbes served as Mrs. Nuesse's bridesmaid one year ago.

Following the ceremony the guests were invited to the Green Shutters Tea house where a wedding luncheon was served. Covers were laid for 27 at one table, the appointments carrying out the dainty color scheme of pink and white.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Forbes are graduates of Ohio State university. Mrs. Forbes is affiliated with Phi Pi Epsilon sorority and Mr. Forbes is a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. The bride has been engaged in psychological work in the LaGrange public schools. Mr. Forbes is an electrical engineer with the Northern Indiana Public Service company at Hammond, Ind.

The young couple left for a wedding trip through the west and will spend some time at Yellowstone Park and Colorado Springs, Colo. They will be at home after Sept. 1 at the corner of Vine and Meadow lane, Hammond, Ind.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. James A. Forbes and son, Donald Forbes, and Miss Bertha Noble of Wellsville, O.; Mrs. Frederick of Berwyn and Mrs. Neusse of Turtle Lake, Wis.

I wish to thank the voters for their splendid support at the nomination, and, if elected, I will still work for the interests of the people.

Although defeated, I desire to thank my friends for their support at the primaries and will try to serve their best interests the remainder of my term.

APPROVE 20TH STREET SEWER

Ordinance is Passed as Emergency by Solons.

Determining ordinance for the construction of the Twentieth street storm sewer was passed on third reading under suspension of rules by council last night.

The ordinance a week ago had been passed on first reading.

Councilman Connor objected to the emergency passing of the measure, pointing out that if a committee was going to be appointed to consider sewers as a whole, the Twentieth street sewer should also come under its supervision as well.

The vote was 6 to 1, sufficient to carrying the ordinance.

There being no remonstrance from property owners, council enacted an ordinance closing the alley between Buckeye avenue and Vulcan alley.

At the suggestion of Mayor W. L. Fogo the street and light committee will inspect light standards to determine the color for painting; a telephone pole near the Madden gasoline station in Third street which, it has been suggested, should be moved, and will consider the advisability of numbering light poles and standards in order that accurate reports may be made in outage cases.

Kills Pesky Bed-Bugs Roaches and Ants

Doctors declare that bed-bugs, roaches and other vermin are the most to be feared means of spreading such diseases as consumption, spinal meningitis and other infectious troubles. There is no disgrace in getting bed-bugs in your home, because that can't be avoided. But it is a disgrace to permit them to remain and thrive when it is so easy to get rid of them with the new chemical compound, P.D.Q., which quickly puts an end to these pesky devils.

A Million Bed-Bugs

A 35-cent package of this golden chemical will make a quart of a mixture that is so deadly to bed-bugs that it would kill a million of them if you could get that many together. Instantly it smothers and annihilates the living creatures; coats their eggs and stops them from hatching and multiplying.

Will Not Damage Goods

P.D.Q. will not injure delicate fabrics—clothing, carpets, furniture, bedding, wall paper or woodwork. In fact, it is often used as a deodorizer and disinfectant.

Moths.

Impossible for moths to exist after using P.D.Q. Easy to use. A treatment on garments will prevent moths for two years.

For Ants and Cockroaches

Ants and cockroaches stand no chance of surviving a treatment of P.D.Q. It attacks them and their eggs with such force that it kills their whole generation.

P. D. Q. In Liquid Form

P.D.Q. can be purchased in sealed bottles double strength liquid form, with patent sprout free. P.D.Q. Liquid can be diluted to make a quart or it can be used pure.

P.D.Q. is marketed in two style packages, Liquid form 50c, ready for use and P.D.Q. Dry form, 35c. Each package makes one quart.

Five Musical Clowns Appear at Ceramic

Vaudeville Act Offered In Conjunction With Zane Grey Picture, "Drums of Desert."

Five Musical Clowns in a musical act, will be featured at the Ceramic theatre for three days, starting today, in conjunction with the Paramount production, "Drums of the Desert" adapted from Zane Grey's famous western novel.

This vaudeville offering of comedy will appeal especially to the children. The five members of the company are trained musicians, playing 32 different instruments. They have traveled as clowns with a number of the larger tent shows.

Zane Grey has the faculty of making fiction from fact which is one of the reasons why his stories ring so true. "Drums of the Desert" for instance, adapted from "Desert Bound" the latest Zane Grey story to come to the screen as a Paramount picture, is based on the discovery of oil under the desert lands of a Navajo Indian reservation and the attempts of bandits to wrest it from the red men.

During the filming of the production on the original locale it was learned that the Indians plan to build a bridge spanning the river at the ferry point where much of the original story's action occurred. Funds for the building of this bridge were acquired through the sale of oil discovered in the desert and saved for the Indians through the efforts of a white man who played square.

Warner Baxter is John Curry, friend of the Indians, the man who plays square. Opposite him is Marietta Millner, the little European girl who makes her American screen debut in "Drums of the Desert." Others in the cast are Ford Sterling, Wallace MacDonald, Heinie Conklin, George Irving, Bernard Siegel and Guy Oliver.

All the steel used in a bridge being constructed over the Choluteca River, Honduras, by an American engineer, is from America.

One thousand brick houses, each with three rooms, kitchen and bath, are being built in Aberdeen, Scotland, at a cost of $1,950 each.

In England 2,130,000 people hold wireless licenses.

American money is being invested in South African mines.

Budapest has a craze for wool-felt hats, and hat factories of Hungary making this type of headwear are working overtime.

Automobiles received in New Zealand in a recent month comprised 1,768 from the United States, 545 from Canada and 169 from the United Kingdom.

BAKED DAILY in East Liverpool and sold at all independent Grocers, Not at Chain Stores.

The Existing Lack of Civic Cooperation! Is It Through Willfulness or Carelessness?

And by civic co-operation, we mean the patronizing of home industries and the buying of Home Products. We are inclined to believe it is carelessness, for no matter how hard we try, we cannot quite conceive of the man or woman who would deliberately ask for and buy products imported from other cities when home products of equal and even better quality can be obtained at the same price.

Particularly do we call your attention to the purchase of baked products—We have in our city and cummunity, Chester, Newell and Wellsville—sufficient bakeries—employing home labor—and paying local, county and state taxes—to easily supply the demands of the entire territory—and yet—we permit at least a dozen bakeries in Akron, Youngstown, Pittsburgh and other cities to truck their products into our city and walk off with a nice sum of money daily without a penny donation in return to the upkeep of our community.

Whose Fault Is It? Not the local baker who is endeavoring to give you the best quality bread at the lowest price — The Fault is ours and Carelessness in Buying is the reason. Too often we say to our grocer, "A loaf of bread, please,' and take what he hands out to us. Why can't we all be thinkers—learn the names of our home baked products—and demand them when we buy. We'll then be doing our bit toward civic co-operation and the whole community will profit thereby.

COUNTY ROADS TO BE INSPECTED

State Engineers Make Inspection in Brooke and Hancock Counties.

J. O. McKinney, assistant division engineer of the state highway department, Charleston, together with a number of state road engineers have concluded a tour of inspection in Hancock and Brooke counties.

State routes in both counties were given careful inspection by the officials who expressed the belief that improvements planned for certain sections should be completed this year. Such report will be made upon their return to the state capital.

The most important link of the highway designated for improvement and discussed by the engineers was the stretch from the north city limits of Follansbee to the east Steubenville bridge. The survey, plans and specifications for this section of the road has been completed and only awaits the awarding of the contract by the state road commission, for its improvement.

CLAIM COAL FIELD "WAR" IS STRUGGLE FOR EXISTENCE

BOTH FORCES ADMIT STRIKE IS SHOWDOWN

Governor's Eyes on Mine Fight in Ohio.

MEN STAND PAT

Newspaper Writer Pays Visit to Zone Near Newport.

(Central Press sent one of its staff correspondents into the troubled mine regions of Ohio to obtain a first hand view of the situation).

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Review-Tribune.

NEWPORT, O., Aug 11 — A war correspondent would feel at home in central Ohio, where the crooked Tuscarawas winds its muddy way around densely wooded hills, through some of the richest coal mining country in the nation. For there has been a struggle between miners and coal operators of such serious nature that Governor A. Victor Donahey, holding the national guard in leash, has been pleading for peace with all the resources at his command.

"Soldiers" in both "armies" have been wearing the same uniform—miners' garb. One force is union—the other non-union. The opposing forces have met in open skirmishes. Shots have been exchanged and mine property has been destroyed. It's an economic "war" that's being fought—a struggle, each side claims, for existence.

Tipple Destroyed.

One of the most serious disturbances in Ohio took place at the Maple Leaf mine, near Newport. The mine tipple was burned. The owners attributed the destruction to union sympathizers. Union leaders have attributed it to others.

Arriving at Newport, a tiny town, boasting one store and a garage, it is difficult to obtain transportation to the mine, situated in the hills three miles distant. Just as in war time, the battle front is forbidden territory. The townsfolk, eager to keep out of the scrap, have been reluctant to approach the mine property.

Once at the mine, the correspondent is welcomed by the small crew stationed there, for the men believe the non-union forces have not been given a square deal by the press. They are eager to tell their story.

Picket Camp Established.

The mine in question, formerly union, was opened on a non-union basis. Next morning the miners say they were turned back as they started down the road to the mine by a crowd of union men, although the following day they were unmolested. The union miners established a picket camp a few hundred yards from the mine, attempting to persuade the non-union workers to join the union ranks as they passed the camp each day.

The operators, resenting the camp at the doors, said: "Our men were addressed with vile language and their very lives threatened."

Spasmodic disturbances at the mine finally resulted in the burning of the tipple. The mine is situated on a level spot with a sharp rise just behind it. Owners say union sympathizers, some 75 strong, gathered on the hill firing down at the 11 strike breakers, smashing windows and slightly wounding a farmer who had stopped at the mine. Then, the tipple burst into flames.

Operators' Side.

The operators declare: "The men want $7.50 a day for day men and 67 cents a ton for loading wide coal and 89 cents for narrow and we simply can't pay it. West Virginia, Maryland and Western Pennsylvania, where the mines are non-union, pay 30 cents a ton for loading and $3.50 a day. Consequently they are able to undersell us and ruin our business. Union mines in the central competitive field, that is central and western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois had to close or suffer enormous losses.

"Because we lost many contracts through our inability to compete with the non-union fields one mine in Belmont county worked only 75 days in 1925 and 74 in 1926. The mine whose tipple was burned worked 30 days in 1926, but in '94 and '95 it worked full time because of several large contracts."

Union's Side.

On the other hand, the union miners have answered: "We refuse to work under any other than the Jacksonville scale."

Tom Price, district union president, and miners' spokesman, said, at his home at Midvale, O., "To give in to the operators and accept their scale would mean going back to conditions tht existed 30 years ago and that is impossible. The operators tell us if the men go back to work for $5 a day they will promise steady employment. But they know that is not true, for water, cave-ins and gas make layoffs necessary.

"We will not work under the same conditions as miners in West Virginia, where miners have no voice whatever.

Want More Safety Devices.

"We demand a living wage and a safe place to work. We insist that the operators instal more safety devices to end the appalling number of mine deaths each year.

"If the operators will stop cutting each other's throats and sell their coal at a price that will enable them to make a profit their troubles will be solved.

"We view this not as a wage dispute, for the operators couldn't make money, for the operators couldn't make money if they paid us even as little as $3 a day if they keep up their cut-throat competition, but as a desperate attempt to crush the union."

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Speculative interest was largely focused on General Motors at the beginning of trading today, in view of the meeting this afternoon of the directors of the corporation for dividend action. Wall Street had no definite ideas on the probable action of the directors, except that a melon of some kind is expected, either today or at the next quarterly meeting.

The railroad stocks and the New Yory City utilities were the leaders in a moderate rally at the outset, but stocks flowed into the market quite freely before the end of the first hour, and the list turned reactionary, with specialties headed downward. Motor stocks also felt the weight of selling pressure, and moderate losses were marked up against Chrysler, Hudson, Packard and Studebaker.

The present outlook for the proposed railroad consolidations is not very bright, as related to this year's prospects, and "outside liquidation" of the merger rails is now being reported in the financial district. Prices of some of the well known rails were somewhat lower in consequence, but good buying continued in Pennsyvania and other of the low-priced dividend issues.

Radio sold up about 2 points on reports that the suit against its leading competitor in receiving sets had been won on a basis that will mean continued profits to the corporation. General Railway Signal also continued its new high above 148, up 4 points. Conspectacular market course, reaching a solidated gas reached a new high on rumors of a possible merger with Brooklyn Union Gas, under new leadership.

Commodity markets were steady, with cotton up a dollar a bale, September wheat up half a cent, oil unchanged. Call money 3 3-4 per cent.

LAUNCH NEW MOVES TO SAVE CONDEMNED MEN

Await Ruling on Question of Writ of Error.

NEW AFFIDAVIT

Entire Court May Act In Sacco-Vanzetti Case.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—The first of a series of new and involved legal moves to save Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti from the electric chair were under way today.

Decision on the question of permitting the bill of exceptions to his dismissal of the petition for a writ of error made by the defense to go to the full bench of the state supreme court is to come from Judge George A Sanderson.

Pending the decision, other legal proceedings were held in abeyance by defense lawyers, led by former District Attorney Arthur D. Hill.

The petition for a writ of error was brought on the ground of alleged prejudice by trial Judge Webster Thayer. The "evidence" was a series of affidavits recounting alleged conversations by the jurist and his alleged "unfair" attitude on the bench in connection with the radical beliefs of Sacco and Vanzetti. An investigating committee of Governor Alvan T. Fuller, however, found that while the judge was "indiscreet" in conversations outside the court room, on the bench he was fair and impartial.

Council Endorses Respite.

A new affidavit was brought here today from Darmouth college, the alma mater of Judge Thayer. It was from Professor James E. Richardson and told of an alleged statement regarding radicals by the judge. Judge Thayer, in days gone by was a star infielder for the Dartmouth college baseball nine.

If Judge Sanderson decides he had the "power and duty," the exceptions will go to the full bench. Five justices within reach of Boston were notified by telegram today to be in readiness to sit here on Monday.

Governor Alvan T. Fuller in granting the respite until midnight August 22 said the courts had no power to give one, and that he was so acting to "afford the courts an opportunity to complete the consideration of the proceedings now pending." The governor was said to be of the opinion that Sacco and Vanzetti have had a fair trial, that Judge Thayer was fair and that the course of the law has been halted too long already. However, he took into consideration the plea of Defense Counsel Hill that more time should be given for the consideration and deciding of various new motions. The governor's respite was endorsed by the executive council, although two councillors were understood to have been against another delay.

Federal Judges Reject Case

The first moves to carry the case to the federal Courts failed. Writs of habeas corpus were sought of Judge George A. Sanderson of the United States Circuit Courts of Appeals and Associat Justice Oliver Wendall Holmes of the United States Supreme Court. The latter held an exparte hearing at his Beverly Farms summer home.

Both federal judges held that under the law they could not act, that the law points involved did not warrant interference with the State Courts.

Gov. Fuller's secretary, Herman MacDonald, emphasized to Sacco and Vanzetti defense committee men who sought to have the Governor intervene on the grounds of humanity that as a law officer the chief executive could be concerned only with the legal phase of the case.

Arrest Six Alleged Radicals.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—Six Yonkers, N. Y., men were arrested today when police raiders found radical literature in their room in a West End hotel and when the men failed to explain their presence in the city.

They were held as suspicious persons and were finger-printed and questioned as to their whereabouts at the time of the subway explosions in New York.

BOSTON MOVING VAN ATTACHED

A large moving van, belonging to the Twentieth Century Moving company of Boston, Mass., is being held in a local garage as the result of attachment proceedings, which have been filed in common pleas court at Lisbon, by Attorney P. V. Mackall in behalf of Herbert C. Mallison.

Mallison seeks $6,500 from the company which he alleges represents the value of household furnishings carried in the truck. He claims that he contracted with the company to move his household furnishings from Worcester, Mass., to East Liverpool for $175. He claims that the truck owners demanded an increased carrier fee which he refused to pay.

When the truck arrived here with the furniture on Tuesday it was immediately attached by Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Kindsvatter and ordered it held at the Milliron garage. It has been appraised at $8,000. The truck had been engaged to transport the household goods of Dr. Donald W. MacLeod from East Liverpool to Boston.

NEW YORK FIRST STOP FOR LEVINE

PARIS Aug. 11—New York will be the first destination on his return across the Atlantic ocean from Paris, Col. Charles A. Levine, owner of the Bellanca monoplane, Columbia, announced today.

He added that if the fuel tanks still hold sufficient gasoline when the plane reaches New York, he will continue on to Philadelphia in an effort to win the $25,000 prize money offered by the Philadelphia bulletin for the first non-stop flight between Europe and Philadelphia.

"The $25,000 prize money will help pay the expenses of the flight," Levine commented. "It is not so bad for an hour's work."

35 Are Injured

Red Flag" and the "Internationale," the mob tried to fight its way past a cordon of 1,000 foot and mounted policemen into Grosvenor Gardens.

There were 500 policemen in line when the mob began marching down Park Lane in the direction of the Embassy. In the van was a young, bobbed haired girl wildly gesticulating and shouting; "The damned American torturers are not going to kill our Sacco and Vanzetti."

Mounted Police Charge Mob.

The situation began to get ugly by midnight and orders were given for the mounted police to charge the mob with drawn batons in an effort to force it back towards Hyde Park.

Mounted police in heavy formation drove their horses into the press, forcing the crowds into side streets amid the shrieks of women, many of whom fainted and had to be taken into adjacent houses for first aid treatment.

The crowd scattered in all directions, fighting and struggling with the police. A solid mass of people jammed against the balustrade of a house were precipitated into an area way when other crowds, fleeing from the police, were forced against them.

Of the 35 injured two were so badly hurt they had to be taken to the hospital.

Finally the police cleared the block around the embassy and gradually succeeded in forcing back the mob towards Hyde Park.

Fail to Reach Embassy.

Communists here and there again attempted to re-form the crowds, but were unsuccessful owing to the activities of the large force of police that had been reinforced from time to time.

It was estimated that at least 2,000 police were on duty during the demonstration, some at Hyde Park, some around the embassy and others along intervening streets.

The demonstration failed of its main objective, which was to reach the embassy. Only the caretaker was at the embassy building at the time, the staff having left hours earlier after the day's work was completed.

GUARD OFFICER STILL AT LISBON

West Point Mining Zone Reported Quiet.

Major A. R. Thomas, Ohio National Guard officer, who arrived at Lisbon last Friday on instructions from Columbus to make a detailed survey of conditions at the West Point mine field, has not been advised when he will be withdrawn from the Columbiana county district.

"Quiet" is the only word that fully describes the present situation at West Point. Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Kindsvatter continues to visit West Point daily, and frequently is accompanied by Major Thomas.

Two spesial deputy sheriffs are on duty at the West Point mine, one on day shift and another at night. These men are merely guarding the property of the Seger Fuel Co. against possible acts of arson.

Eleventh Hour Respite

execution there is no hue and cry, has eaten regularly, and everything offered him.

There was silence in the cells for a few moments after the warden made this announcement. Then a sign from the weakened Sacco, as his companion, Vanzetti spoke.

"I am glad," said Vanzetti, simply. "I want to see my sister before I die."

He referred to the sister from the little town of his nativity in Italy, who is trying to get to America to see her brother before the law takes his life.

There was another low song from the cells soon after the warden's footsteps died away in the death corridor. The song was "Mother O' Mine."

News Received Quietly.

The news of the respite was received quietly enough by the men who were resigned to death. But to their families, and to the hundreds of their friends who have flocked to Boston to protest execution, it was different. There were cheers from those who had been arrested earlier in the day for picketing the state house in their behalf. They went to court today with light hearts to answer charges of sauntering and loitering. While there's life, there's hope.

Mrs. Sacco was in a state of collapse when the news was brought her. She had bade her husband goodbye at the prison yesterday and hurried away to the home of friends. Her small daughter, Inez, who is seven, born after her father's arrest, cried most of the evening because, the friends said, she "felt" something was happening.

Today, the condemned men were to leave the grim, bare cells of the death house for the comparatively more cheerful cells in the Cherry Hill section where ordinary criminals are confined. All Boston believes, however, that they will be back in those same death cells by the 22nd of August.

CLAIM COAL FIELD "WAR" IS STRUGGLE FOR EXISTENCE

BOTH FORCES ADMIT STRIKE IS SHOWDOWN

Governor's Eyes on Mine Fight in Ohio.

MEN STAND PAT

Newspaper Writer Pays Visit to Zone Near Newport.

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Review-Tribune.

NEWPORT, O., Aug 11 — A war correspondent would feel at home in central Ohio, where the crooked Tuscarawas winds its muddy way around densely wooded hills, through some of the richest coal mining country in the nation. For there has been a struggle between miners and coal operators of such serious nature that Governor A. Victor Donahey, holding the national guard in leash, has been pleading for peace with all the resources at his command.

"Soldiers" in both "armies" have been wearing the same uniform—miners' garb. One force is union—the other non-union. The opposing forces have met in open skirmishes. Shots have been exchanged and mine property has been destroyed. It's an economic "war" that's being fought—a struggle, each side claims, for existence.

Tipple Destroyed.

One of the most serious disturbances in Ohio took place at the Maple Leaf mine, near Newport. The mine tipple was burned. The owners attributed the destruction to union sympathizers. Union leaders have attributed it to others.

Arriving at Newport, a tiny town, boasting one store ana a garage, it is difficult to obtain transportation to the mine, situated in the hills three miles distant. Just as in war time, the battle front is forbidden territory. The townsfolk, eager to keep out of the scrap, have been reluctant to approach the mine property.

Once at the mine, the correspondent is welcomed by the small crew stationed there, for the men believe the non-union forces have not been given a square deal by the press. They are eager to tell their story.

Picket Camp Established.

The mine in question, formerly union, was opened on a non-union basis. Next morning the miners say they were turned back as they started down the road to the mine by a crowd of union men, although the following day they were unmolested. The union miners established a picket camp a few hundred yards from the mine, attempting to persuade the non-union workers to join the union ranks as they passed the camp each day.

The operators, resenting the camp at the doors, said: "Our men were addressed with vile language and their very lives threatened."

Spasmodic disturbances at the mine finally resulted in the burning of the tipple. The mine is situated on a level spot with a sharp rise just behind it. Owners say union sympathizers, some 75 strong, gathered on the hill firing down at the 11 strike breakers, smashing windows and slightly wounding a farmer who had stopped at the mine. Then, the tipple burst into flames.

Operators' Side.

The operators declare: "The men want $7.50 a day for day men and 67 cents a ton for loading wide coal and 89 cents for narrow and we simply can't pay it. West Virginia, Maryland and Western Pennsylvania, where the mines are non-union, pay 30 cents a ton for loading and $3.50 a day. Consequently they are able to undersell us and ruin our business. Union mines in the central competitive field, that is central and western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois had to close or suffer enormous losses.

"Because we lost many contracts through our inability to compete with the non-union fields one mine in Belmont county worked only 75 days in 1925 and 74 in 1926. The mine whose tipple was burned worked 30 days in 1926, but in '94 and '95 it worked full time because of several large contracts."

Union's Side.

On the other hand, the union miners have answered: "We refuse to work under any other than the Jacksonville scale."

Tom Price, district union president, and miners' spokesman, said, at his home at Midvale, O., "To give in to the operators and accept their scale would mean going back to conditions tht existed 30 years ago and that is impossible. The operators tell us if the men go back to work for $5 a day they will promise steady employment. But they know that is not true, for water, cave-ins and gas make layoffs necessary.

"We will not work under the same conditions as miners in West Virginia, where miners have no voice whatever.

Want More Safety Devices.

"We demand a living wage and a safe place to work. We insist that the operators instal more safety devices to end the appalling number of mine deaths each year.

"If the operators will stop cutting each other's throats and sell their coal at a price that will enable them to make a profit their troubles will be solved.

"We view this not as a wage dispute, for the operators couldn't make money, for the operators couldn't make money if they paid us even as little as $3 a day if they keep up their cut-throat competition, but as a desperate attempt to crush the union."

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Speculative interest was largely focused on General Motors at the beginning of trading today, in view of the meeting this afternoon of the directors of the corporation for dividend action. Wall Street had no definite ideas on the probable action of the directors, except that a melon of some kind is expected, either today or at the next quarterly meeting.

The railroad stocks and the New Yory City utilities were the leaders in a moderate rally at the outset, but stocks flowed into the market quite freely before the end of the first hour, and the list turned reactionary, with specialties headed downward. Motor stocks also felt the weight of selling pressure, and moderate losses were marked up against Chrysler, Hudson, Packard and Studebaker.

The present outlook for the proposed railroad consolidations is not very bright, as related to this year's prospects, and "outside liquidation" of the merger rails is now being reported in the financial district. Prices of some of the well known ralls were somewhat lower in consequence, but good buying continued in Pennsyvania and other of the low-priced dividend issues.

Radio sold up about 2 points on reports that the suit against its leading competitor in receiving sets had been won on a basis that will mean continued profits to the corporation. General Railway Signal also continued its new high above 148, up 4 points. Conspectacular market course, reaching a solidated gas reached a new high on rumors of a possible merger with Brooklyn Union Gas, under new leadership.

Commodity markets were steady, with cotton up a dollar a bale, September wheat up half a cent, oil unchanged. Call money 3 3-4 per cent.

FORD TAKES RIDE WITH LINDBERGH

FORD AIRPORT, DEARBORN, Mich, Aug 11—Henry Ford, America's first billionaire took his first airplane flight today when he went up with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in his "Spirit of St. Louis" for three or four minutes.

Lindbergh soared over the airport and then returned safely to the ground.

NEW YORK FIRST STOP FOR LEVINE

PARIS Aug. 11—New York will be the first destination on his return across the Atlantic ocean from Paris, Col. Charles A. Levine, owner of the Bellanca monoplane, Columbia, announced today.

He added that if the fuel tanks still hold sufficient gasoline when the plane reaches New York, he will continue on to Philadelphia in an effort to win the $25,000 prize money offered by the Philadelphia bulletin for the first non-stop flight between Europe and Philadelphia.

"The $25,000 prize money will help pay the expenses of the flight," Levine commented. "It is not so bad for an hour's work."

Red Flag" and the "Internationale," the mob tried to fight its way past a cordon of 1,000 foot and mounted policemen into Grosvenor Gardens.

There were 500 policemen in line when the mob began marching down Park Lane in the direction of the Embassy. In the van was a young, bobbed haired girl wildly gesticulating and shouting; "The damned American torturers are not going to kill our Sacco and Vanzetti."

Mounted Police Charge Mob.

The situation began to get ugly by midnight and orders were given for the mounted police to charge the mob with drawn batons in an effort to force it back towards Hyde Park.

Mounted police in heavy formation drove their horses into the press, forcing the crowds into side streets amid the shrieks of women, many of whom fainted and had to be taken into adjacent houses for first aid treatment.

The crowd scattered in all directions, fighting and struggling with the police. A solid mass of people jammed against the balustrade of a house were precipitated into an area way when other crowds, fleeing from the police, were forced against them.

Of the 35 injured two were so badly hurt they had to be taken to the hospital.

Finally the police cleared the block around the embassy and gradually succeeded in forcing back the mob towards Hyde Park.

Fail to Reach Embassy.

Communists here and there again attempted to re-form the crowds, but were unsuccessful owing to the activities of the large force of police that had been reinforced from time to time.

It was estimated that at least 2,000 police were on duty during the demonstration, some af Hyde Park, some around the embassy and others along intervening streets.

The demonstration failed of its main objective, which was to reach the embassy. Only the caretaker was at the embassy building at the time, the staff having left hours earlier after the day's work was completed.

GUARD OFFICER STILL AT LISBON

West Point Mining Zone Reported Quiet.

Major A. R. Thomas, Ohio National Guard officer, who arrived at Lisbon last Friday on instructions from Columbus to make a detailed survey of conditions at the West Point mine field, has not been advised when he will be withdrawn from the Columbiana county district.

"Quiet" is the only word that fully describes the present situation at West Point. Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Kindsvatter continues to visit West Point daily, and frequently is accompanied by Major Thomas.

Two special deputy sheriffs are on duty at the West Point mine, one on day shift and another at night. These men are merely guarding the property of the Seger Fuel Co. against possible acts of arson.

pletely gutted by the flames. For a time the fire threatened to spread to adjoining buildings, but firemen finally succeeded in hemming it in.

execution there is no hue and cry, has eaten regularly, and everything offered him.

There was silence in the cells for a few moments after the warden made this announcement. Then a sign from the weakened Sacco, as his companion, Vanzetti spoke.

"I am glad," said Vanzetti, simply. "I want to see my sister before I die."

He referred to the sister from the little town of his nativity in Italy, who is trying to get to America to see her brother before the law takes his life.

There was another low song from the cells soon after the warden's footsteps died away in the death corridor. The song was "Mother O' Mine."

News Received Quietly.

The news of the respite was received quietly enough by the men who were resigned to death. But to their families, and to the hundreds of their friends who have flocked to Boston to protest execution, it was different. There were cheers from those who had been arrested earlier in the day for picketing the state house in their behalf. They went to court today with light hearts to answer charges of sauntering and loitering. While there's life, there's hope.

Mrs. Sacco was in a state of collapse when the news was brought her. She had bade her husband goodbye at the prison yesterday and hurried away to the home of friends. Her small daughter, Inez, who is seven, born after her father's arrest, cried most of the evening because, the friends said, she "felt" something was happening.

Today, the condemned men were to leave the grim, bare cells of the death house for the comparatively more cheerful cells in the Cherry Hill section where ordinary criminals are confined. All Boston believes, however, that they will be back in those same death cells by the 22nd of August.

In a town the size of East Liverpool one really enjoys a home. In a city one is born in a hospital, reared in a boarding school, educated in college, courted in automobiles, married in a church, spends the morning golfing, afternoons playing bridge and evenings at the movies. When sick one goes to the hospital and when dead is buried from the undertaker's. — Live in East Liverpool and enjoy your home.

Dangerous Varicose Veins Can Be Reduced

Never mind what people say: If you have varicose or swollen veins and want to reduce them to normal go to any live druggist and ask for an original two-ounce bottle of Emerald Oil (full strength). If he hasn't it, he can get it.

Apply it to the enlarged veins as directed and improvement will be noticed in a few days. Continue its use until veins return to normal size. It is guaranteed to reduce swollen veins or money back by all good druggists.

Fair Decision.

VIENNA.—Since the very beginning of time, women, vain and heartless creatures, have enjoyed the combat of man against man to win her favor. So when Miss Linde Weiss, Vienna, could not decide which one of her two suitors, Albert Hampel and Hans Kugel, was the better man, she took them to a cafe and required that they compete in a beer drinking duel, the drinker with greatest capacity winning her heart and hand. The novel duel was fought with quart tankards of beer and after the thirteenth tankard Albert Hample downed Hans Kugel, who could hold no more. Hample and Linde Weiss walked away to live happy ever after.

What's in a Name.

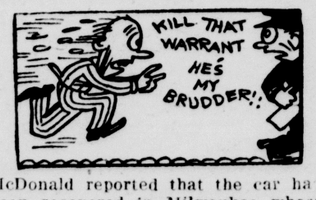

ZION CITY, Ill.—By any other name a Libertyville motion picture house would have been probably just as enticing to a diversion seeking young policeman, Benjamin Fisher, member of the Zion City, Ill., police force, but would at least have saved itself the stigma of mockery as far as Benjamin Fisher is concerned. He was discharged from his post at Zion City after it was established that he and a young lady attended the Libertyville motion picture house, thereby breaking the Zionist taboo law against cinemas.

Call Off the Cops.

CHICAGO.—When William Williams reported to police that his car was stolen he did not expect quite such prompt action. Two days later detectives Harry O'Donnell and Frank

McDonald reported that the car had been recovered in Milwaukee where one Roy Willoughby had been caught driving it recklessly. So Williams got a warrant. But two days later Williams discovered that Roy Willoughby was not Willoughby at all. "Do you know who the man is?" the police inquired. "Yes, he is Roy Williams, my brother. I want to kill that warrant."

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

JAPANESE VIEW OF GENEVA NAVAL DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE GLOOMY

By Charles P. Stewart.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—"Peace! Everybody wants peace. Of course. But peace conferences—well—"

And Viscount Ishii shrugged his shoulders and made a face.

He was the same Viscount Ishii we've been reading about in the newspapers, as the Mikado's representative at the Geneva conference, which fizzled the other day, after trying for months to limit the three leading sea powers' navies—Britain's, America's and Japan's.

VISCOUNT ISHII

But this was a long while ago—about 15 years—before the war.

Viscount Ishii—Ee-shee-ee, in three syllables—was Japanese foreign minister then.

THE Chinese revolution, which has been raging intermittently ever since, had just broken out.

On my way to give it the once over, I'd stopped off to see Tokyo.

Those islanders are the most hospitable people on earth.

The minute Editor Mitsunaga of the Nippon Dempo Tshushinsha—Nippon, Japan; Dempo, telegraph; Tshushinsha, news company—heard there was a visiting fellow scribe in town, from the occident, he was right on hand to do the agreeable.

"Ishii," he told me, "speaks English. You'll want to see him." And he took me right up to the foreign office. It was no trick at all.

THE talk was about nothing in particular. How the subject of peace conferences came up I don't remember. Probably an attempt was being made to pull one off at The Hague. The air was full of peace just before the war.

The viscount was unenthusiastic, to say the least.

He didn't expect to have what he said repeated and it wouldn't have done then, but at this distance of time, who cares!

"If peace conferences meant peace," he said, "I'd welcome them. Naturally, I'm for peace, like everybody else.

"But the trouble is, they generally develop awkward situations.

"What looks to one country like a perfectly beautiful, practical peace idea may look threatening to some other country.

"Each country has its own peculiar problems, which other countries can't be made to understand. For that matter, a nation's representatives don't necessarily care to explain all its inner most problems to the whole world."

"THE upshot usually is," complained the viscount, "that some of the negotiators yield against their better judgment and never get over regretting it, or else they balk and their motives are suspected.

"One thing is about as bad as the other.

"My observation of peace conferences has been that relations seldom are as pleasant afterward as they were before."

WELL, the Geneva conference is ended and Viscount Ishii, among the other delegates, is on his way home. Before it opened it was agreed on all hands that an armed clash between this country and the British was "unthinkable." No doubt it is yet. Yet, if it's "unthinkable" to the British, what the dickens is the reason that they were so bound and determined to have a stronger navy than we have?

In justice to Viscount Ishii it should be said that he worked like a Trojan to bring about some sort of an agreement, but in spite of all he could do the conference failed.

Dangerous Varicose Veins Can Be Reduced

Never mind what people say: If you have varicose or swollen veins and want to reduce them to normal go to any live druggist and ask for an original two-ounce bottle of Emerald Oil (full strength). If he hasn't it, he can get it.

Apply it to the enlarged veins as directed and improvement will be noticed in a few days. Continue its use until veins return to normal size. It is guaranteed to reduce swollen veins or money back by all good druggists.

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

JAPANESE VIEW OF GENEVA NAVAL DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE GLOOMY

By Charles P. Stewart.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—"Peace! Everybody wants peace. Of course. But peace conferences—well—"

And Viscount Ishii shrugged his shoulders and made a face.

He was the same Viscount Ishii we've been reading about in the newspapers, as the Mikado's representative at the Geneva conference, which fizzled the other day, after trying for months to limit the three leading sea powers' navies—Britain's, America's and Japan's.

VISCOUNT ISHII

But this was a long while ago—about 15 years—before the war.

Viscount Ishii—Ee-shee-ee, in three syllables—was Japanese foreign minister then.

"THE Chinese revolution, which has been raging intermittently ever since, had just broken out.

On my way to give it the once over, I'd stopped off to see Tokyo. Those islanders are the most hospitable people on earth.

The minute Editor Mitsunaga of the Nippon Dempo Tshushinsha—Nippon, Japan; Dempo, telegraph; Tshushinsha, news company—heard there was a visiting fellow scribe in town, from the occident, he was right on hand to do the agreeable.

"Ishii," he told me, "speaks English. You'll want to see him." And he took me right up to the foreign office. It was no trick at all.

THE talk was about nothing in particular. How the subject of peace conferences came up I don't remember. Probably an attempt was being made to pull one off at The Hague. The air was full of peace just before the war.

The viscount was unenthusiastic, to say the least.

He didn't expect to have what he said repeated and it wouldn't have done then, but at this distance of time, who cares!

"If peace conferences meant peace," he said, "I'd welcome them. Naturally, I'm for peace, like everybody else.

"But the trouble is, they generally develop awkward situations.

"What looks to one country like a perfectly beautiful, practical peace idea may look threatening to some other country.

"Each country has its own peculiar problems, which other countries can't be made to understand. For that matter, a nation's representatives don't necessarily care to explain all its inner most problems to the whole world."

"THE upshot usually is," complained the viscount, "that some of the negotiators yield against their better judgment and never get over regretting it, or else they balk and their motives are suspected.

"One thing is about as bad as the other.

"My observation of peace conferences has been that relations seldom are as pleasant afterward as they were before."

WELL, the Geneva conference is ended and Viscount Ishii, among the other delegates, is on his way home.

Before it opened it was agreed on all hands that an armed clash between this country and the British was "unthinkable." No doubt it is yet. Yet, if it's "unthinkable" to the British, what the dickens is the reason that they were so bound and determined to have a stronger navy than we have?

In justice to Viscount Ishii it should be said that he worked like a Trojan to bring about some sort of an agreement, but in spite of all he could do the conference failed.

How THE Other Half Behaves

Fair Decision.

VIENNA.—Since the very beginning of time, women, vain and heartless creatures, have enjoyed the combat of man against man to win her favor. So when Miss Linde Weiss, Vienna, could not decide which one of her two suitors, Albert Hampel and Hans Kugel, was the better man, she took them to a cafe and required that they compete in a beer drinking duel, the drinker with greatest capacity winning her heart and hand. The novel duel was fought with quart tankards of beer and after the thirteenth tankard Albert Hample downed Hans Kugel, who could hold no more. Hample and Linde Weiss walked away to live happy ever after.

What's in a Name.

ZION CITY, Ill.—By any other name a Libertyville motion picture house would have been probably just as enticing to a diversion seeking young policeman, Benjamin Fisher, member of the Zion City, Ill., police force, but would at least have saved itself

the stigma of mockery as far as Benjamin Fisher is concerned. He was discharged from his post at Zion City after it was established that he and a young lady attended the Libertyville motion picture house, thereby breaking the Zionist taboo law against cinemas.

Call Off the Cops.

CHICAGO.—When William Williams reported to police that his car was stolen he did not expect quite such prompt action. Two days later detectives Harry O'Donnell and Frank

McDonald reported that the car had been recovered in Milwaukee where one Roy Willoughby had been caught driving it recklessly. So Williams got a warrant. But two days later Williams discovered that Roy Willoughby was not Willoughby at all. "Do you know who the man is?" the police inquired. "Yes, he is Roy Williams, my brother. I want to kill that warrant."

HIGH COACH IS EXPECTED SOON

Joe Hurst, Ex-Adena Mentor, New Blue and White Director, to Report Prior to Opening Of School.

JOE HURST, Wooster college athlete and former coach at Adena high in Jefferson county, who will have charge of East Liverpool high school athletics this year, is expected to arrive here within the next few days, according to Superintendent B. C. McVay.

With little more than three weeks intervening before the beginning of school and the opening of football practice sessions, Hurst's arrival is anticipated at any moment now, the Blue and White's new mentor having some preliminary affairs to look after before starting work.

There will be no training camp this year, Superintendent McVay announces. Laws of the Ohio High School Athletic association prohibit coaching before the actual opening of school and it is the intention of the local school to adhere to all regulations.

Faculty Manager Decker is still working on the schedule, and expects to have a few open dates filled with in the near future.

BUCS ARE WALLOPED BY GIANTS

Ruth Clouts 36th Homer And Beats Nats, 4 to 3.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Two of New York's greatest institutions — Babe Ruth and the Giants—had demonstrated today that they cannot yet be counted out of the running in their respective battles. The Bambino clouted his thirty-sixth homer, pulling up to within two of Buster Gehrig. The Giants' steam roller scored six runs in the eighth inning after the first two batters had been retired, practically ruining the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The score in the first game of the New York-Washington "crucial" series at the capital was Ruth 4, Washington 3. With two singles and a homer, the Babe knocked in all of the Yankees' runs. He is still about six homers behind his 1921 record, however.

The Washington fans became to peeved at an unfavorable decision rendered in the ninth by Umpire Clarence "Pants" Rowland that they chased him into teh dugout after the game. Police escorted him to safety.

In their big rally the Giants batted around, kayoing three Pirate pitchers and winning, 8 to 3. The Pirates now trail the Cubs by 3½ games and are only two games in front of the Cardinals, with the Giants fast closing from the rear. The Cubs and Cardinals were idle yesterday.

The Athletics snapped Boston's winning streak of six games as Lefty Grove held the Sox to four hits and won in a romp, 12 to 2. Grove pitched hitless ball for six innings while Ty Cobb continued his batting spree by walloping a triple, a double and a single.

Detroit held on to third place by trimming the Browns, 2 to 1. Gaston outpitched Owen Carroll, former Holy Cross star, but lost on errors.

The Phillies climbed out of last place by blanking the Braves, 6 to 0, but flopped back into the cellar again by dropping the nightcap, 5 to 1. Pruett held the Braves to five hits in the opener while Bob Smith of the Braves yielded but six bingles in the second game.

BATTLE TONIGHT IN YANK'S PARK

Winner Will Get Jack Sharkey Early Next Year; Basque Will Outweigh Foe 14 Pounds For 15 Round Scuffle.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Chicago having attained the battle of the twentieth century limited, New York will accept the next best thing at the Yankee stadium tonight in the form of a scuffle of the split second with Jack Delaney, heavyweight by personal nomination, in one corner and Paulino Uzcudun, the well known human being, in the other. If Paulino wins, it will be a moral victory for the dental supply houses, for the lad smiles a very mean bicuspid.

If Delaney gets the official nod, he will be up in the chips again just as high as he was before Jim Maloney gave him a thorough going over.

In fact, the old steam-up for the 1928 sucker season is already issuing from the boiler, even before Dempsey and Tunney so much as utter a harsh word. The winner of tonight's fight will get Jack Sharkey early next year, the survivor of that will get the Dempsey-Tunney winner for the championship, the certified checks and somebody will get a punch on the nose.

In other words, we may be looking at the next heavyweight champion tonight, anything being possible after what happened in the Dempsey-Sharkey fight.

Paulino was a ribald jest to many a merry Andrew when he came here last winter, but the boys seem to have lost their sense of humor since the gent slapped down Harry Wills in a lunch. They, in fact, have made Paulino an even money choice against Delaney and, given a few more hours for mature deliberation, they probably will send him into the ring a favorite.

They might look further and do worse, at that. The gent will weigh around 190 pounds against Delaney's 176, he will have 15 rounds in which to make his weight and strength mean something to the slender, somewhat fragile Delaney and he has a chin that only a stone mason could love.

Yes, Paulino will have a lot of natural advantages working for him unless Delaney can make his "kill" early in the fight. The latter has a fine right hand punch, as viewed from the standpoint of the light heavyweight division, but it naturally is not so effective against heavyweights. And when the heavyweight in question happens to be a hombre with a jaw like the horn of a saddle, that punch figures to be even less potent.

Delaney, of course, will outspeed his man at the outset and probably will give him a sound veneering for five or six rounds. But if he gets past that point, it may be well for Delaney to fear the worst. His record indicates that he is inclined to blow up in the late rounds of a long fight, as evidenced by his several battles with Berlenbach and the fact that none of his knockouts beyond the sixth round have been scored at the expense of good men.

However, it may be that Delaney, even failing to drop the Basque, will yet be able to outstep him for fifteen rounds. It may be that Paulino's style will prevent him from getting anywhere any time with a man like Delaney. For Paulino is a swinger and Delaney is at his worst against a straight puncher. Again Paulino is a rusher and Delaney ordinarily would ask for nothing better.

Be that as it might, a lot of form students have suspected these many months that Delaney doesn't belong in the heavyweight division in the first place and, if that is the case, a man eater like Paulino possibly will afford the best means of proving or disproving the contention.

It should be a great fight while it lasts and it is likely to last until the final bell.

Meets Uzcudun

Jack Delaney, forced by his failure in the heavyweight elimination tournament to meet Paolino Uzcudun at Yankee Stadium, New York, to prove he's still in the running.

Paulino was a ribald jest to many a merry Andrew when he came here last winter, but the boys seem to have lost their sense of humor since the gent slapped down Harry Wills in a punch. They, in fact, have made Paulino an even money choice against Delaney and, given a few more hours for mature deliberation, they probably will send him into the ring a favorite.

They might look further and do worse, at that. The gent will weigh around 190 pounds against Delaney's 176, he will have 15 rounds in which to make his weight and strength mean something to the slender, somewhat fragile Delaney and he has a chin that only a stone mason could love.

Yes, Paulino will have a lot of natural advantages working for him unless Delaney can make his "kill" early in the fight. The latter has a fine right hand punch, as viewed from the standpoint of the light heavyweight division, but it naturally is not so effective against heavyweights. And when the heavyweight in question happens to be a hombre with a jaw like the horn of a saddle, that punch figures to be even less potent.

Delaney, of course, will outspeed his man at the outset and probably will give him a sound veneering for five or six rounds. But if he gets past that point, it may be well for Delaney to fear the worst. His record indicates that he is inclined to blow up in the late rounds of a long fight, as evidenced by his several battles with Berlenbach and the fact that none of his knockouts beyond the sixth round have been scored at the expense of good men.

However, it may be that Delaney, even failing to drop the Basque, will yet be able to outstep him for fifteen rounds. It may be that Paulino's style will prevent him from getting anywhere any time with a man like Delaney. For Paulino is a swinger and Delaney is at his worst against a straight puncher. Again Paulino is a rusher and Delaney ordinarily would ask for nothing better.

Be that as it might, a lot of form students have suspected these many months that Delaney doesn't belong in the heavyweight division in the first place and, if that is the case, a man eater like Paulino possibly will afford the best means of proving or disproving the contention.

It should be a great fight while it lasts and it is likely to last until the final bell.

Digman Gives Up Three Hits And Laughlin Downs Turk Nash

ERRATIC PEGS AID VISITORS

James Hurls Great Game But Luck's Not With Him.

BAD heaves to first base preceding and following a safe drive to middle cost Turk Nash a hard fought City Industrial league contest with the Laughlin first half champions on Patterson field last evening. Neither side scored until and only in the sixth inning. Then the potters made three and the auto contingent but one. The final score was thus 3 to 1.

L. McMath from the short field and James, essaying the completion of an intended sacrifice made the hurling miscues for the Turk Nash outfit. The latter was the most costly for two runs thus ensued.

Crawford, up first in the sixth, sent a grounder to McMath. He grabbed it and threw high to W. Mundy. Webber then sent a safety just back of second base. Finley dumped the ball to the left of the plate.

James ran in and hesitated momentarily on a forced out throw. Then he whirled and threw hurriedly to first, the ball going to right field instead of into Mundy's hands. Crawford and Webber both scampered home before the ball was returned and Finley held up on second. Herbert then went out, James to W. Mundy, Finley going to third from where he finished as W. Watson went out, L. McMath to W. Mundy. Sayers went out also at first, J. Watson assisting.

The top of Turk Nash's batting order was also up when they came to bat in the same inning. E. Bayley drove to Finley, who threw wildly to Babb as the second sacker went on to second. Tommy" Sayers, Laughlin keystone sack guardian then handled in turn the drives of L. McMath, A. Bayley and W. Mundy and threw them out at first. E. Bayler reached third and home on the first and second of these put-outs.

Both teams went out in order in the seventh.

Babb, starting for Laughlin flew to L. McMath. Ranaldi singled past second. E. Bayley belatedly threw wildly to first, enabling the catcher to go to second. A moment later he caught Digman's fly and doubled Ranaldi at second, L. Math taking his assist.

A. Morris for Turk Nash was thrown out at first by Digman. Babb grabbed R. Pollock's liner, a seeming certain hit while Finley ran back into left and gobbled Schneidmiller's fly, ending the game.

James pitched great ball despite his bad fielding heave. He fanned three, hit one and walked none. Only four hits, one of these a scratch infield blow by Sayers, were dae off him.

Digman, in great form, permitted but three scattered safe bingles. He struck out two and walked two.

The contest, witnessed by a record crowd, was featured by three fast double plays, two by Turk Nsh and one by Laughlin.

The second of these, James to J. Watson to W. Mundy in the second was a pretty play and doubtless stopped Laughlin's early scoring. W. Watson had led off with a single to right. Sayers hit safely to L. McMath, the ball bounding almost over him and being recovered too late to beat the batter to first. Babb then drove to James, who quickly assisted to J. Watson, forcing out W. Watson while the former got the ball to W. Mundy in time to put out the visiting first sacker at first.

A. Morris, playing his initial game in a Turk Nash uniform, made two fine catches in succession off Finley's and Herbert's bats in the second. The first of these would have been a certain triple or homer had he not held it on the edge of a water pool in deep left.

W. Watson also captured a hard fly off J. Watson's bat in the fifth with Schneidmiller on the bags by reason of a single.

Webber in right for Laughlin, made a trio of fine catches in that difficult territory. He again hit safely once and was hit once in his three swatting chances, a .500 batting mark for the day, surpassed by none and equaled only by Schneidmiller of the autosists who walked once and hit safely once in a trio of plate appearances.

Finley missed one of seven chances at short for Laughlin while Sayers accepted five at second. In the sixth the latter threw out three men in succession at first.

James fanned Digman, Crawford and Webber successively in the third.

Yankee Stars Ready for Foe

Meet British Rivals in Wightman Cup Features.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11—The feature matches in the Wightman Cup tennis competition between America and Great Britain will be played at Forest Hills on Saturday when Miss Helen Wills, No. 1 on the American team clashes with Mrs. Kitty McIfornia schoolgirl, meets Miss Betty Nuthall, the English prodigy.

Miss Wills will participate in two singles matches and one doubles match. Tomorrow in the first day of play her opponent will be Miss Joan Fry. Mrs. Molla Mallory, No. 2 on the American team, plays Mrs. Godfree tomorrow.

Although they were beaten by Mrs. Charlotte Hosmer Chapin and Miss Eleanor Goss in two practice sets yesterday, Miss Wills and Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman were selected as the No. 1 doubles team for America. Mrs. Chopin and Miss Goss are the No. 2 team.

Miss Penelope Anderson, of Richmond, Va., was not selected for the American team as a result of her defeat by Miss Jacobs, 6-2, 6-2.

JOCKEY INJURED AT BEULAH PARK

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 11.—A. Alexander, Montreal jockey, was reported near death in a local hospital today, as a result of injuries sustained when his mount threw him and he was trampled by other horses in a race at Beulah park here yesterday. The rider's skull was fractured, and he suffered other injuries about the body, when he fell as the horses broke at the barrier.

Harold Mays, Bayonne heavyweight, scored technical knockout over Jack Roper, of California, in eighth round.

AT NEW HAVEN, CONN. — Tony Marullo, of New Orleans, won decision over Pat McCarthy, of Boston, 10 rounds.

FITZ BACK IN RING AT IDORA PARK

YOUNGSTOWN, Aug. 11—After several weeks layoff, Freddy Fitzgerald, Youngstown's lightweight contender, will swing back into action in a local ring when he meets Beeny Burns, of Akron, at Idora Park, on August 16th.

Burns, it will be remembered, gave Freddy a fine pasting on their last meeting and the dapper Fitz is out to remove the only blot on an otherwise perfect record.

If condition and determination mixed with the proper amount of fighting ability can turn that trick, then Mr. Burns is in for a busy evening, when the bell sends these two lads on their way.

The semi-windup will feature Keefe Buckley, Youngstown's fighting Scot, and Joe Canall, also of the Steel Town, and if their last fight is a good-mark to judge this one by, then the fans are in for a fistic treat.

The last battle between these two classy welters ended up in a two round K. O. victory for Canall, and Keefe has been yelling for a return shot at the dark haired north sider and promises to do everything but murder him.

Tony Leon, the perpetual motion fistman, who is rapidly putting the town of Dover on the map will meet the toughest boy that he has been called upon to face since joining the ranks of the professional mitt swingers in Joe Shurra, out of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Heavyweight will hold the spotlight in the third prelim, when Mel French, of East Palestine, and Joe Clark, of New Castle, Pa., tangle. Out of this mixup may come a boy who will give Emmett Rocco a battle.

The "Polish Wonder" and Joe Midway, of Pittsburgh, Pa. will swing gloves in the second prelim, and cause Benny Leonard or Mike Gibbons to turn green with envy at their while neither of these lads will ever cleverness, still they both can, will and do fight.

ANOTHER TOUGH TILT FOR CORDS

Industrial League Pace-setters Face Hard Working Wellsville Club in Game Tonight at Smith Field.

By F. J. W.

The Chester Superior Cords hopped a tough obstacle in their dash for Industrial League second half honors the first of the week when Crandall turned back the Laughlin nine, but their week's work is not copleted by any means and they'll have to hurdle the Wellsville Nash Motors tonight in order to maintain their advantage.

The Cords and the Wellsville club will play at Smith field and the visitors are counting on giving the pace setters all they've got.

Riley's lads are a full game ahead of Laughlin, in second place, today as a result of Newell's victory over Turk Nash.

The Turk Nash aggregation has been easy picking for the West Virginians this season. The two clubs have played six games to date, including first and second half tilts and Laughlin has won every one of the half-dozen. The Motors have been playing good ball against Laughlin but something goes wrong, apparently, with the mechanics of the Motors' defense every time and this coupled with the natural ability of Dailey's club, doesn't do Fowler's outfit any good at all.

Negotiations are under way for another Turk Nash-Laughlin battle Saturday at Patterson field and probably will be completed tomorrow.

Manager Roy Nicholson of the Wellsville club is uncertain as to his pitching selection, with either Easton, the southpaw who defeated Turk Nash recently, and Huffman, a right hander, available for duty. The Motors have not played since last Friday, their first game this week with Victory Motors having been called off.

Hancock will do the receiving. Meeks is definitely out of the line up and Byers will cover middlefield for Wellsville, taking the place of Ranier, of Jeanette, who was called back home recently by illness in the family.

Riley probably will send Curly Evans to the mound against the visitors. The game will start at 5:45.

GRIFFITH PROTESTS

Asks Umpire Rowland Be Removed From Series.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Clark C. Griffith, president of the Washington baseball club, today awaited a ruling on his official protest to Ban Johnson, president of the American league, asking for removal of Umpire Clarence Rowland from the present Senators-Yankee series.

"Rowland showed vindictiveness in taking it out on the team because the fans were riding him," said Griffith. "I am unwilling to accept responsibility for outbreaks if Rowland continues to work this series."

The fans objected yesterday to Rowland's decisions on balls and strikes. Missiles were thrown at him on the field and he had to be escorted from the grounds under police protection.

Bucky Harris, manager, was banished from the game for kicking on decisions. Babe Ruth's home run won the game for the Yanks.

Meet British Rivals in Wightman Cup Features.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11—The feature matches in the Wightman Cup tennis competition between America and Great Britain will be played at Forest Hills on Saturday when Miss Helen Wills, No. 1 on the American team clashes with Mrs. Kitty McIfornia schoolgirl, meets Miss Betty Nuthall, the English prodigy.

Miss Wills will participate in two singles matches and one doubles match. Tomorrow in the first day of play her opponent will be Miss Joan Fry. Mrs. Molla Mallory, No. 2 on the American team, plays Mrs. Godfree tomorrow.

Although they were beaten by Mrs. Charlotte Hosmer Chapin and Miss Eleanor Goss in two practice sets yesterday, Miss Wills and Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman were selected as the No. 1 doubles team for America. Mrs. Chopin and Miss Goss are the No. 2 team.

Miss Penelope Anderson, of Richmond, Va., was not selected for the American team as a result of her defeat by Miss Jacobs, 6-2, 6-2.

JOCKEY INJURED AT BEULAH PARK

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 11.—A. Alexander, Montreal jockey, was reported near death in a local hospital today, as a result of injuries sustained when his mount threw him and he was trampled by other horses in a race at Beulah park here yesterday. The rider's skull was fractured, and he suffered other injuries about the body, when he fell as the horses broke at the barrier.

Harold Mays, Bayonne heavyweight, scored technical knockout over Jack Roper, of California, in eighth round.

AT NEW HAVEN, CONN. — Tony Marullo, of New Orleans, won decision over Pat McCarthy, of Boston, 10 rounds.

FITZ BACK IN RING AT IDORA PARK

YOUNGSTOWN, Aug. 11—After several weeks layoff, Freddy Fitzgerald, Youngstown's lightweight contender, will swing back into action in a local ring when he meets Beeny Burns, of Akron, at Idora Park, on August 16th.

Burns, it will be remembered, gave Freddy a fine pasting on their last meeting and the dapper Fitz is out to remove the only blot on an otherwise perfect record.

If condition and determination mixed with the proper amount of fighting ability can turn that trick, then Mr. Burns is in for a busy evening, when the bell sends these two lads on their way.

The semi-windup will feature Keefe Buckley, Youngstown's fighting Scot, and Joe Canall, also of the Steel Town, and if their last fight is a good-mark to judge this one by, then the fans are in for a fistic treat.

The last battle between these two classy welters ended up in a two round K. O. victory for Canall, and Keefe has been yelling for a return shot at the dark haired north sider and promises to do everything but murder him.

Tony Leon, the perpetual motion fistman, who is rapidly putting the town of Dover on the map will meet the toughest boy that he has been called upon to face since joining the ranks of the professional mitt swingers in Joe Shurra, out of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Heavyweight will hold the spotlight in the third prelim, when Mel French, of East Palestine, and Joe Clark, of New Castle, Pa., tangle. Out of this mixup may come a boy who will give Emmett Rocco a battle.

The "Polish Wonder" and Joe Midway, of Pittsburgh, Pa. will swing gloves in the second prelim, and cause Benny Leonard or Mike Gibbons to turn green with envy at their while neither of these lads will ever cleverness, still they both can, will and do fight.

ANOTHER TOUGH TILT FOR CORDS

Industrial League Pace-setters Face Hard Working Wellsville Club in Game Tonight at Smith Field.

By F. J. W.

The Chester Superior Cords hopped a tough obstacle in their dash for Industrial League second half honors the first of the week when Crandall turned back the Laughlin nine, but their week's work is not copleted by any means and they'll have to hurdle the Wellsville Nash Motors tonight in order to maintain their advantage.

The Cords and the Wellsville club will play at Smith field and the visitors are counting on giving the pace setters all they've got.

Riley's lads are a full game ahead of Laughlin, in second place, today as a result of Newell's victory over Turk Nash.

The Turk Nash aggregation has been easy picking for the West Virginians this season. The two clubs have played six games to date, including first and second half tilts and Laughlin has won every one of the half-dozen. The Motors have been playing good ball against Laughlin but something goes wrong, apparently, with the mechanics of the Motors' defense every time and this coupled with the natural ability of Dailey's club, doesn't do Fowler's outfit any good at all.

Negotiations are under way for another Turk Nash-Laughlin battle Saturday at Patterson field and probably will be completed tomorrow.

Manager Roy Nicholson of the Wellsville club is uncertain as to his pitching selection, with either Easton, the southpaw who defeated Turk Nash recently, and Huffman, a right hander, available for duty. The Motors have not played since last Friday, their first game this week with Victory Motors having been called off.

Hancock will do the receiving Meeks is definitely out of the line up and Byers will cover middlefield for Wellsville, taking the place of Ranier, of Jeanette, who was called back home recently by illness in the family.

Riley probably will send Curly Evans to the mound against the visitors. The game will start at 5:45.

GRIFFITH PROTESTS

Asks Umpire Rowland Be Removed From Series.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Clark C. Griffith, president of the Washington baseball club, today awaited a ruling on his official protest to Ban Johnson, president of the American league, asking for removal of Umpire Clarence Rowland from the present Senators-Yankee series.

"Rowland showed vindictiveness in taking it out on the team because the fans were riding him," said Griffith. "I am unwilling to accept responsibility for outbreaks if Rowland continues to work this series."

The fans objected yesterday to Rowland's decisions on balls and strikes. Missiles were thrown at him on the field and he had to be escorted from the grounds under police protection.

Bucky Harris, manager, was banished from the game for kicking on decisions. Babe Ruth's home run won the game for the Yanks.

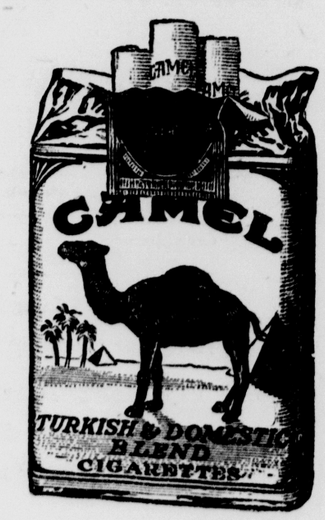

In this modern world of business and knowledge of value, the public is always ready to recognize merit.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

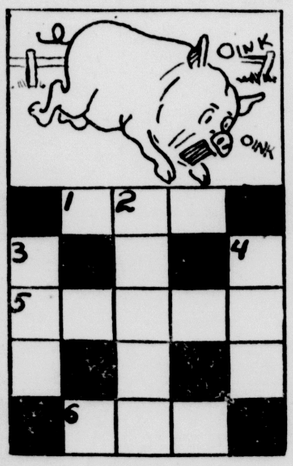

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send fresh, healthy blood to the raw, sensitive membranes. Internal treatment is one safe method. Ointments and other external treatments can't give lasting relief.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in hundreds of cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. HOW ONE MAN, D. C. STEPHENSON, KEPT STATE OF INDIANA AT HIS "FINGER TIPS"; BOASTED HIS WORD WAS THE LAW

(This is the third of a series of articles on Indiana's political drama, by a Central Press writer, who spent weeks gathering material for an unbiased and unprejudiced story.)

III.

By Bonita Witt,
Staff Writer for Central Press and Review-Tribune.

It was inevitable that D. C. Stephenson, who declared he was the law in Indiana, should be separated from the "regular" Klan, Indiana folk say. As a life prisoner now, convicted of murder, telling "secrets of state" to a grand jury, the extent of his reach for "the heights" is becoming known.

MISS BONNIE WITT

And the Klan was only an instrument to elevate himself, his opponents have averred. This, they declare, brought on the breach between the organization and its Indiana grand dragon.

Stephenson and Hiram W. Evans, imperial wizard, constantly differed.

No Interference Permitted.

Stephenson administered the Indiana Klan as he saw fit, regardless of mandates issued from the imperial palace in Atlanta. He would brook no insubordination within his ranks. All those who disagreed with him were speedily put out of the organization. The Indiana Klan had been built around Stephenson, he boasted. "Steve's" word was law. He repeatedly told his followers that some one was "going to get him." He insisted that the imperial wizard, Hiram W. Evans, was "hatching plots" to trap him. When the break finally came, the Stephenson followers, to a degree, were convinced that their leader had been "framed."

In the autumn of 1923 the "regular" Klan, eager to rid itself of Stephenson, seized on an escapade of his in Ohio to expel him from its ranks.

Nothing daunted, Stephenson, then a dapper man of his thirties, announcing he no longer could ally himself with an organization under the control of Hiram Evans in Atlanta, proceeded to enlist members in a society of which he was the head, whose object, he asserted, was "to love everybody." It was sometimes called the "Klan of the North," as opposed to the Southern, of what "Steve" called the "Evans-owned Klan."

Remained a Power.

As "the Old Man," he banded together Klansmen who had been loyal to him, and gathered new recruits. Although officially no longer a member of the "regular" Klan, he seemed to continue to have power over part of its members, and it was largely through his Klan connections that he rose to political power in Indiana.

"Steve," even when grand dragon, habitually referred to himself as "the Old Man" and always so signed his letters.

Maintaining an elaborate office in Indianapolis, he set out to perfect an organization comparable in its efficiency to the army. He had a system whereby he could communicate with a henchman in the far corner of the state within an hour or two. State, county, district, ward and precinct — all were at his finger tips. "Spies" kept him informed of the activities of all those he desired under his control. He spent money lavishly, giving way large sums, and many came under financial obligation to him. At his home in Irvington, a suburb of Indianapolis, he entertained extensively.

Folk Came To His Parties.

One man who knew him in the hey-day of his power says: "'Steve' wasn't always the social leper that he is now. People were happy to acknowledge him their friend before he got into trouble."

How far he succeeded in his efforts to become a power in Indiana is best emphasized by this statement which Robert H. Moore, Stephenson's attorney at Michigan City, says his client made after he appeared before the grand jury recently:

"I purchased officials involved in this investigation in an open market. I paid an excessive price for them

Asserts He Was "Railroaded."

"After that they railroaded me to prison and convicted me of a crime of which I was not guilty.

"I can't even have a right to talk with my attorney privately. They have denied me that privilege. Now I am going to turn them over to the state of Indiana for a while."

Then the grand jury called him once more, following which there was a silence, except that prosecutors mentioned there had been evidence of value. And mysterious "little black boxes" had been recovered.

The state awaited the next move of this man, who, although a life prisoner, still seemed to retain a vestige of power.

offenders, charged with intoxication would be given jail sentences at their next appearance in court. This order, McDermott declared, was a movement to halt the drinking of "canned heat," "alcorub," extracts and similar mixtures.

HOW ONE MAN, D. C. STEPHENSON, KEPT STATE OF INDIANA AT HIS "FINGER TIPS"; BOASTED HIS WORD WAS THE LAW

(This is the third of a series of articles on Indiana's political drama, by a Central Press writer, who spent weeks gathering material for an unbiased and unprejudiced story.)

III.

By Bonita Witt,
Staff Writer for Central Press and Review-Tribune.

It was inevitable that D. C. Stephenson, who declared he was the law in Indiana, should be separated from the "regular" Klan, Indiana folk say. As a life prisoner now, convicted of murder, telling "secrets of state" to a grand jury, the extent of his reach for "the heights" is becoming known.

MISS BONITA WITT

And the Klan was only an instrument to elevate himself, his opponents have averred. This, they declare, brought on the breach between the organization and its Indiana grand dragon.

Stephenson and Hiram W. Evans, imperial wizard, constantly differed.

No Interference Permitted.

Stephenson administered the Indiana Klan as he saw fit, regardless of mandates issued from the imperial palace in Atlanta. He would brook no insubordination within his ranks. All those who disagreed with him were speedily put out of the organization. The Indiana Klan had been built around Stephenson, he boasted. "Steve's" word was law. He repeatedly told his followers that some one was "going to get him." He insisted that the imperial wizard, Hiram W. Evans, was "hatching plots" to trap him. When the break finally came, the Stephenson followers, to a degree, were convinced that their leader had been "framed."

In the autumn of 1923 the "regular" Klan, eager to rid itself of Stephenson, seized on an escapade of his in Ohio to expel him from its ranks.

Nothing daunted, Stephenson, then a dapper man of his thirties, announcing he no longer could ally himself with an organization under the control of Hiram Evans in Atlanta, proceeded to enlist members in a society of which he was the head, whose object, he asserted, was "to love everybody." It was sometimes called the "Klan of the North," as opposed to the Southern, of what "Steve" called the "Evans-owned Klan."

Remained a Power.

As "the Old Man," he banded together Klansmen who had been loyal to him, and gathered new recruits. Although officially no longer a member of the "regular" Klan, he seemed to continue to have power over part of its members, and it was largely through his Klan connections that he rose to political power in Indiana.

"Steve," even when grand dragon, habitually referred to himself as "the Old Man" and always so signed his letters.

Maintaining an elaborate office in Indianapolis, he set out to perfect an organization comparable in its efficiency to the army. He had a system whereby he could communicate with a henchman in the far corner of the state within an hour or two. State, county, district, ward and precinct — all were at his finger tips. "Spies" kept him informed of the activities of all those he desired under his control. He spent money lavishly, giving way large sums, and many came under financial obligation to him. At his home in Irvington, a suburb of Indianapolis, he entertained extensively.

Folk Came To His Parties.

One man who knew him in the hey-day of his power says: "'Steve' wasn't always the social leper that he is now. People were happy to acknowledge him their friend before he got into trouble."

How far he succeeded in his efforts to become a power in Indiana is best emphasized by this statement which Robert H. Moore, Stephenson's attorney at Michigan City, says his client made after he appeared before the grand jury recently:

"I purchased officials involved in this investigation in an open market. I paid an excessive price for them

Asserts He Was "Railroaded."

"After that they railroaded me to prison and convicted me of a crime of which I was not guilty.

"I can't even have a right to talk with my attorney privately. They have denied me that privilege. Now I am going to turn them over to the state of Indiana for a while."

Then the grand jury called him once more, following which there was a silence, except that prosecutors mentioned there had been evidence of value. And mysterious "little black boxes" had been recovered.

The state awaited the next move of this man, who, although a life prisoner, still seemed to retain a vestige of power.

Clench faced Roderiguez on the strength of that smile.

"Looky here. We're talking business with a business man. Mr. Moore is playing the game every minute—and get this! he's playing safe! Rifles? Not on your life! He's delivering to us ten thousand parts of mining machinery and—accessories—to be used in mines you can see on the map. He sticks to his onions. If we are sending—onions—to Central America—that's our business, not his. Do I make it clear?"

"Much clearer," said John Moore. "If these gentlemen have anything definite to say about why I should deliver ten thousand parts of mining machinery—and accessories, to them, I shall be glad to hear it."

"Certified checks on New York banks," said Henshaw. "That's definite enough, I suppose."

"Delivered of course—" said John Moore.

"At the border, upon receiving—the machinery," interrupted Henshaw.

John Moore repeated as if he had not heard.

"Delivered of course—here. Within twelve hours. I am returning tomorrow morning. I think that's all gentlemen. With your permission Mr Henshaw, I'll join your niece in the garden and leave you gentlemen to discuss any matters you may wish to among yourselves."

Roderiguez leaned forward.

"It is not permitted" he said. "In Mexico, only one man joins a lady in the garden at night—her fiance, Senor," He tapped the table. "You will remain here, Senor. I!" And now he tapped his chest. "I am the Senorita's fiance."

He tapped himself again. Henshaw cursed softly.

John Moore's face did not change. He merely looked first at that thick tapping finger and then into the wicked little eyes above it. "You lie," he said evenly. "Both times."

Roderiguez lunged heavily to his feet.

"Keep still, you fool" snarled Henshaw.

The big Mexican stood panting. "Then tell him yourself," he raged. "Tell him—now—here!"

John rose to his feet and looked coolly about the table.

"It seems after all, that what you really wish to do is to quarrel among yourselves. We will continue this conversation in the morning."

Henshaw half arose as if to expostulate.

John looked at him. "Don't get up," he said drily. "Take it easy. Good night." And he turned away and crossed leisurely toward the garden door.

They stared after him.

Clench cleared his throat. "Goodnight, Sir." he called. And though John did not catch it, there was admiration in Clench's tone. "Gosh!" thought Clench, "he's a cool one! For plain cool insolence he's got 'em both beat. And he's got the goods. He's the man for my money, I'll tell the world."

$7,000,000 annually, while all the others have sales aggregating only a little more than one-seventh of that amount. That additional million is important, however, not only in that it is business which the regular stores might have had, but represents prices that in competition have forced the regular candy dealers, for the most part, to shade their prices below a fair profit level.

Of all the candy that is sold in the United States in the course of a year, it is estimated that one-half is purchased in one, five, and ten cent lots, mostly by children. Eighty per cent of the sweets that the manufacturers produce brings them 25 cents or less a pound. Only 10 per cent is of the grade that sells for a dollar or more per pound.

The Christmas season is the time when the candy business is at its peak, while there is always a big slump during the summer months.

Certain modern trends have done much to hurt the candy business within the last two or three years, it is said. For instance, when Dame Fashion decreed that the female form must be sylph-like—if not to say, slab-like—she dealt a wicked blow at the purveyors of confections. Girls who a few years ago would have been delighted with gifts of sweets are now offended by them, and chocolates and bonbons are no longer the votary offerings of young love that they once were. Dieting to reduce by adults of both sexes who want to keep the old waistline in check likewise has reduced the consumption of candy, and eating an apple a day to keep the doctor away has been another factor.

The youth of today has found, too, that a dollar spent for gasoline to take his best girl for a ride in the family flivver will promote him better than if spent for a box of candy, even if she is a candy eater, or when a choice has to be made between an evening at the movies or an evening munching sweets, the movies win four times out of five.

It is also reported with many evidences of authenticity that numerous dollars that once found their way into the cash registers of the candy merchants now go to the bootleggers. Certain it is, at any rate, that nothing so quickly destroys a natural taste for candy as an acquired taste for forbidden alcohol and that a sweet tooth and a gin palate are rarely found in the same mouth. Besides, it is easier to carry a flask on the hip than a pound of chocolates under the arm.

Prohibition has undoubtedly tended to increase the consumption of candy, as has been stated, but with the element that refuses to conform to the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Law consumption has fallen off.

Americans have been invited to exhibit at the International Exhibition Fair at Tallinn, Estonia, this year.

$7,000,000 annually, while all the others have sales aggregating only a little more than one-seventh of that amount. That additional million is important, however, not only in that it is business which the regular stores might have had, but represents prices that in competition have forced the regular candy dealers, for the most part, to shade their prices below a fair profit level.

Of all the candy that is sold in the United States in the course of a year, it is estimated that one-half is purchased in one, five, and ten cent lots, mostly by children. Eighty per cent of the sweets that the manufacturers produce brings them 25 cents or less a pound. Only 10 per cent is of the grade that sells for a dollar or more per pound.

The Christmas season is the time when the candy business is at its peak, while there is always a big slump during the summer months.

Certain modern trends have done much to hurt the candy business within the last two or three years, it is said. For instance, when Dame Fashion decreed that the female form must be sylph-like—if not to say, slab-like—she dealt a wicked blow at the purveyors of confections. Girls who a few years ago would have been delighted with gifts of sweets are now offended by them, and chocolates and bonbons are no longer the votary offerings of young love that they once were. Dieting to reduce by adults of both sexes who want to keep the old waistline in check likewise has reduced the consumption of candy, and eating an apple a day to keep the doctor away has been another factor.

The youth of today has found, too, that a dollar spent for gasoline to take his best girl for a ride in the family flivver will promote him better than if spent for a box of candy, even if she is a candy eater, or when a choice has to be made between an evening at the movies or an evening munching sweets, the movies win four times out of five.

It is also reported with many evidences of authenticity that numerous dollars that once found their way into the cash registers of the candy merchants now go to the bootleggers. Certain it is, at any rate, that nothing so quickly destroys a natural taste for candy as an acquired taste for forbidden alcohol and that a sweet tooth and a gin palate are rarely found in the same mouth. Besides, it is easier to carry a flask on the hip than a pound of chocolates under the arm.

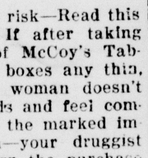

Prohibition has undoubtedly tended to increase the consumption of candy, as has been stated, but with the element that refuses to conform to the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Law consumption has fallen off.

Americans have been invited to exhibit at the International Exhibition Fair at Tallinn, Estonia, this year.

Sacco-Vanzetti Case in Paris Unfortunate Indiscretion. Ask Our Geese. Her Best Job.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

PARIS, Aug. 9.—In Paris, where this is written, Sacco and Vanzetti represent important news. Rows of soldiers with steel helmets surround the American embassy examining suspicious persons. Look poor, not a workman; or queer, and not an American, and you are suspicious.

MANY police protect the American consul's office. Americans drawing money from the Guaranty Trust in the same building, wonder. Madame Nungesser and Loubet, former president of the France, cable America asking clemency; others cable Col. Lindbergh asking him to intervene. The average Frenchman knows America as little as the average American knows France.

RADICAL newspapers talk violently. Le Soire with a front page picture carries the caption "The Best Plan Would Be to Electrocute America." It suggests no plan for carrying out so large a program.

L'Humanite, commenting on the alleged news that the Massachusetts American Legion approves the Sacco-Vanzetti executions, threatens a boycott that would be ruinous to the United States and says over the signature of P. Villant-Courutior that if the execution takes place the gathering of the American Legion in Paris next month will appear as regards its managers, comme un congress d'assassins "like a congress of assassins."

THE Fuller committee report that the judge in the case had been "guilty in indiscretion" makes as bad an impression on Americans as on Frenchmen. Any juryman talking indiscreetly about the men accused thus revealing advance prejudice against them, should be withdrawn. Talk that would make a citizen unfit for the jury should surely make a judge unfit to preside.

HOSTILE comment indicating prejudice in the judge would mean that justice was tainted at the source. The committee report on that point should have been so explicit as to make impossible the suspicion that the judge was influenced by the accused men's revolutionary opinions or by anything outside the evidence in the murder case.

THE Earl of Oxford and Asquith, 74, has devoted his life to the service of his country, never using time or talent in building up a fortune for himself. THIRD MAN IN MAYOR FIGHT

J. C. B. Beatty Will Run Against Benedum and Brown On Nov. 8

Pottery Salesman Announces He Will File Petition as Independent For Place on City Ballot.

"Contaminated Moral Conditions of Our City Demand Someone Fully Qualified," He Charges In Statement.

A three-cornered fight for the mayoralty at the November 8 election in East Liverpool was promised today, as a result of the announcement of James C. B. Beatty, pottery salesman, and twice an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, that he will enter the race as an independent against former Mayor Charles Brown, Republican nominee, and Ralph C. Benedum, renominated by the Democrats.

Applies for Petition

Beatty, last night, applied at the election board office for blank petitions. He said he would file within the next week or ten days. The law provides that petitions, containing not less than 25 signatures, must be in the hands of election board officials 60 days prior to the fall balloting, or not later than Friday, September 9.

Four years ago, Beatty was defeated in a three-man mayoralty fight by Brown. He ran then as an independent, as he plans to do this fall. The Democratic nominee in 1923 was Dr. J. W. Williamson.

Beatty's Announcement

Beatty, in announcing his candidacy, issued the following signed statement:

"This to advise you and the people of East Liverpool that I have decided to run for mayor independently of all parties and factions.

"Our government and this nation can endure only by close adherence to the fundamental teachings contained in the Bible, the precepts established by Washington, principles advocated by Jefferson, human rights adopted by Lincoln, and ideals forecast by Woodrow Wilson.

"In accordance with a man's general experience he knows humanity, and in accordance with his knowledge of God he is qualified to lead or direct any part or all of the human race.

"The contaminated moral, commercial and general conditions of our city demand someone fully qualified, and I am offering my experience and knowledge for that purpose, and for nothing else.

Approximately 3,263 ballots, Republican and Democratic, were cast in East Liverpool in Tuesday's primaries, according to the official tabulation completed by the Columbiana county board of deputy state supervisors of election late yesterday. Of this number 3,154 were Republican, while 109 were Democratic.

Mjority of ex-Mayor Charles Brown over A. U. Richardson, runner-up in the Republican mayoralty contest, remained at 82. Brown polled 755 ballots as compared to 669 for his nearest opponent. Vote of Paul Allison, potter, who finished last in the contest, was increased to 42, but there was no change in the totals of the other candidates.

Slight changes were made in official tabulations in the races for president of council, city auditor and council-at-large. Majority of Joseph G. Strauss, over George Firth, for city treasurer, stood at 43.

T. P. Ferguson and Harry Altman, two of the winners for council-at-large, made gains while there was no change in the vote for Harry Fleming, the other winner. Grant Myler, who finished fourth in the race, gained 57

"QUEEN" MARY DENIES CHARGES

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Aug. 11.—Fighting mad, "Queen" Mary Purnell today took the witness stand in the state's suit to dissolve the House of David and vehemently denied the charges of sundry accusers sitting in the court room.

"Lies, lies, lies," she shrilled.

"Augusta Fortney has testified here that early one morning she rapped on your bedroom door and found there Francis Thorpe, business manager partially clothed and you, dressed in a red kimona. Is that true?" asked chief defense counsel W. J. Barnard.

"Queen" Mary raised half way out of her seat looking angrily at Augusta and answered:

"That's a contemptible lie and she knows it."

Sacco-Vanzetti Sympathizers Blamed for Outrages.

Three Firemen Hurt While Fighting Fire Which Follows.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 11.— A series of explosions believed to have been caused by bombs, wrecked the State theatre here today, causing an estimated loss of $400,000. Police declared they believed the bombs had been laid by Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers.

Police explained that they had no definite clue connecting the explosion with radical agitators other than the fact that the theatre had no known enemies and that the explosion could not have been caused by an accidental accumulation of gas or some other means.

Had the blasts and fire come two hours earlier the lives of approximately 1500 patrons of the Select motion picture theatre would have been jeopardized. The last show let out shortly before midnight; the first explosion came at 2 a. m.

Fire Chief Trapped.

Fire shot seventy-five feet into the air after the first explosion, firemen reported, and four or five smaller blasts let go in its wake.

Three firemen were hurt fighting the fire and keeping it confined to the theatre building proper. Assistant Fire Chief Terrence Mulligan was trapped when a section of the building caved in. He was rescued by his comrades a half hour later and was unconscious from breathing smoke fumes. Theodore Measure, engineman, was badly cut when a balcony of the building collapsed. Howard Dunn was knocked unconscious by a falling rafter.

Gasoline Rate War Looms In Cleveland

Standard Oil and Royal Dutch-Shell Combination Prepare for Finish Fight for Market Control.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 11.——A gasoline war between Standard Oil company and the Royal Dutch-Shell combination, Standard Oil's most powerful competitor, will be fought out, with Cleveland as the chief battleground, within the next few months, it was predicted here today.

Royal Dutch-Shell is planning to spend several million dollars for the construction of warehouses and other projects in this city, according to well founded reports, and will launch at once into an extensive underselling campaign.

Fred Caley, secretary of the Cleveland Automobile club, predicted that the situation would result in a drastic slashing of gasoline prices.

"Let 'em fight," Caley remarked. "The Standard-Shell war in Chicago was a real thing for the motorists. Cheaper and better gas all the way around is the result."

STOCKHOLDERS SEEK STATEMENT

CLEVELAD, O., Aug. 11.—A suit by Wilfred F. Marr, of Canton, Ohio, and William A. Walker, of Pittsburgh, requesting that the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers bank be compelled to make a statement of its dealings with the Brotherhood Investment company, was on file in common pleas court here today.

The plaintiffs, who are stockholders in the Investment company, charge that assets with a rated value of nearly a half-million dollars, which in reality are worth much less, have been turned over by the bank to its allied concern. It is also alleged that on May 27, 1925, the Brotherhood admitted responsibility for losses of the investment company and agreed to repay these deficits.

SACCO-VANZETTI MOB ATTEMPTS TO MARCH UPON U. S. EMBASSY

Mounted Police Restore Order After Violent Outbreak.

Inflammatory Speech Made by "Emperor" Cook.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Order was restored by the police early today after a violent outbreak of rioting when thousands of Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers, led by men and women Communists, tried to march upon the United States embassy in Grosvenor gardens.

Thirty-five persons were injured when mounted police drove into the wildly shouting mob in an effort to disperse it.

Worst Disorder Since Strike.

It was the worst disorder that England has been since the general strike.

The riot followed a mass meeting of 10,000 persons in Hyde Park at which inflammatory speeches were made.

A. J. ("Emperor") Cook, leader of last year's coal strike, declared:

"I warn you. I warn America that if they murder these two men (Sacco and Vanzetti) we will get even with them."

Wave Red Flags

At the conclusion of the Hyde Park meeting Cook urged the demonstrators to march upon the American embassy and make a show of force in hope that the ambassador, A. B. Houghton, (who is at present on vacation in Scotland,) would be frightened into cabling the state department to urge that the Sacco-Vanzetti death sentences be remitted.

IRA MELLINGER KIWANIS GUEST

Leetonia Lumber Dealer Talks on Subject, "Service."

Stressing the value of personal and community service and the ideals of Kiwanis which constantly look forward to the consummation of the worth while things in life, Ira F. Mellinger, Leetonia lumber dealer, today addressed members of the Kiwanis club at their noon luncheon in Larkins annex.

Dr. W. A. Hobbs presided. Group singing was led by Prof. Hugh F. Laughlin. Approximately 50 members of the club were present.

Plans were announced for the selection of delegates to the Ohio district convention which will be held in Cincinnati during October. The local delegates will be named at next week's meeting.

The speaker advocated the eternal friendship of man to man, and an unceasing effort to do something that will be of some service to the community or to the world, rather than the assumption of a self-contained self-satisfied attitude that tends toward no man's good.

"ELEVENTH HOUR" RESPITE, GRANTED 30 MINUTES BEFORE MARCH, GIVES CONDEMNED MEN 12-DAY LEASE ON LIFE

By George R. Holmes

BOSTON, Aug 11—Sacco and Vanzetti still live. Through the high slitted windows of Charlestown prison they glimpsed today the pallid light of another day. It was a day they had not expected to see, and one which they did not know they were going to see until a scant half hour before they were to have taken the short march to the electric chair.

Third Man Also Saved.

Fiction writers often feature "An Eleventh Hour Reprieve." The 12-day respite given the condemned murderers of South Braintree last night by Governor Alvan T. Fuller was literally that. It was 11:27 P. M. when Warden William Hendry stalked down the corridor in front of their cells and informed them that the governor and his executive council had granted an opportunity to their counsel to make one last fight before the State Courts to save them from the yawning chair in the room beyond. They were doomed to die a few minutes past 12 o'clock.

Outside the prison were more than 800 police and state troopers, armed and vigilant. Behind a "deadline" were bristling machine guns and flaring floodlights. Their presence attested to the fears that the precautions against trouble that the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti entailed. In Boston itself and far beyond, in New York, Chicago, London, Paris, Berlin, Moscow, all over the world, were innumerable thousands waiting word of their death. Probably no other condemned murderers in the history of the world left such a waiting audience, or had so many thousands wrought up over their impending passing.

The respite from death, agreed upon by the governor and his council after hours of debate that continued to within the very shadow of their cells, also brought 12 more days of life to Celestino Madeiros, the Portuguese murderer, who has confessed to the crime for which Sacco and Vanzetti stand convicted. The law thus far, however, has not elected to believe Madeiros. Nevertheless, it was decided he should have 12 more days of life, too. It is a pure gift for the Portuguese, for nobody is making any fight for him.

Garbed for Death Chair.

The men had been garbed for the death chair when the news came. They wore the gray prison trousers and blue and white shirts, with short sleeves. All were resigned to their going. Sacco, weak from his 25 days of hunger striking, lay on his cot, his eyes closed. Vanzetti, stronger and more philosophical, rested quietly. Madeiros, the Portuguese, mumbled in his cell. Occasionally Vanzetti would break into a low song in which his companions in the adjacent cells joined. The song was "Memories."

"Boys," said Warden Hendry, "the governor has given you a respite until August 22. Now I want you to be men, and I want you to eat."

This last was directed at Sacco, who for 25 days has refused food, although it was meant for Vanzetti, too. The fish peddler has eaten only intermittently for a month. Madeiros, for whom no fight was being made whose

KEN MAYNARD AT AMERICAN

Kathleen Collins, Texan, Co-stars in "Somewhere in Sonora."

The Lone Star state has a great representation in "Somewhere in Sonora," the Charles R. Rogers production for First National, now showing at the American theatre. Both Ken Maynard, the star, and Kathleen Collins, his leading lady, are from Texas.

Maynard was born and raised in Mission, Texas, except for a number of years spent in Ohio at a military school, where he received the degree of civil engineer. His riding originated, curiously enough, not in his home state of Texas where one would imagine it did, but in a cavalry regiment at school. It was on Texas ranches that he developed his amazing ability to do sensational riding tricks, most of his ranch-experience being during holidays when he was home from school.

Kathleen Collins is a native of San Antonio, Texas. Kathleen, however, received her schooling in Texas and was still attending a finishing school for young ladies when she entered motion pictures. This was after friends entered her picture in a nation-wide beauty contest conducted by the late Thomas H. Ince.

Kathleen won the contest before she had time to realize that she had been entered. She was Ken's leading lady in "The Unknown Cavalier" and "The Overland Stage," and now appears with him again in "Somewhere in Sonora."

The Way of the World

BY GROVE PATTERSON

HAIR TRIGGER REPORTS.

It is the age of investigations. The trouble is that many so-called investigations are little more than a basis for an inaccurate, half-baked report. Out at the University of Iowa, an investigation, started by a member of the faculty, reveals the "information" that liquor flows among the students as freely as pop, that co-eds drink beer in booths, and do all sorts of things they shouldn't. "Call your bootlegger and have your liquor left on your doorstep in a milk bottle," one student is reported as having said.

Anybody who knows much about colleges and college students knows that the boys and girls who get into the "investigation reports" are the exceptions. It's mostly all talk and it is unfair and unjust that hair-trigger reports are taken seriously.

THE HUMAN TOUCH.

The Queen of Holland will send her daughter to college in the fall. Instead of living by herself, after the usual fashion of royalty, this girl will share her quarters with other girl students. Queen Wilhelmina is a wise woman. She knows that people are people, and that human touch makes majesty more majestic.

THE WILL TO GET THERE.

Dudley Woodbridge is appointed as a teacher in a famous southern university. The name means little to you. But Dudley Woodbridge, with a wife and two children, won a high degree at an Illinois law college. He made his way by peddling newspapers. He has delivered papers for the last 10 years. It is said he walked 20 miles a day.

There is no stopping the man who has within him that "something" which is a mixture of ambition and persistence.

HUMOR HELPS.

A lawyer, unused to the practices of the supreme court of the United States, addressed the dignified judges as "gentlemen" instead of saying "your honors." He apologized.

"Don't apologize for calling us gentlemen," chuckled Chief Justice Taft. "That's what we try to be."

NEEDLESS WORRY.

Worry is the great American disease. No use pretending you can avoid all worry. But a lot of it is unnecessary. For example, why worry about any situation in which you have made up your mind to do what you think you ought to do? In the long run, no harm can come from doing as near right as you know how.

OLDSMOBILE PLANT EXPANDS

Contracts Let at Lansing For $3,000,000 Program.

LANSING, Mich., Aug. 11.—Contracts have been let for buildings in a $3,000,000 Oldsmobile expansion program. Work will be rushed, according to I. J. Reuter, president and general manager of Olds Motor Works, so that Oldsmobile production can be increased by the first of the year.

An increase in net sales of $11,500,000 last year, followed by still greater sales records, and with business mounting to new high levels have made this large expansion advisable, officials report. Retail domestic and export sales for the fiscal year ending August 1, show, up to July 20, a record above any previous fiscal year in the history of the company, say officials.

This large expenditure by Oldsmobile for new buildings and equipment to keep pace with its rapidly expanding business is another evidence of the continued growth of the General Motors Corporation, of which Oldsmobile is a division. General Motors recently announced a record-breaking sales period during the first half of this year.

The new buildings will be erected on the 76-acre Oldsmobile plot in Lansing. They will increase the total floor space by 292,000 square feet, or practically one-third of the floor area now used in making Oldsmobile motors, chassis units and for assembly. The total floor space, including the body plant, will be 1,658,692 square feet.

The contracts already awarded are for buildings which will double the motor plant and enlarge other manufacturing facilities to permit increased production, and will, as well, provide new and additional shipping accommodations.

Silks For Every Occasion—Every Day in the Week.

That we today are a silk loving nation is demonstrated everywhere in every direction. Why? Because it is the natural aim of every woman to always appear at her best and no influence can give the support, mentally or morally, to a woman that the right clothes supply.

We might complete these psychological influences with the physical satisfaction created by the soothing luxurious feel of silk next to the skin. To these "pros" for silken attire must be added the irrefutable evidence that silk is a fabric of service and economy. It may cost a little more over the counter but its wearing qualities and style possibilities—just the fact that today the fabric makes the gown without any expense for trimmings—more than compensates for the difference in price, for there is no greater truth than that quality is remembered long after price is forgotten.

We are showing silks for early Fall wear among which are the following:

Wash Crepe—39 inch width, in 20 popular shades including white which at present is the favorite—$2.00 the yard.

Skinner's Wash Crepe—39 inch width, in various colors including white.—$3.00.

for "Garden of Youth" Shampoo and La Rine Oil—is at our Toilet Goods Section all this week, giving lectures and telling of the merits of these two products.

The "Garden of Youth" shampoo is particularly adaptable to washing permanent waves. It can be used on any scalp—any hair—but is recommended for permanent waves, since it does not injure them in anyway. A permanent wave can be set beautifully after using this shampoo. Priced at 50c the bottle.

La Rine oil is for dandruff. Priced at $1.00 the bottle.

The representative will be glad to explain the use of these two products.

Come in and hear her free lectures on the care of the hair. She will remain until Saturday evening.

LADY CALLED FATE

BY JOSEPHINE K. LITTLEJOHN

©1927 CENTRAL PRESS ASS'N

JOHN MOORE, New York business man, goes to Tucson, Ariz., on business, expecting to return to New York the next day. He meets a college associate, Philip Morton, who has business in Mexico. Both drink heavily of tequila and in the subsequent mixup in identity Moore finds himself in Mexico.

He has in his possession a portrait of a girl which had been Morton's. The girl, Ruth Henshaw, sends her ambassador, Ramon, to tell the supposed Morton that she will meet him at the church at Tubutama. She needs his help. He meets her, also Clench, an associate of her uncle's, and all go to the ranch.

John meets Manuel Lopez, Roderigues and Barton Henshaw, the uncle.

CHAPTER TWENTY.

"Poor devil" mused John as he took his seat. "Henshaw is surely cowed." He tried to understand what Rodergulez was saying but the Spanish was much too rapid. He leaned back in his seat and puffed slowly at the ceiling. His game, as he saw it, was to sit tight and let them do all the talking they wished to do—pleasant or otherwise. If, provoked by his taciturnity, they told him more than they intended to, that was their affair. He grinned to himself at that and blew a series of delicate little smoke rings at the point where the candle light faded into the shadows above the table. He was remembering other garrulous souls who had insisted on hurling all they knew—and sometimes more— at the impassive front of Poker-Face Moore.

The torrent of angry Spanish ceased abruptly. Clench, opposite, stared at John uneasily and twisted about in his chair. John was conscious of it but he gave no sign of being so. He knew, too, the exact instant when Manuel Lopez caught the sudden hush in the air and turned, expectant, to John. Then there stole upon him again that sense of loath to fight it off but still it persisted. What was it? He knew that Roderiguez was glowering at him with the whites of his ugly eyes showing. And still he wondered—

It was Barton Henshaw's peevish voice which broke the silence. "Mr. Morton—"

"My name," interrupted John leisurely and very pleasantly, his eyes still following his smoke rings, "is Moore."

"We understand that, but between friends—"

"What you understand is your own concern. What you call me is mine. My name is Moore."

"Sure it is," broke in Clench with great affability. "What the devil difference does it make anyway? Moore we can remember that."

Behind his mask Poker-Face Moore smiled to himself. "Tell the truth to fool a liar!"

"Very well," drawled Barton Henshaw peevishly. "But there are some of us here who aren't so particular—among friends—Mr. Moore. But letting that pass—the time has come the Senor Roderiguez here thinks for the cards to go down on the table."

"Is the Senor Roderiguez dumb? Or did I only dream that I heard him using quite as good English as yours?" asked John, presumably of the ceiling.

"Bah!" the heavy voice of Roderiguez boomed. "Make him understand—"

"See here," whined Henshaw irritably, "I am trying to help you all if you will let me manage it."

The big Mexican subsided again into sullenness.

"Mr. Moore," went on Henshaw, "you have, of course, brought the proper credentials. If we could see them—"

John Moore let his gaze wander slowly down from the ceiling to drop like a plummet into the pale blue eyes of the speaker. Then he spoke with cold deliberation. "I carry no credentials," he said and his lips seemed to curl with derision at this group of amateurs who expected such a thing.

Clench remembered suddenly the story Pedro had told him of the guns. What was the use of riling this man up unnecessarily? They knew all about him that they had to know. "Surely there is no need of credentials from Mr. Moore," he protested.

Roderiguez grunted, "It's the money he must have." But Henshaw clung to his point. "It was agreed about the credentials before Mr. Moore left New York. I don't see—"

John rose to his feet. He knocked the ashes from his pipe and put it in his pocket. "We will end this farce—now" he stated. "I understood you had something to tell me. It seems you wish to quarrel among yourselves. Go to it. But I have other ways of spending my evening." He turned on his heel. His bored indifference to what they did was a thing of art.

Roderiguez was on his feet with a snarl for Henshaw. "If you let him go out there!" he threatened.

"Wait a minute, Mr. Moore," begged Henshaw. "We will waive the credentials. Please sit down. The Senor here is excited over a purely personal matter. It has nothing to do with you. You sit down too," he directed Roderiguez. "I promised you; don't act like a fool."

What had he promised this great brute of a Mexican? Surely nothing in connection with his own niece? He couldn't be— John sat down. He was here to find out.

"Then get down to cases," he ordered peremptorily.

"Exactly," agreed Henshaw. "Clench, bring the papers."

Clench rose with alacrity and fetched from the buffet brown leather portfolio. He extracted from this a map which he spread out before John More. "Here we are," he said "Here's the border; here's El Paso, and here's Nogales." He placed two fingers across the large scale map. "And here are the mines—some mines!" They both grinned and winked as he shifted his fingers slightly. "Practically on the railroads—easy come, easy go!"

"Mr. Moore knows all that," said Henshaw impatiently.

"Not all all," said John coolly. "This is what I am here to find out. He bent over the map. "El Paso and Nogales. And you say the mines are here?"

Clench grinned still more broadly. "Sure! They're there. Real holes in the ground and silver in the holes they do say."

"You have never examined them yourself?" suggested John politely. He had located Tubutama—and here was the ranch marked.

"No," said Clench. "I don't fancy diving into a thousand feet of water."

"Just so," said John.

"Why we talk of the mines?" broke in Roderiguez.

"You yourself suggested getting down to cases—Mr. Moore," said Henshaw.

John Moore looked up at them. "We talk of mines because I am a mining engineer and interested—in these mines," he said.

"Sure he is," said Clench. "Mr. Moore is down here to sell us mining machinery and nothing else but!"

"Clearly put," said John.

"Bah!" said Roderiguez, "are you going to deliver to us ten thousand rifles and ammunition or—not!"

How Much, Mr. Candidate?

The Columbiana county board of deputy state supervisors of elections today called the attention of candidates who sought preferment in the Republican and Democratic primaries on Tuesday, to the provisions of the corrupt practices act which require a sworn statement of campaign receipts and expenditures.

Within ten days from the late of the balloting, or not later than Friday, August 19, unsuccessful candidates as well as party nominees must file a detailed statement of contributions and disbursement in their race for municipal offices. This applies to all persons whose names appeared on the ballots in the four cities and four villages which participated in the primaries.

Failure to comply with the law means a fine or imprisonment, or both, for the delinquents and the added penalty of withholding of certificate of nomination in the case of a successful candidate. Under the law, election officials must report the names of delinquents to the prosecuting attorney who is empowered to press the cases in court.

A hint to the wise should be sufficient.

More Tuberculosis

According to the chief of staff of the Wisconsin Tuberculosis association, there is an increasing number of girls and young women between the ages of 15 and 25 breaking down and entering the state's sanatoria to be treated for tuberculosis. He suggests several reasons for this, such as dieting in an effort to be stylishly thin, wearing insufficient warm clothing in cold weather, smoking and the strenuous social life that permits late hours and too little rest for growing girls.

Some of these reasons are undoubtedly valid. Fortunately the slat figure, even for the flapper, is no longer stylish and the unwise diet fads will go out with it. Whether or not smoking is causing tuberculosis among women is something that needs further investigation by the doctors. The matter of clothing, too, is one that must vary with the locality and the daily routine of the individual. The girl who rides about in a closed car and spends her indoor time in well-heated rooms and her outdoor time in sports costume is not so greatly in need of warm clothing as the girl who rides on street cars and stands on windy corners waiting for them.

Probably the most serious and valid of the reasons given is the one about insufficient rest. Rest is a word not found in the flapper's or debutante's dictionary.. They believe they can keep going day and night, and their boundless energy and vitality is truly marvelous. Apparently, it is not inexhaustible.

Smoke And Work

The comptroller at the New Jersey statehouse in Trenton rules that girl stenographers and clerks may not smoke during office hours, and some of the girls are "het up" about it.

They needn't be. The comptroller justly observes that the men in his department are not permitted, either, to smoke at their desks, and he doesn't see why an exception should be made of the women.

For that matter, the work of the world would probably be performed better if there were rules everywhere against people smoking at desks. Smokers accustomed to self-observation usually find that smoking is a hindrance to good work, and so postpone their indulgence until the work is done.

Nicotine may rouse the fancy and promote noble thoughts and emotions, but not practical effort. The smoker feels himself more effective while under the influence of the drug, but as a matter of fact is usually less effective. Dulling one's senses and inducing complacent dream states is better reserved for hours of idleness and recreation.

Old Age

Mme. Schumann-Heinck, returned to America and frankly admitting her 66 years, shows herself as wise as she is musical. She will soon start on another concert tour lasting seven or eight months and calling for more than 70 arduous engagements.

"I am still the old war horse champing at the bit," she says. 'I'll be the war horse to the end. Somehow I cannot be old—I do not believe that I shall ever be old. Age is something of the mind, and my mind is young. I feel as young as Lindbergh."

Yes, when people grow old it is in their minds more than their bodies. The slant of mind is the thing that tells. You know an old person when, whatever his age, he looks backward rather than forward, and you recognize a young person when he looks forward regardless of years. The middle-aged man or woman whose thoughts are all of the past is dead already. The octogenarian busily planning for the future, or happily contemplating other people's plans for the future, had no death in him.

Anyone who "says it with flowers "in England has to learn a very extensive language now. There are 3,000 more kinds of roses, 10,000 more kinds of gladioli and 6,500 more kinds of dahlias than there were 20 years ago. The florist industry needs a Hoover to simplify and standardize it.

The fashionable week-end generally has a weak ending.

As far as we're concerned, Commander Byrd may have all the glory there is in the Antarctic. We can't imagine any piece of real estate that appeals to us less than the Antarctic Continent.

The Summer Widower—— By Fontaine Fox

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—It is frequently stated that Broadway is the most agreeable of all places in which to be broke. It may be no disgrace to be poor here but paraphrasing Kin Hubbard it might as well be. Indeed there are few spots where a money valuation is so high.

Broadway's sympathy for the broke is expressed with a pitying "He was a good kid when he had it!" Almost any person who loiters along Broadway can point out a half dozen to the block who were rolling in kudos a year or so ago but are stony now.

They may have backed a show, played ponies that suddenly decided not to be in a hurry or became a sugar daddy. Broadway has a hundred and one shrewd tricks to make a fat wallet lean. And the wiser they are the harder they seem to plop.

The unfortunate who go broke rarely stage a financial comeback along the street that whips the universe. They must go elsewhere and begin over again. A score of so called "millionaire kids" have had their fling only to wonder how it all vanished so quickly.

They discover that even the headwaters who uncorked their lowest bows in flushed days greet them in adversity with a refrigerated reserve. It requires money to make Broadway click. It has no time for "has beens." It is interested in the eternal now.

Men who have successfully bucked the so-called Broadway game are those with plenty of money and sense of restraint. They dipped into the gaiety as a young clerk goes to Coney Island—a mere lark. And returned to their desks to forget all about it until the next fling.

Broadway claims those who are perpetually thrilled by its false camaraderie. A well filled purse draws fair weather friends as sugar attracts flies. To those seeking only pleasure there is no denying its opulence and charm. But as for the broke, ask some members of the Tin Cup Brigade on almost any corner, Second or Third Avenue has much more sympathy for the broke than Broadway.

The last stand of old New York horses unfit for further work is a packing company in Brooklyn. They are bought slaughtered and shipped as horse meat to the trade in France and Belgium which buys its meat from the Boucherie Chevaline.

Horses for work purposes have not gone out. Thousands are used daily for trucking. On East 24th street a horse auction sale is in daily progress and the old time horse trader is as conspicious as he was in other days.

It has been discovered that the men who invented ice cream sodas are alive and residing in New York. One is named John Robertson and the other is Francis Tietz. They did not mke a penny out of their invention although others made millions. The yearly profit of one soda fountain in the Times Square section was said

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

The Candy Business.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 11.—All is not sweet with the candy business. On the contrary, it is reported that there are things about it that are decidedly sour. Trade papers are expressing alarm over the existing conditions in the business, manufacturers and distributors are worried, and the men who direct the trade organizations are asserting that something has to be done about it.

That this is not mere "trade talk" is indicated by the statement attributed to an official of the Department of Commerce who was asked where, in his business, the candy business was going.

"It's going to hell; that's where it's going," he is said to have replied.

To the general public that has witnessed the recent remarkable expansion in the candy business this may come as a matter of considerable surprise. It is true that the industry has grown rapidly within the last few years and more particularly since the World war. It has had, in fact, a greater growth in the last quarter of a century than it had in the hundred years preceding. It is now approximately a billion-dollar industry. It sells on an average $8 worth of its products every year to every man, woman and child in the United States. Prohibition gave it a great boost, for persons accustomed to alcoholic drinks who are deprived of them, crave sweets. On the whole, consumers are paying more for their candy while at the same time their rate of consumption has increased.

What, then, can be the matter with the business? No one, it seems, is prepared to make a conclusive answer to that question, but from the complaints that are being heard an idea may be obtained as to some of the disturbing factors in the situation. It may be noted, also, that the National Confectioners' Association is making a study of the problem and has raised a fund of more than $1,000,000 that will be expended in an advertising campaign that it is hoped will prove at least a partial solution.

Over-Production Is Seen.

A fundamental trouble with the industry, it is said, is overproduction. More candy is being made than the country can consume. Also it is charged that there are too many manufacturers — particularly too many small manufacturers who can operate on small capital—and that the result is unintelligent if not unfair competition and a lamentable lack of standardized trade practices. There is too much striving for novelties and manufacturers make so many different kinds or pieces that their costs run unduly high. This diversity of product, with 3,000 or more manufacturers trying to outdo each other with distinctive brands, may appeal to the public, but it raises hob with the industry.

The distribution or retail end of the business likewise is in a state that works hardship on the manufacturers. There is too much price cutting on the part of retailers with whom candy is but a side line and who can always find manufacturers who will quote them prices so low as to spell disaster for their competitors and grief for other manufacturers.

Candy is retailed by almost every kind of establishment from auto accessory shops and filling stations to stationery and book stores. This was revealed strikingly in the retail census of the city of Baltimore recently made under the auspices of the United States Chamber of Commerce. This census showed 976 regular candy and confectionery establishments in the city and 1,914 other stores and shops where candy was sold.

Of these other candy retailers, 1,185 were groceries and delicatessens, 132 were soft drink and ice cream emporiums, 194 were drug stores, 147 were cigar and tobacco shops, 35 were bakeries, 53 were restaurants, 21 were fruit and vegetable stores, 24 were five and ten cent stores, 48 were dry goods and notions stores, 9 were department stores, and 6 were general stores.

Places where it may occasion surprise to know that candy was sold as a side line included 1 auto accessory, 2 clothing and furnishings stores, 1 coal, wood, and ice dealer, 11 dairy and poultry products establishments, 1 filling station, 40 meat, poultry, and fish dealers, 1 music store, 4 stationery and book stores, 3 toys and game shops, and 1 retailer of motorcycles and bicycles.

Also it was shown that candy was sold frequently in theatre lobbies, school canteens, baseball parks, church festivals, and amusement parks.

Where Bulk of Business Goes.

The regular candy stores gets the bulk of the business, the census shows, their sales amounting to about

THE GROWTH OF AN ERROR

Since Charles M. Schwab fell from grace and became a semi-professional after-dinner speaker, he has been retailing across banquet tables an incident which he claims figured in a personal experience. Still, it is well to view with suspicion the alleged reminiscences of any after-dinner speaker. It may be that the thing didn't happen to him at all. Perhaps he only heard it somewhere. Be that as it may, Mr. Schwab states that during one of his trips to Europe he met a gentleman whose breast was almost entirely covered with decorations bestowed by various continental governments.

"Tell me, sir," said Mr. Schwab, "the story of the heroisms or the achievements, as the case may be, for which you were awarded this extraordinary number of honors?"

"I shall be perfectly frank with you," stated the man. "This large medal here—the one containing the pigeon-blood ruby in the fringe of amethysts—was the first to be bestowed upon me. I received all the others as a result of having received that one."

"And for what were you given the first one?" inquired Schwab.

"Oh," said the European, "that one was given to me by mistake."

Child-birth

Here is a wonderful message to all expectant mothers!

When the Little One arrives, you can have that moment more free from suffering than you have perhaps imagined. An eminent physician, expert in this science, has shown the way. It was he who first produced the great remedy, "Mother's Friend." Mrs. C. J. Hartman, Scranton, Pa., says:

"With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used 'Mother's Friend' and had only a nurse; we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes." Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did. Don't wait, start today, and meanwhile write to Bradfield Regulator Co., BA 46, Atlanta, Ga., for a free illustrated book containing information every expectant mother should have. "Mother's Friend" is sold by all drug stores—everywhere.

CLICQUOT CLUB is a veritable vintage that stimulates the senses and satisfies the natural craving for a pure, delicious drink.

The connoisseur who tests a rare old beverage bases his verdict on four cardinal considerations—Color, Bouquet, Flavor and Body.

Lifting to the light a glass of Clicquot Club Ginger Ale, first of all he sees a sparkling glow; next he whiffs a subtle fragrance born of the perfect blending of the fruit flavors—orange, lemon, lime, and the choicest ginger root from Jamaica—a bouquet of alluring aroma.

The first taste tells a story of flavor, which represents the devoted cooperation of skilled craftsmen with the mellowing powers of Time.

And, like fine wine, Clicquot Club has body, which comes into being through the intermingling of the right proportions of sweetening and flavor, plus aging, which supplies that indefinable quality so highly appreciated.

Based on the virgin water of a natural spring, and containing ingredients whose quality is higher than the highest government standards, Clicquot Club is unique in its purity.

Your choice—the rich Golden, or the delicate Pale Dry—and you have the ultimate in a pure, exhilarating drink.

WELLSVILLE SEWER SURVEY COMMITTEE IS NAMED

Traction Company and City Engineer Will Assist.

ACTION URGED

D. S. Brookman Will Head Citizens' Board.

Committee of seven Wellsville citizens, named by Council President Clyde Baker at last night's adjourned meeting, will begin work immediately on their task of inspecting drainage conditions from Fourteenth street to the west end of the city.

Here is the committee:

First ward, D. S. Brookman (chairman); second ward—C. C. Ewing; third ward—Frank Kerr; fourth ward—Isaac Cable; at large—Martin Foley, C. J. Berg and J. S. McLane.

The committee will inspect all sections of the city from Fourteenth street west where sewers have been giving trouble and will return recommendations to city council as to the best possible methods of making improvements.

To some extent the committee's duties were outlined by Solicitor S. S. Luccock. He pointed out that the city's bonded indebtness is well up to the limit. The committee, he explained, will be expected to confer with the city auditor to determine financial conditions that enter into the project. The city's bonded indebtedness now, he made clear is well above $400,000, and the law sets a limit of $500,000.

The committee, he explained further, can determine the carrying power best accommodating heavy flows of of present sewers and methods of water and will be aided in this task by R. D. McGill, city engineer, and Engineer Frederick of the traction company.

The city, Luccock said, wants to eliminate the danger point in regard to heavy rains and storms, and in the event that it is decided to submit bond issues to the vote of the people, immediate action will be necessary in order that resolutions can be filed with the board of deputy supervisors of elections.

Isaac Cable, of the fourth ward, who, along with Frank Kerr, of the third ward and C. C. Ewing of the second, attended the meeting, told council that "you can't expect us to be governed by financial conditions because we're going to make recommendations for what we think will be the best methods of improvement." At the same time, Cable pointed out, the committee will attempt to placate property owners who are threatening damage suits as a result of alleged damage to their buildings caused by the inadequacy of sewers.

Solicitor Luccock pointed out that it is entirely possible the damaged property owners will hold up court action if it is seen that steps will be taken to improve conditions.

Glee Club Concert.

The Twin City Glee club will give a concert on Friday evening, August 12, in the Hammondsville Christian church.

This group of colored musicians has performed in various communities in the district, offering a well balanced program.

TO THE VOTERS OF WELLSVILLE

I am indeed very grateful for the splendid support given me at the polls on Tuesday. I earnestly solicit the support of all in the November election and assure you that if elected it will be my sincere endeavor to at all times be on the job, giving the best administration for all the people of Wellsville.

WALLACE L. FOGO.

COUPLE WED IN LA GRANGE, ILL.

Miss Bertha Lonie Bride of Lester Forbes, of Wellsville.

Miss Bertha Isabel Lonie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Lonie, of LaGrange, Ill., and Lester Noble Forbes, son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Forbes, of Broadway, Wellsville, were married Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents in South Kensington avenue, LaGrange.

The ceremony was performed by Dr. Robert Pugh, pastor of the Presbyterian church and an old friend of the family. Preceding the service a program of nuptial music was given by Mrs. Paul Frederick of Berwyn, pianist, and Miss Eleanor Mercereau of LaGrange, violinist.

To the strains of Mendelssoun's wedding march played by Mrs. Frederick, the bride, with her matron of honor, Mrs. William Nuesse, of Turtle Lake, Wis., descended the stairway and was met by her father who gave her in marriage. The bridegroom and his best man, Donald Forbes, a brother, awaited the bride at the fireplace which was artistically banked with flowers and ferns and lighted by cathedral tapers.

The bride was attractive in a charming gown of white georgette crepe, simply fashioned with basque waist and full skirt. Her lovely wedding veil which has been in the family for some time, was arranged with clusters of orange blossoms at each side of the cap effect. She carried a shower bouquet of roses, lilies of the valley and swansonia. Mrs. Forbes served as Mrs. Nuesse's bridesmaid one year ago.

Following the ceremony the guests were invited to the Green Shutters Tea house where a wedding luncheon was served. Covers were laid for 27 at one table, the appointments carrying out the dainty color scheme of pink and white.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Forbes are graduates of Ohio State university. Mrs. Forbes is affiliated with Phi Pi Epsilon sorority and Mr. Forbes is a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. The bride has been engaged in psychological work in the LaGrange public schools. Mr. Forbes is an electrical engineer with the Northern Indiana Public Service company at Hammond, Ind.

The young couple left for a wedding trip through the west and will spend some time at Yellowstone Park and Colorado Springs, Colo. They will be at home after Sept. 1 at the corner of Vine and Meadow lane, Hammond, Ind.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. James A. Forbes and son, Donald Forbes, and Miss Bertha Noble of Wellsville, O.; Mrs. Frederick of Berwyn and Mrs. Neusse of Turtle Lake, Wis.

I wish to thank the voters for their splendid support at the nomination, and, if elected, I will still work for the interests of the people.

CLYDE BAKER

Although defeated, I desire to thank my friends for their support at the primaries and will try to serve their best interests the remainder of my term.

APPROVE 20TH STREET SEWER

Ordinance is Passed as Emergency by Solons.

Determining ordinance for the construction of the Twentieth street storm sewer was passed on third reading under suspension of rules by council last night.

The ordinance a week ago had been passed on first reading.

Councilman Connor objected to the emergency passing of the measure, pointing out that if a committee was going to be appointed to consider sewers as a whole, the Twentieth street sewer should also come under its supervision as well.

The vote was 6 to 1, sufficient to carrying the ordinance.

There being no remonstrance from property owners, council enacted an ordinance closing the alley between Buckeye avenue and Vulcan alley.

At the suggestion of Mayor W. L. Fogo the street and light committee will inspect light standards to determine the color for painting; a telephone pole near the Madden gasoline station in Third street which, it has been suggested, should be moved, and will consider the advisability of numbering light poles and standards in order that accurate reports may be made in outage cases.

SCIENTIFIC FLY-TOX

Science Again Contributes To The Joy Of Living.

Among the great benefactions that science has bestowed upon mankind is Fly-Tox. Touch any fly, mosquito, roach—any bug or insect — with its cleanly, fragrant spray. They cannot breathe. And yet Fly-Tox is harmless to humans. A child may use without danger. But Fly-Tox is certain death to all kinds of household bugs and insects.

May be relieved by rational treatment—it can not be rubbed away.

Are you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, commonly called rheumatism, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried almost everything. Went to Hot Springs . . . . then finally decided to try S.S.E. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains entirely left me. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S.S.S. is the best." Earl C. Campbell, 115 West Main Street Johnson City, Tenn.

S.S.S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

From youth to later years S.S.S. is a proven tonic—give it and take it where a tonic is indicated.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

COUNTY ROADS TO BE INSPECTED

State Engineers Make Inspection in Brooke and Hancock Counties.

J. O. McKinney, assistant division engineer of the state highway department, Charleston, together with a number of state road engineers have concluded a tour of inspection in Hancock and Brooke counties.

State routes in both counties were given careful inspection by the officials who expressed the belief that improvements planned for certain sections should be completed this year. Such report will be made upon their return to the state capital.

The most important link of the highway designated for improvement and discussed by the engineers was the stretch from the north city limits of Follansbee to the east Steubenville bridge. The survey, plans and specifications for this section of the road has been completed and only awaits the awarding of the contract by the state road commission, for its improvement.

Five Musical Clowns Appear at Ceramic

Five Musical Clowns in a musical act, will be featured at the Ceramic theatre for three days, starting today, in conjunction with the Paramount production, "Drums of the Desert" adapted from Zane Grey's famous western novel.

This vaudeville offering of comedy will appeal especially to the children. The five members of the company are trained musicians, playing 32 different instruments. They have traveled as clowns with a number of the larger tent shows.

Zane Grey has the faculty of making fiction from fact which is one of the reasons why his stories ring so true. "Drums of the Desert" for instance, adapted from "Desert Bound" the latest Zane Grey story to come to the screen as a Paramount picture, is based on the discovery of oil under the desert lands of a Navajo Indian reservation and the attempts of bandits to wrest it from the red men.

During the filming of the production on the original locale it was learned that the Indians plan to build a bridge spanning the river at the ferry point where much of the original story's action occurred. Funds for the building of this bridge were acquired through the sale of oil discovered in the desert and saved for the Indians through the efforts of a white man who played square.

Warner Baxter is John Curry, friend of the Indians, the man who plays square. Opposite him is Marietta Millner, the little European girl who makes her American screen debut in "Drums of the Desert." Others in the cast are Ford Sterling, Wallace MacDonald, Heinie Conklin, George Irving, Bernard Siegel and Guy Oliver.

All the steel used in a bridge being constructed over the Choluteca River, Honduras, by an American engineer, is from America.

One thousand brick houses, each with three rooms, kitchen and bath, are being built in Aberdeen, Scotland, at a cost of $1,950 each.

KAISER'S "Butternut" Bread

BAKED DAILY in East Liverpool and sold at all independent Grocers, Not at Chain Stores.

The Existing Lack of Civic Cooperation! Is It Through Willfulness or Carelessness?

And by civic co-operation, we mean the patronizing of home industries and the buying of Home Products. We are inclined to believe it is carelessness, for no matter how hard we try, we cannot quite conceive of the man or woman who would deliberately ask for and buy products imported from other cities when home products of equal and even better quality can be obtained at the same price.

Particularly do we call your attention to the purchase of baked products—We have in our city and cummunity, Chester, Newell and Wellsville—sufficient bakeries—employing home labor—and paying local, county and state taxes—to easily supply the demands of the entire territory—and yet—we permit at least a dozen bakeries in Akron, Youngstown, Pittsburgh and other cities to truck their products into our city and walk off with a nice sum of money daily without a penny donation in return to the upkeep of our community.

Whose Fault Is It? Not the local baker who is endeavoring to give you the best quality bread at the lowest price — The Fault is ours and Carelessness in Buying is the reason. Too often we say to our grocer, "A loaf of bread, please,' and take what he hands out to us. Why can't we all be thinkers—learn the names of our home baked products—and demand them when we buy. We'll then be doing our bit toward civic co-operation and the whole community will profit thereby.

CLAIM COAL FIELD "WAR" IS STRUGGLE FOR EXISTENCE

BOTH FORCES ADMIT STRIKE IS SHOWDOWN

Governor's Eyes on Mine Fight in Ohio.

MEN STAND PAT

Newspaper Writer Pays Visit to Zone Near Newport.

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Review-Tribune.

NEWPORT, O., Aug 11 — A war correspondent would feel at home in central Ohio, where the crooked Tuscarawas winds its muddy way around densely wooded hills, through some of the richest coal mining country in the nation. For there has been a struggle between miners and coal operators of such serious nature that Governor A. Victor Donahey, holding the national guard in leash, has been pleading for peace with all the resources at his command.

"Soldiers" in both "armies" have been wearing the same uniform—miners' garb. One force is union—the other non-union. The opposing forces have met in open skirmishes. Shots have been exchanged and mine property has been destroyed. It's an economic "war" that's being fought—a struggle, each side claims, for existence.

Tipple Destroyed.

One of the most serious disturbances in Ohio took place at the Maple Leaf mine, near Newport. The mine tipple was burned. The owners attributed the destruction to union sympathizers. Union leaders have attributed it to others.

Arriving at Newport, a tiny town, boasting one store ana a garage, it is difficult to obtain transportation to the mine, situated in the hills three miles distant. Just as in war time, the battle front is forbidden territory. The townsfolk, eager to keep out of the scrap, have been reluctant to approach the mine property.

Once at the mine, the correspondent is welcomed by the small crew stationed there, for the men believe the non-union forces have not been given a square deal by the press. They are eager to tell their story.

Picket Camp Established.

The mine in question, formerly union, was opened on a non-union basis. Next morning the miners say they were turned back as they started down the road to the mine by a crowd of union men, although the following day they were unmolested. The union miners established a picket camp a few hundred yards from the mine, attempting to persuade the non-union workers to join the union ranks as they passed the camp each day.

The operators, resenting the camp at the doors, said: "Our men were addressed with vile language and their very lives threatened."

Spasmodic disturbances at the mine finally resulted in the burning of the tipple. The mine is situated on a level spot with a sharp rise just behind it. Owners say union sympathizers, some 75 strong, gathered on the hill firing down at the 11 strike breakers, smashing windows and slightly wounding a farmer who had stopped at the mine. Then, the tipple burst into flames.

Operators' Side.

The operators declare: "The men want $7.50 a day for day men and 67 cents a ton for loading wide coal and 89 cents for narrow and we simply can't pay it. West Virginia, Maryland and Western Pennsylvania, where the mines are non-union, pay 30 cents a ton for loading and $3.50 a day. Consequently they are able to undersell us and ruin our business. Union mines in the central competitive field, that is central and western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois had to close or suffer enormous losses.

"Because we lost many contracts through our inability to compete with the non-union fields one mine in Belmont county worked only 75 days in 1925 and 74 in 1926. The mine whose tipple was burned worked 30 days in 1926, but in '94 and '95 it worked full time because of several large contracts."

Union's Side.

On the other hand, the union miners have answered: "We refuse to work under any other than the Jacksonville scale."

Tom Price, district union president, and miners' spokesman, said, at his home at Midvale, O., "To give in to the operators and accept their scale would mean going back to conditions tht existed 30 years ago and that is impossible. The operators tell us if the men go back to work for $5 a day they will promise steady employment. But they know that is not true, for water, cave-ins and gas make layoffs necessary.

"We will not work under the same conditions as miners in West Virginia, where miners have no voice whatever.

Want More Safety Devices.

"We demand a living wage and a safe place to work. We insist that the operators instal more safety devices to end the appalling number of mine deaths each year.

"If the operators will stop cutting each other's throats and sell their coal at a price that will enable them to make a profit their troubles will be solved.

"We view this not as a wage dispute, for the operators couldn't make money, for the operators couldn't make money if they paid us even as little as $3 a day if they keep up their cut-throat competition, but as a desperate attempt to crush the union."

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Speculative interest was largely focused on General Motors at the beginning of trading today, in view of the meeting this afternoon of the directors of the corporation for dividend action. Wall Street had no definite ideas on the probable action of the directors, except that a melon of some kind is expected, either today or at the next quarterly meeting.

The railroad stocks and the New Yory City utilities were the leaders in a moderate rally at the outset, but stocks flowed into the market quite freely before the end of the first hour, and the list turned reactionary, with specialties headed downward. Motor stocks also felt the weight of selling pressure, and moderate losses were marked up against Chrysler, Hudson, Packard and Studebaker.

The present outlook for the proposed railroad consolidations is not very bright, as related to this year's prospects, and "outside liquidation" of the merger rails is now being reported in the financial district. Prices of some of the well known rails were somewhat lower in consequence, but good buying continued in Pennsyvania and other of the low-priced dividend issues.

Radio sold up about 2 points on reports that the suit against its leading competitor in receiving sets had been won on a basis that will mean continued profits to the corporation. General Railway Signal also continued its new high above 148, up 4 points. Conspectacular market course, reaching a solidated gas reached a new high on rumors of a possible merger with Brooklyn Union Gas, under new leadership.

Commodity markets were steady, with cotton up a dollar a bale, September wheat up half a cent, oil unchanged. Call money 3 3-4 per cent.

LAUNCH NEW MOVES TO SAVE CONDEMNED MEN

Await Ruling on Question of Writ of Error.

NEW AFFIDAVIT

Entire Court May Act In Sacco-Vanzetti Case.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—The first of a series of new and involved legal moves to save Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti from the electric chair were under way today.

Decision on the question of permitting the bill of exceptions to his dismissal of the petition for a writ of error made by the defense to go to the full bench of the state supreme court is to come from Judge George A Sanderson.

Pending the decision, other legal proceedings were held in abeyance by defense lawyers, led by former District Attorney Arthur D. Hill.

The petition for a writ of error was brought on the ground of alleged prejudice by trial Judge Webster Thayer. The "evidence" was a series of affidavits recounting alleged conversations by the jurist and his alleged "unfair" attitude on the bench in connection with the radical beliefs of Sacco and Vanzetti. An investigating committee of Governor Alvan T. Fuller, however, found that while the judge was "indiscreet" in conversations outside the court room, on the bench he was fair and impartial.

Council Endorses Respite.

A new affidavit was brought here today from Darmouth college, the alma mater of Judge Thayer. It was from Professor James E. Richardson and told of an alleged statement regarding radicals by the judge. Judge Thayer, in days gone by was a star infielder for the Dartmouth college baseball nine.

If Judge Sanderson decides he had the "power and duty," the exceptions will go to the full bench. Five justices within reach of Boston were notified by telegram today to be in readiness to sit here on Monday.

Governor Alvan T. Fuller in granting the respite until midnight August 22 said the courts had no power to give one, and that he was so acting to "afford the courts an opportunity to complete the consideration of the proceedings now pending." The governor was said to be of the opinion that Sacco and Vanzetti have had a fair trial, that Judge Thayer was fair and that the course of the law has been halted too long already. However, he took into consideration the plea of Defense Counsel Hill that more time should be given for the consideration and deciding of various new motions. The governor's respite was endorsed by the executive council, although two councillors were understood to have been against another delay.

Federal Judges Reject Case

The first moves to carry the case to the federal Courts failed. Writs of habeas corpus were sought of Judge George A. Sanderson of the United States Circuit Courts of Appeals and Associat Justice Oliver Wendall Holmes of the United States Supreme Court. The latter held an ex parte hearing at his Beverly Farms summer home.

Both federal judges held that under the law they could not act, that the law points involved did not warrant interference with the State Courts.

Gov. Fuller's secretary, Herman MacDonald, emphasized to Sacco and Vanzetti defense committee men who sought to have the Governor intervene on the grounds of humanity that as a law officer the chief executive could be concerned only with the legal phase of the case.

Arrest Six Alleged Radicals.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—Six Yonkers, N. Y., men were arrested today when police raiders found radical literature in their room in a West End hotel and when the men failed to explain their presence in the city.

They were held as suspicious persons and were finger-printed and questioned as to their whereabouts at the time of the subway explosions in New York.

BOSTON MOVING VAN ATTACHED

A large moving van, belonging to the Twentieth Century Moving company of Boston, Mass., is being held in a local garage as the result of attachment proceedings, which have been filed in common pleas court at Lisbon, by Attorney P. V. Mackall in behalf of Herbert C. Mallison.

Mallison seeks $6,500 from the company which he alleges represents the value of household furnishings carried in the truck. He claims that he contracted with the company to move his household furnishings from Worcester, Mass., to East Liverpool for $175. He claims that the truck owners demanded an increased carrier fee which he refused to pay.

When the truck arrived here with the furniture on Tuesday it was immediately attached by Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Kindsvatter and ordered it held at the Milliron garage. It has been appraised at $8,000. The truck had been engaged to transport the household goods of Dr. Donald W. MacLeod from East Liverpool to Boston.

FORD TAKES RIDE WITH LINDBERGH

FORD AIRPORT, DEARBORN, Mich, Aug 11—Henry Ford, America's first billionaire took his first airplane flight today when he went up with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in his "Spirit of St. Louis" for three or four minutes.

Lindbergh soared over the airport and then returned safely to the ground.

NEW YORK FIRST STOP FOR LEVINE

PARIS Aug. 11—New York will be the first destination on his return across the Atlantic ocean from Paris, Col. Charles A. Levine, owner of the Bellanca monoplane, Columbia, announced today.

He added that if the fuel tanks still hold sufficient gasoline when the plane reaches New York, he will continue on to Philadelphia in an effort to win the $25,000 prize money offered by the Philadelphia bulletin for the first non-stop flight between Europe and Philadelphia.

"The $25,000 prize money will help pay the expenses of the flight," Levine commented. "It is not so bad for an hour's work."

35 Are Injured

Red Flag" and the "Internationale," the mob tried to fight its way past a cordon of 1,000 foot and mounted policemen into Grosvenor Gardens.

There were 500 policemen in line when the mob began marching down Park Lane in the direction of the Embassy. In the van was a young, bobbed haired girl wildly gesticulating and shouting; "The damned American torturers are not going to kill our Sacco and Vanzetti."

Mounted Police Charge Mob.

The situation began to get ugly by midnight and orders were given for the mounted police to charge the mob with drawn batons in an effort to force it back towards Hyde Park.

Mounted police in heavy formation drove their horses into the press, forcing the crowds into side streets amid the shrieks of women, many of whom fainted and had to be taken into adjacent houses for first aid treatment.

The crowd scattered in all directions, fighting and struggling with the police. A solid mass of people jammed against the balustrade of a house were precipitated into an area way when other crowds, fleeing from the police, were forced against them.

Of the 25 injured two were so badly hurt they had to be taken to the hospital.

Finally the police cleared the block around the embassy and gradually succeeded in forcing back the mob towards Hyde Park.

Fail to Reach Embassy.

Communists here and there again attempted to re-form the crowds, but were unsuccessful owing to the activities of the large force of police that had been reinforced from time to time.

It was estimated that at least 2,000 police were on duty during the demonstration, some af Hyde Park, some around the embassy and others along intervening streets.

The demonstration failed of its main objective, which was to reach the embassy. Only the caretaker was at the embassy building at the time, the staff having left hours earlier after the day's work was completed.

GUARD OFFICER STILL AT LISBON

West Point Mining Zone Reported Quiet.

Major A. R. Thomas, Ohio National Guard officer, who arrived at Lisbon last Friday on instructions from Columbus to make a detailed survey of conditions at the West Point mine field, has not been advised when he will be withdrawn from the Columbiana county district.

"Quiet" is the only word that fully describes the present situation at West Point. Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Kindsvatter continues to visit West Point daily, and frequently is accompanied by Major Thomas.

Two special deputy sheriffs are on duty at the West Point mine, one on day shift and another at night. These men are merely guarding the property of the Seger Fuel Co. against possible acts of arson.

Eleventh Hour Respite

execution there is no hue and cry, has eaten regularly, and everything offered him.

There was silence in the cells for a few moments after the warden made this announcement. Then a sign from the weakened Sacco, as his companion, Vanzetti spoke.

"I am glad," said Vanzetti, simply. "I want to see my sister before I die."

He referred to the sister from the little town of his nativity in Italy, who is trying to get to America to see her brother before the law takes his life.

There was another low song from the cells soon after the warden's footsteps died away in the death corridor. The song was "Mother O' Mine."

News Received Quietly.

The news of the respite was received quietly enough by the men who were resigned to death. But to their families, and to the hundreds of their friends who have flocked to Boston to protest execution, it was different. There were cheers from those who had been arrested earlier in the day for picketing the state house in their behalf. They went to court today with light hearts to answer charges of sauntering and loitering. While there's life, there's hope.

Mrs. Sacco was in a state of collapse when the news was brought her. She had bade her husband goodbye at the prison yesterday and hurried away to the home of friends. Her small daughter, Inez, who is seven, born after her father's arrest, cried most of the evening because, the friends said, she "felt" something was happening.

Today, the condemned men were to leave the grim, bare cells of the death house for the comparatively more cheerful cells in the Cherry Hill section where ordinary criminals are confined. All Boston believes, however, that they will be back in those same death cells by the 22nd of August.

In a town the size of East Liverpool one really enjoys a home. In a city one is born in a hospital, reared in a boarding school, educated in college, courted in automobiles, married in a church, spends the morning golfing, afternoons playing bridge and evenings at the movies. When sick one goes to the hospital and when dead is buried from the undertaker's. — Live in East Liverpool and enjoy your home.

Dangerous Varicose Veins Can Be Reduced

Never mind what people say: If you have varicose or swollen veins and want to reduce them to normal, go to any live druggist and ask for an original two-ounce bottle of Emerald Oil (full strength). If he hasn't it, he can get it.

Apply it to the enlarged veins as directed and improvement will be noticed in a few days. Continue its use until veins return to normal size. It is guaranteed to reduce swollen veins or money back by all good druggists.

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

JAPANESE VIEW OF GENEVA NAVAL DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE GLOOMY

By Charles P. Stewart.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—"Peace! Everybody wants peace. Of course. But peace conferences—well—"

And Viscount Ishii shrugged his shoulders and made a face.

He was the same Viscount Ishii we've been reading about in the newspapers, as the Mikado's representative at the Geneva conference, which fizzled the other day, after trying for months to limit the three leading sea powers' navies—Britain's, America's and Japan's.

VISCOUNT ISHII

But this was a long while ago—about 15 years—before the war.

Viscount Ishii—Ee-shee-ee, in three syllables—was Japanese foreign minister then.

THE Chinese revolution, which has been raging intermittently ever since, had just broken out.

On my way to give it the once over, I'd stopped off to see Tokyo.

Those islanders are the most hospitable people on earth.

The minute Editor Mitsunaga of the Nippon Dempo Tshushinsha—Nippon, Japan: Dempo, telegraph; Tshushinsha, news company—heard there was a visiting fellow scribe in town, from the occident, he was right on hand to do the agreeable.

"Ishii," he told me, "speaks English. You'll want to see him." And he took me right up to the foreign office. It was no trick at all.

THE talk was about nothing in particular. How the subject of peace conferences came up I don't remember. Probably an attempt was being made to pull one off at The Hague. The air was full of peace just before the war.

The viscount was unenthusiastic, to say the least.

He didn't expect to have what he said repeated and it wouldn't have done then, but at this distance of time, who cares!

"If peace conferences meant peace," he said, "I'd welcome them. Naturally, I'm for peace, like everybody else.

"But the trouble is, they generally develop awkward situations.

"What looks to one country like a perfectly beautiful, practical peace idea may look threatening to some other country.

"Each country has its own peculiar problems, which other countries can't be made to understand. For that matter, a nation's representatives don't necessarily care to explain all its inner-most problems to the whole world."

"THE upshot usually is," complained the viscount, "that some of the negotiators yield against their better judgment and never get over regretting it, or else they balk and their motives are suspected.

"One thing is about as bad as the other.

"My observation of peace conferences has been that relations seldom are as pleasant afterward as they were before."

WELL, the Geneva conference is ended and Viscount Ishii, among the other delegates, is on his way home.

Before it opened it was agreed on all hands that an armed clash between this country and the British was "unthinkable." No doubt it is yet. Yet, if it's "unthinkable" to the British, what the dickens is the reason that they were so bound and determined to have a stronger navy than we have?

In justice to Viscount Ishii it should be said that he worked like a Trojan to bring about some sort of an agreement, but in spite of all he could do the conference failed.

How THE Other Half Behaves

Fair Decision.

VIENNA.—Since the very beginning of time, women, vain and heartless creatures, have enjoyed the combat of man against man to win her favor. So when Miss Linde Weiss, Vienna, could not decide which one of her two suitors, Albert Hampel and Hans Kugel, was the better man, she took them to a cafe and required that they compete in a beer drinking duel, the drinker with greatest capacity winning her heart and hand. The novel duel was fought with quart tankards of beer and after the thirteenth tankard Albert Hample downed Hans Kugel, who could hold no more. Hample and Linde Weiss walked away to live happy ever after.

What's in a Name.

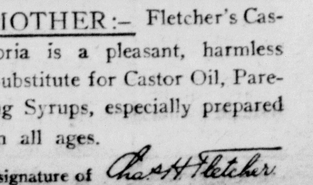

ZION CITY, Ill.—By any other name a Libertyville motion picture house would have been probably just as enticing to a diversion seeking young policeman, Benjamin Fisher, member of the Zion City, Ill., police force, but would at least have saved itself

the stigma of mockery as far as Benjamin Fisher is concerned. He was discharged from his post at Zion City after it was established that he and a young lady attended the Libertyville motion picture house, thereby breaking the Zionist taboo law against cinemas.

Call Off the Cops.

CHICAGO.—When William Williams reported to police that his car was stolen he did not expect quite such prompt action. Two days later detectives Harry O'Donnell and Frank

McDonald reported that the car had been recovered in Milwaukee where one Roy Willoughby had been caught driving it recklessly. So Williams got a warrant. But two days later Williams discovered that Roy Willoughby was not Willoughby at all. "Do you know who the man is?" the police inquired. "Yes, he is Roy Williams, my brother. I want to kill that warrant."

HIGH COACH IS EXPECTED SOON

Joe Hurst, Ex-Adena Mentor, New Blue and White Director, to Report Prior to Opening Of School.

JOE HURST, Wooster college athlete and former coach at Adena high in Jefferson county, who will have charge of East Liverpool high school athletics this year, is expected to arrive here within the next few days, according to Superintendent S. C. McVay.

With little more than three weeks intervening before the beginning of school and the opening of football practice sessions, Hurst's arrival is anticipated at any moment now, the Blue and White's new mentor having some preliminary affairs to look after before starting work.

There will be no training camp this year, Superintendent McVay announces. Laws of the Ohio High School Athletic association prohibit coaching before the actual opening of school and it is the intention of the local school to adhere to all regulations.

Faculty Manager Decker is still working on the schedule, and expects to have a few open dates filled within the near future.

Two of the Y nine's quartet of bingles were knocked out by Hugh McKernan.

The Heimies won the game in the first inning, pushing six runs over the plate on four hits, a base on balls and two errors.

Ruth Clouts 36th Homer And Beats Nats, 4 to 3.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Two of New York's greatest institutions — Babe Ruth and the Giants—had demonstrated today that they cannot yet be counted out of the running in their respective battles. The Bambino clouted his thirty-sixth homer, pulling up to within two of Buster Gehrig. The Giants' steam roller scored six runs in the eighth inning after the first two batters had been retired, practically ruining the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The score in the first game of the New York-Washington "crucial" series at the capital was Ruth 4, Washington 3. With two singles and a homer, the Babe knocked in all of the Yankees' runs. He is still about six homers behind his 1921 record, however.

The Washington fans became to peeved at an unfavorable decision rendered in the ninth by Umpire Clarence "Pants" Rowland that they chased him into teh dugout after the game. Police escorted him to safety.

In their big rally the Giants batted around, kayoing three Pirate pitchers and winning, 8 to 3. The Pirates now trail the Cubs by 3½ games and are only two games in front of the Cardinals, with the Giants fast closing from the rear. The Cubs and Cardinals were idle yesterday.

The Athletics snapped Boston's winning streak of six games as Lefty Grove held the Sox to four hits and won in a romp, 12 to 2. Grove pitched hitless ball for six innings while Ty Cobb continued his batting spree by walloping a triple, a double and a single.

Detroit held on to third place by trimming the Browns, 2 to 1. Gaston outpitched Owen Carroll, former Holy Cross star, but lost on errors.

The Phillies climbed out of last place by blanking the Braves, 6 to 0, but flopped back into the cellar again by dropping the nightcap, 5 to 1. Pruett held the Braves to five hits in the opener while Bob Smith of the Braves yielded but six bingles in the second game.

BATTLE TONIGHT IN YANK'S PARK

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Chicago having attained the battle of the twentieth century limited, New York will accept the next best thing at the Yankee stadium tonight in the form of a scuffle of the split second with Jack Delaney, heavyweight by personal nomination, in one corner and Paulino Uzcudun, the well known human being, in the other. If Paulino wins, it will be a moral victory for the dental supply houses, for the lad smiles a very mean bicuspid.

If Delaney gets the official nod, he will be up in the chips again just as high as he was before Jim Maloney gave him a thorough going over.

In fact, the old steam-up for the 1928 sucker season is already issuing from the boiler, even before Dempsey and Tunney so much as utter a harsh word. The winner of tonight's fight will get Jack Sharkey early next year, the survivor of that will get the Dempsey-Tunney winner for the championship, the certified checks and somebody will get a punch on the nose.

In other words, we may be looking at the next heavyweight champion tonight, anything being possible after what happened in the Dempsey-Sharkey fight.

Paulino was a ribald jest to many a merry Andrew when he came here last winter, but the boys seem to have lost their sense of humor since the gent slapped down Harry Wills in a punch. They, in fact, have made Paulino an even money choice against Delaney and, given a few more hours for mature deliberation, they probably will send him into the ring a favorite.

They might look further and do worse, at that. The gent will weigh around 190 pounds against Delaney's 176, he will have 15 rounds in which to make his weight and strength mean something to the slender, somewhat fragile Delaney and he has a chin that only a stone mason could love.

Yes, Paulino will have a lot of natural advantages working for him unless Delaney can make his "kill" early in the fight. The latter has a fine right hand punch, as viewed from the standpoint of the light heavyweight division, but it naturally is not so effective against heavyweights. And when the heavyweight in question happens to be a hombre with a jaw like the horn of a saddle, that punch figures to be even less potent.

Delaney, of course, will outspeed his man at the outset and probably will give him a sound veneering for five or six rounds. But if he gets past that point, it may be well for Delaney to fear the worst. His record indicates that he is inclined to blow up in the late rounds of a long fight, as evidenced by his several battles with Berlenbach and the fact that none of his knockouts beyond the sixth round have been scored at the expense of good men.

However, it may be that Delaney, even failing to drop the Basque, will yet be able to outstep him for fifteen rounds. It may be that Paulino's style will prevent him from getting anywhere any time with a man like Delaney. For Paulino is a swinger and Delaney is at his worst against a straight puncher. Again Paulino is a rusher and Delaney ordinarily would ask for nothing better.

Be that as it might, a lot of form students have suspected these many months that Delaney doesn't belong in the heavyweight division in the first place and, if that is the case, a man-eater like Paulino possibly will afford the best means of proving or disproving the contention.

It should be a great fight while it lasts and it is likely to last until the final bell.

Meets Uzcudun

Jack Delaney, forced by his failure in the heavyweight elimination tournament to meet Paolino Uzcudun at Yankee Stadium, New York, to prove he's still in the running.

Digman Gives Up Three Hits And Laughlin Downs Turk Nash

ERRATIC PEGS AID VISITORS

James Hurls Great Game But Luck's Not With Him.

BAD heaves to first base preceding and following a safe drive to middle cost Turk Nash a hard fought City Industrial league contest with the Laughlin first half champions on Patterson field last evening. Neither side scored until and only in the sixth inning. Then the potters made three and the auto contingent but one. The final score was thus 3 to 1.

L. McMath from the short field and James, essaying the completion of an intended sacrifice made the hurling miscues for the Turk Nash outfit. The latter was the most costly for two runs thus ensued.

Crawford, up first in the sixth, sent a grounder to McMath. He grabbed it and threw high to W. Mundy. Webber then sent a safety just back of second base. Finley dumped the ball to the left of the plate.

James ran in and hesitated momentarily on a forced out throw. Then he whirled and threw hurriedly to first, the ball going to right field instead of into Mundy's hands. Crawford and Webber both scampered home before the ball was returned and Finley held up on second. Herbert then went out, James to W. Mundy, Finley going to third from where he finished as W. Watson went out, L. McMath to W. Mundy. Sayers went out also at first, J. Watson assisting.

The top of Turk Nash's batting order was also up when they came to bat in the same inning. E. Bayley drove to Finley, who threw wildly to Babb as the second sacker went on to second. Tommy" Sayers, Laughlin keystone sack guardian then handled in turn the drives of L. McMath, A. Bayley and W. Mundy and threw them out at first. E. Bayler reached third and home on the first and second of these put-outs.

Both teams went out in order in the seventh.

Babb, starting for Laughlin flew to L. McMath. Ranaldi singled past second. E. Bayley belatedly threw wildly to first, enabling the catcher to go to second. A moment later he caught Digman's fly and doubled Ranaldi at second, L. Math taking his assist.

A. Morris for Turk Nash was thrown out at first by Digman. Babb grabbed R. Pollock's liner, a seeming certain hit while Finley ran back into left and gobbled Schneidmiller's fly, ending the game.

James pitched great ball despite his bad fielding heave. He fanned three, hit one and walked none. Only four hits, one of these a scratch infield blow by Sayers, were dae off him.

Digman, in great form, permitted but three scattered safe bingles. He struck out two and walked two.

The contest, witnessed by a record crowd, was featured by three fast double plays, two by Turk Nsh and one by Laughlin.

The second of these, James to J. Watson to W. Mundy in the second was a pretty play and doubtless stopped Laughlin's early scoring. W. Watson had led off with a single to right. Sayers hit safely to L. McMath, the ball bounding almost over him and being recovered too late to beat the batter to first. Babb then drove to James, who quickly assisted to J. Watson, forcing out W. Watson while the former got the ball to W. Mundy in time to put out the visiting first sacker at first.

A. Morris, playing his initial game in a Turk Nash uniform, made two fine catches in succession off Finley's and Herbert's bats in the second. The first of these would have been a certain triple or homer had he not held it on the edge of a water pool in deep left.

W. Watson also captured a hard fly off J. Watson's bat in the fifth with Schneidmiller on the bags by reason of a single.

Webber in right for Laughlin, made a trio of fine catches in that difficult territory. He again hit safely once and was hit once in his three swatting chances, a .500 batting mark for the day, surpassed by none and equaled only by Schneidmiller of the autosists who walked once and hit safely once in a trio of plate appearances.

Finley missed one of seven chances at short for Laughlin while Sayers accepted five at second. In the sixth the latter threw out three men in succession at first.

James fanned Digman, Crawford and Webber successively in the third.

Yankee Stars Ready for Foe

Meet British Rivals in Wightman Cup Features.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11—The feature matches in the Wightman Cup tennis competition between America and Great Britain will be played at Forest Hills on Saturday when Miss Helen Wills, No. 1 on the American team clashes with Mrs. Kitty McIfornia schoolgirl, meets Miss Betty Nuthall, the English prodigy.

Miss Wills will participate in two singles matches and one doubles match. Tomorrow in the first day of play her opponent will be Miss Joan Fry. Mrs. Molla Mallory, No. 2 on the American team, plays Mrs. Godfree tomorrow.

Although they were beaten by Mrs. Charlotte Hosmer Chapin and Miss Eleanor Goss in two practice sets yesterday, Miss Wills and Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman were selected as the No. 1 doubles team for America. Mrs. Chopin and Miss Goss are the No. 2 team.

Miss Penelope Anderson, of Richmond, Va., was not selected for the American team as a result of her defeat by Miss Jacobs, 6-2, 6-2.

JOCKEY INJURED AT BEULAH PARK

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 11.—A. Alexander, Montreal jockey, was reported near death in a local hospital today, as a result of injuries sustained when his mount threw him and he was trampled by other horses in a race at Beulah park here yesterday. The rider's skull was fractured, and he suffered other injuries about the body, when he fell as the horses broke at the barrier.

Harold Mays, Bayonne heavyweight, scored technical knockout over Jack Roper, of California, in eighth round.

FITZ BACK IN RING AT IDORA PARK

YOUNGSTOWN, Aug. 11—After several weeks layoff, Freddy Fitzgerald, Youngstown's lightweight contender, will swing back into action in a local ring when he meets Beeny Burns, of Akron, at Idora Park, on August 16th.

Burns, it will be remembered, gave Freddy a fine pasting on their last meeting and the dapper Fitz is out to remove the only blot on an otherwise perfect record.

If condition and determination mixed with the proper amount of fighting ability can turn that trick, then Mr. Burns is in for a busy evening, when the bell sends these two lads on their way.

The semi-windup will feature Keefe Buckley, Youngstown's fighting Scot, and Joe Canall, also of the Steel Town, and if their last fight is a good-mark to judge this one by, then the fans are in for a fistic treat.

The last battle between these two classy welters ended up in a two round K. O. victory for Canall, and Keefe has been yelling for a return shot at the dark haired north sider and promises to do everything but murder him.

Tony Leon, the perpetual motion fistman, who is rapidly putting the town of Dover on the map will meet the toughest boy that he has been called upon to face since joining the ranks of the professional mitt swingers in Joe Shurra, out of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Heavyweight will hold the spotlight in the third prelim, when Mel French, of East Palestine, and Joe Clark, of New Castle, Pa., tangle. Out of this mixup may come a boy who will give Emmett Rocco a battle.

The "Polish Wonder" and Joe Midway, of Pittsburgh, Pa. will swing gloves in the second prelim, and cause Benny Leonard or Mike Gibbons to turn green with envy at their while neither of these lads will ever cleverness, still they both can, will and do fight.

ANOTHER TOUGH TILT FOR CORDS

Industrial League Pace-setters Face Hard Working Wellsville Club in Game Tonight at Smith Field.

By F. J. W.

The Chester Superior Cords hopped a tough obstacle in their dash for Industrial League second half honors the first of the week when Crandall turned back the Laughlin nine, but their week's work is not copleted by any means and they'll have to hurdle the Wellsville Nash Motors tonight in order to maintain their advantage.

The Cords and the Wellsville club will play at Smith field and the visitors are counting on giving the pace setters all they've got.

Riley's lads are a full game ahead of Laughlin, in second place, today as a result of Newell's victory over Turk Nash.

The Turk Nash aggregation has been easy picking for the West Virginians this season. The two clubs have played six games to date, including first and second half tilts and Laughlin has won every one of the half-dozen. The Motors have been playing good ball against Laughlin but something goes wrong, apparently, with the mechanics of the Motors' defense every time and this coupled with the natural ability of Dailey's club, doesn't do Fowler's outfit any good at all.

Negotiations are under way for an other Turk Nash-Laughlin battle Saturday at Patterson field and probably will be completed tomorrow.

Manager Roy Nicholson of the Wellsville club is uncertain as to his pitching selection, with either Easton, the southpaw who defeated Turk Nash recently, and Huffman, a right hander, available for duty. The Motors have not played since last Friday, their first game this week with Victory Motors having been called off.

Hancock will do the receiving. Meeks is definitely out of the line-up and Byers will cover middlefield for Wellsville, taking the place of Ranier, of Jeanette, who was called back home recently by illness in the family.

Riley probably will send Curly Evans to the mound against the visitors. The game will start at 5:45.

GRIFFITH PROTESTS

Asks Umpire Rowland Be Removed From Series.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Clark C. Griffith, president of the Washington baseball club, today awaited a ruling on his official protest to Ban Johnson, president of the American league, asking for removal of Umpire Clarence Rowland from the present Senators-Yankee series.

"Rowland showed vindictiveness in taking it out on the team because the fans were riding him," said Griffith. "I am unwilling to accept responsibility for outbreaks if Rowland continues to work this series."

The fans objected yesterday to Rowland's decisions on balls and strikes. Missiles were thrown at him on the field and he had to be escorted from the grounds under police protection.

Bucky Harris, manager, was banished from the game for kicking on decisions. Babe Ruth's home run won the game for the Yanks.

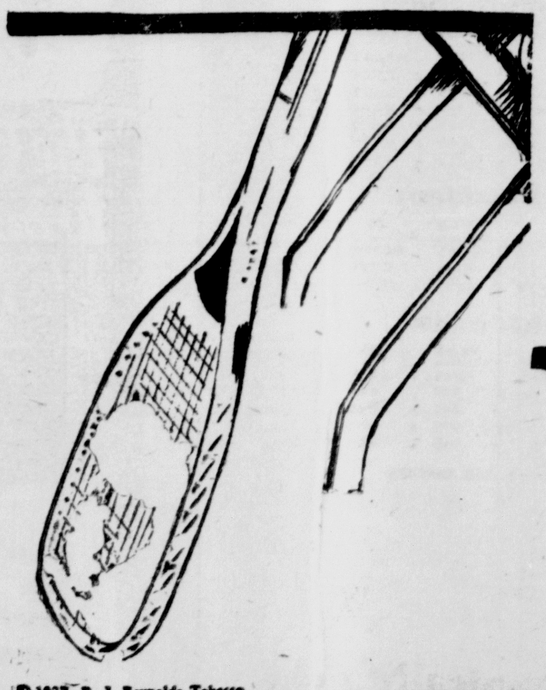

In this modern world of business and knowledge of value, the public is always ready to recognize merit.

This age finds Camel worthy of leadership

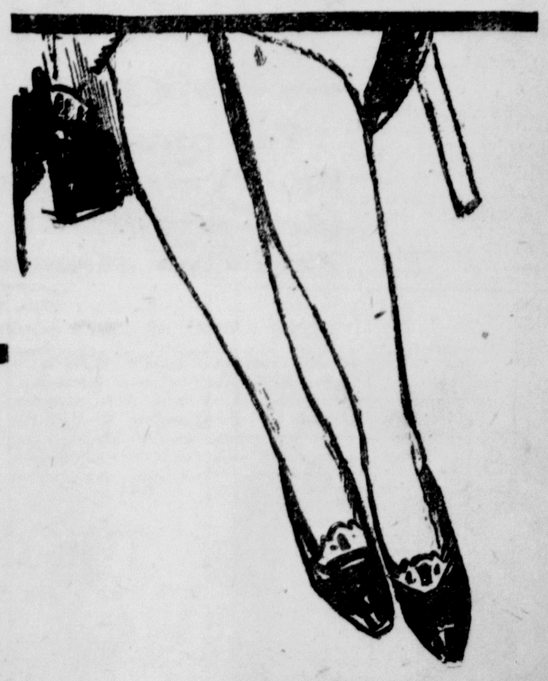

THE people of this modern, busy age are always anxious to recognize quality, and they have placed Camel first among cigarettes.

Camel has won its way to the top in the hardest-to-please age ever known because it has the qualities of goodness that make smoking a pleasure. You will revel in the enjoyment of these cigarettes. No better smoke can be made. "Have a Camel!"

Piles Go Quick

No Cutting or Salves Needed.

External treatments seldom banish Piles.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

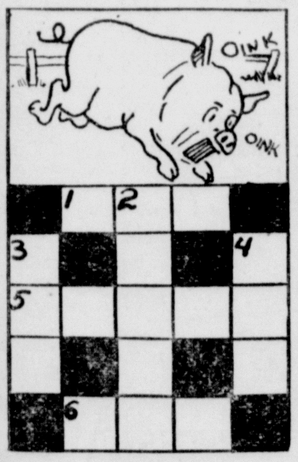

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send fresh, healthy blood to the raw, sensitive membranes. Internal treatment is one safe method. Ointments and other external treatments can't give lasting relief.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in hundreds of cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Matthews' Medicine Store, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

HOW ONE MAN, D. C. STEPHENSON, KEPT STATE OF INDIANA AT HIS "FINGER TIPS"; BOASTED HIS WORD WAS THE LAW

"SPIES" KEPT HIM INFORMED OF THE ACTIVITIES OF ALL THOSE HE DESIRED UNDER HIS CONTROL.

(This is the third of a series of articles on Indiana's political drama, by a Central Press writer, who spent weeks gathering material for an unbiased and unprejudiced story.)

III.

By Bonita Witt,
Staff Writer for Central Press and Review-Tribune.

It was inevitable that D. C. Stephenson, who declared he was the law in Indiana, should be separated from the "regular" Klan, Indiana folk say. As a life prisoner now, convicted of murder, telling "secrets of state" to a grand jury, the extent of his reach for "the heights" is becoming known.

MISS BONIE WITT

And the Klan was only an instrument to elevate himself, his opponents have averred. This, they declare, brought on the breach between the organization and its Indiana grand dragon.

Stephenson and Hiram W. Evans, imperial wizard, constantly differed.

No Interference Permitted.

Stephenson administered the Indiana Klan as he saw fit, regardless of mandates issued from the imperial palace in Atlanta. He would brook no insubordination within his ranks. All those who disagreed with him were speedily put out of the organization. The Indiana Klan had been built around Stephenson, he boasted. "Steve's" word was law. He repeatedly told his followers that some one was "going to get him." He insisted that the imperial wizard, Hiram W. Evans, was "hatching plots" to trap him. When the break finally came, the Stephenson followers, to a degree, were convinced that their leader had been "framed."

In the autumn of 1923 the "regular" Klan, eager to rid itself of Stephenson, seized on an escapade of his in Ohio to expel him from its ranks.

Nothing daunted, Stephenson, then a dapper man of his thirties, announcing he no longer could ally himself with an organization under the control of Hiram Evans in Atlanta, proceeded to enlist members in a society of which he was the head, whose object, he asserted, was "to love everybody." It was sometimes called the "Klan of the North," as opposed to the Southern, of what "Steve" called the "Evans-owned Klan."

Remained a Power.

As "the Old Man," he banded together Klansmen who had been loyal to him, and gathered new recruits. Although officially no longer a member of the "regular" Klan, he seemed to continue to have power over part of its members, and it was largely through his Klan connections that he rose to political power in Indiana.

"Steve," even when grand dragon, habitually referred to himself as "the Old Man" and always so signed his letters.

Maintaining an elaborate office in Indianopolis, he set out to perfect an organization comparable in its efficiency to the army. He had a system whereby he could communicate with a henchman in the far corner of the state within an hour or two. State, county, district, ward and precinct — all were at his finger tips. "Spies" kept him informed of the activities of all those he desired under his control. He spent money lavishly, giving way large sums, and many came under financial obligation to him. At his home in Irvington, a suburb of Indianapolis, he entertained extensively.

Folk Came To His Parties.

One man who knew him in the hey-day of his power says: "'Steve' wasn't always the social leper that he is now. People were happy to acknowledge him their friend before he got into trouble."

How far he succeeded in his efforts to become a power in Indiana is best emphasized by this statement which Robert H. Moore, Stephenson's attorney at Michigan City, says his client made after he appeared before the grand jury recently:

"I purchased officials involved in this investigation in an open market. I paid an excessive price for them.

Asserts He Was "Railroaded."

"After that they railroaded me to prison and convicted me of a crime of which I was not guilty.

"I can't even have a right to talk with my attorney privately. They have denied me that privilege. Now I am going to turn them over to the state of Indiana for a while."

Then the grand jury called him once more, following which there was a silence, except that prosecutors mentioned there had been evidence of value. And mysterious "little black boxes" had been recovered.

The state awaited the next move of this man, who, although a life prisoner, still seemed to retain a vestige of power.

Clench faced Roderiguez on the strength of that smile.

"Looky here. We're talking business with a business man. Mr. Moore is playing the game every minute—and get this! he's playing safe! Rifles? Not on your life! He's delivering to us ten thousand parts of mining machinery and—accessories—to be used in mines you can see on the map. He sticks to his onions. If we are sending—onions—to Central America—that's our business, not his. Do I make it clear?"

"Much clearer," said John Moore. "If these gentlemen have anything definite to say about why I should deliver ten thousand parts of mining machinery—and accessories, to them, I shall be glad to hear it."

"Certified checks on New York banks," said Henshaw. "That's definite enough, I suppose."

"Delivered of course—" said John Moore.

"At the border, upon receiving—the machinery," interrupted Henshaw.

John Moore repeated as if he had not heard.

"Delivered of course—here. Within twelve hours. I am returning tomorrow morning. I think that's all gentlemen. With your permission Mr. Henshaw, I'll join your niece in the garden and leave you gentlemen to discuss any matters you may wish to among yourselves."

Roderiguez leaned forward.

"It is not permitted" he said. "In Mexico, only one man joins a lady in the garden at night—her fiance, Senor," He tapped the table. "You will remain here, Senor. I!" And now he tapped his chest. "I am the Senorita's fiance."

He tapped himself again. Henshaw cursed softly.

John Moore's face did not change. He merely looked first at that thick tapping finger and then into the wicked little eyes above it. "You lie," he said evenly. "Both times."

Roderiguez lunged heavily to his feet.

"Keep still, you fool" snarled Henshaw.

The big Mexican stood panting. "Then tell him yourself," he raged. "Tell him—now—here!"

John rose to his feet and looked coolly about the table.

"It seems after all, that what you really wish to do is to quarrel among yourselves. We will continue this conversation in the morning."

Henshaw half arose as if to expostulate.

John looked at him. "Don't get up," he said drily. "Take it easy. Good night." And he turned away and crossed leisurely toward the garden door.

They stared after him.

Clench cleared his throat. "Good-night, Sir." he called. And though John did not catch it, there was admiration in Clench's tone. "Gosh!" thought Clench. "he's a cool one! For plain cool insolence he's got 'em both beat. And he's got the goods. He's the man for my money, I'll tell the world."

$7,000,000 annually, while all the others have sales aggregating only a little more than one-seventh of that amount. That additional million is important, however, not only in that it is business which the regular stores might have had, but represents prices that in competition have forced the regular candy dealers, for the most part, to shade their prices below a fair profit level.

Of all the candy that is sold in the United States in the course of a year, it is estimated that one-half is purchased in one, five, and ten cent lots, mostly by children. Eighty per cent of the sweets that the manufacturers produce brings them 25 cents or less a pound. Only 10 per cent is of the grade that sells for a dollar or more per pound.

The Christmas season is the time when the candy business is at its peak, while there is always a big slump during the summer months.

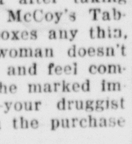

Certain modern trends have done much to hurt the candy business within the last two or three years, it is said. For instance, when Dame Fashion decreed that the female form must be sylph-like—if not to say, slab-like—she dealt a wicked blow at the purveyors of confections. Girls who a few years ago would have been delighted with gifts of sweets are now offended by them, and chocolates and bonbons are no longer the votary offerings of young love that they once were. Dieting to reduce by adults of both sexes who want to keep the old waistline in check likewise has reduced the consumption of candy, and eating an apple a day to keep the doctor away has been another factor.

The youth of today has found, too, that a dollar spent for gasoline to take his best girl for a ride in the family flivver will promote him better than if spent for a box of candy, even if she is a candy eater, or when a choice has to be made between an evening at the movies or an evening munching sweets, the movies win four times out of five.

It is also reported with many evidences of authenticity that numerous dollars that once found their way into the cash registers of the candy merchants now go to the bootleggers. Certain it is, at any rate, that nothing so quickly destroys a natural taste for candy as an acquired taste for forbidden alcohol and that a sweet tooth and a gin palate are rarely found in the same mouth. Besides, it is easier to carry a flask on the hip than a pound of chocolates under the arm.

Prohibition has undoubtedly tended to increase the consumption of candy, as has been stated, but with the element that refuses to conform to the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Law consumption has fallen off.

Americans have been invited to exhibit at the International Exhibition Fair at Tallinn, Estonia, this year.
